New PHA Barn In Time For 1,000 Head Export

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

MIDDLETOWN – Mix 300-plus yards of concrete, 260 headgates, 60 by 220 feet of metal roofing, tons of stone, several truckloads of lumber and posts and what do you have?

At the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's farm near Middletown, members now have the groundwork for an even bigger chunk of the international export market, plus another valuable property asset.

Now under roof, with feeding troughs and pen floors being poured this week, is the latest addition to the PHA's export, quarantine and sales facility. The new 60-feet wide by 220-feet metal pole structure is nearing final completion, just in time to handle the Association's largest-ever shipment of cattle.

That order, according to PHA executive secretary Bill Nichol, will move nearly 1,000 head of registered, pedigreed Holstein young stock through the new facility, onto cargo planes at the nearby Harrisburg International Airport, and ultimately into the herds of Brazilian buyers who have combed the states' registered Holstein farms for selections.

The Brazilian business registers yet another high point for the PHA's 12-year exporting success story. During that time, not only cattle, but swine, sheep, and goats have been assembled and processed through the Middletown farm's catch chutes for buyers as close as Canada and as distant as China.

But primarily it is Holstein cattle which have filled the pens and feeding areas, and run through chutes for health testing and loading, on their way to customers in 45 countries around the world.

After the Association's 1975 purchase of the 125-acre farm on Building crews are putting in long days readying the Holstein Association's latest addition, in time to handle PHA's largest export shipment in the farm's history, destined for Brazil.

Dean Hood Looks For Innovation At PSU

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

Editors Note: Dr. Lamartrine Hood, Dean of Penn State University, came back to Pennsylvania after 18 years on the faculty at Cornell University in New York state. Dr. Hood is fond of saying that Penn State farmed him out to get more experience and then decided to bring him back to the majors.

Since returning to State College earlier this year, Dr. Hood has spent much of his time traveling over Pennsylvania to get acquainted with farmers and extension personnel. His friendly, open manner has already endeared him to many in the state farming and agribusiness community. Here is a personal interview regarding some of the important issues related to Penn State Extension and farmers in Pennsylvania.

Q. To help our readers get acquainted with you, will you tell us something of your past experiences?

A. I am a Pennsylvania boy. I was born in Johnstown but grew up on a dairy farm in Bucks County. I have two degrees from Penn State--Bachelor and PhD. The Bachelor degree is in dairy science. The Phd. is in food science with the Master's tucked in between also in dairy science. The last 18 years I have been in New York on the faculty of Cornell University, first in the department of food science and more recently in administration.

I would claim legitimately to be a farm boy. I would be farming today if I had had my druthers. My heart is clearly in agriculture. In fact, just parenthetically, although we had not lived on a farm or actually farmed during our marriage (my wife is also a farm girl), we've always lived out in the rural environment close to farmers. When we moved back to

Northeast Milk Dumping Rates Mixed Reviews

BY MARTHA A. GEHRINGER

ALBANY, N.Y. – In an attempt to secure a better price for their milk, dairymen in four northeastern states began dumping milk for the second time in a month Wednesday.

"We hope to get farming back on parity, or a milk price of $23 per hundredweight," said a milk strike organizer in New York this week.

While the farmers have yet to acheive this goal, they have been able to focus media attention on the plight of the farmer in the northeast, observers explained.

The original milk strike, or milk withholding, began on Labor Day weekend in sections of New York, according to an industry spokesman there. This strike did not affect milk supplies in the region, spokesmen for milk co-ops in the region reported. They anticipate a similar result with the current milk strike.

Dairy Shrine Inducts Doty Remsberg At Expo

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

JEFFERSON, Md. – "He lived, ate, slept and dreamed cows," said Helen Remsburg of her late husband Doty Remsburg. The Maryland dairyman and founder of Remsburg Sale Service was inducted posthumously into the National Dairy Shrine in Madison, Wisc as a "Pioneer" on Thursday, Oct. 2.

Noted as a man who made "major contributions to the dairy industry," as determined by the National Committee, A. Doty Remsburg was "very dedicated" and "loved cows and loved his work," explained Helen. She said that her husband conducted livestock sales "until the last day when he was stricken." It was determined that Remsburg had suffered a heart attack on the same day that he sold 100 cows "straight through" and complained only of being tired and not feeling well at the end of the day. "He just wouldn't give up," Helen recalled

The Remsburgs farmed in partnership with brother, 'Brick' on the home farm called Remcrest. Doty Remsburg was born at Remcrest and acquired his love for cows and the dairying way of life while surrounded by the fertile acreage located in Jefferson. His first 4-H calf, "Lily Pons," was the start of an illustrious career in the dairy industry.

After attending the University of Maryland for two years, Remsburg assisted sale manager Howard Barker. As his responsibilities grew, he graduated to conduct his first sale on March 19,

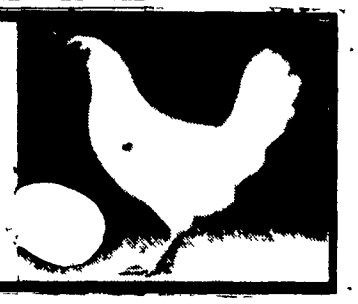
POULTRY MARKETS



Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, Oct. 2, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices continued to trend lower as dealers sought levels sufficient to stimulate increased trading on all sizes. Cartoned egg movement remained disappointing throughout the area. Supplies of all sizes were available in both graded and ungraded packs. Breaker activity had increased at lower trending prices. The undertone was generally unsettled with sentiment reflecting anticipated increases in first of the month consumer buying during the weekend.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door: A Extra Large 65-75; A Large 63-73; A Medium 55-64.

Eastern PA and NJ Poultry

Wednesday, Oct. 1, 1986
Report Supplied by USDA

Market Comment: The market tone was fully steady to firm. Seller offerings were adequate to short, and some were noted as priced as high as 17 cents for next week's pick-up. However, some processors noted costs of hens as restrictive, and some enduser resistance as tempting the overall call for meat.

Prices Paid at Farm:

Light Type Hens: 14-15, mostly 14½-15.

F.O.B. Plant: 16-17½.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Oct. 2, 1986

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds was sufficient to keep seller stock in fairly good balance to tight, particularly on sizes under 3 pounds. Cutlets and breast meat continued to clear well, and wings moved to an increased call. Dark meat items were just a bit improved, mainly on legs. Less than trucklot asking prices were higher at 55-63 cents. Live supplies were light to moderate. Weights were declining and in a full range of light to heavier than desired. Slaughter schedules were moderately heavy, and some processors were projecting some cutbacks in slaughter due to lighter volume in the field. The undertone was mixed but at least fully steady.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 10/2 2,001,000; Actual 9/25 1,931,000.

Actual 9/30 1,901,000.

Average Weights 9/30 4.59, 9/23 4.67.

OPINION

A Reminder We Can't Escape

The only redeeming value of losing the life of a 13-year-old boy on an upset three wheeler is what we can learn from this tragic accident. Someone said you can't lose your life on a three wheeler. But it isn't so.

A Lancaster County youth was killed last Saturday evening when an all-terrain vehicle he was operating flipped on a small hill in a field. State Police said the autopsy showed the boy died from traumatic chest injuries. He was riding on a 100-acre farm of a neighbor between cut corn and hay fields when he drove up a short bank between the fields and the vehicle flipped end over end. The boy had permission to be riding there. But he wasn't wearing his helmet.

It's a sad, sad story. And our hearts go out to the family. But we mention it here as a reminder again that we must treat all farm equipment with respect. ATV's have become part of farm life. They are economical, but powerful. Sometimes they act in place of tractors to haul a load of hay or carry a farmer to tend his fences. And when the farm work is finished, the ATV becomes an RV (recreational vehicle) that provides transportation to the fishing hole or goes along to the hunting camp in the mountains.

As we greive with the family this week, we have a feeling of loss so great that it provides a reminder we can't escape. We must rededicate ourselves again to self-discipline. A self-discipline that does not allow ourselves to get so absorbed in our work or play that we forget to respect our ATV as a farm machine that has the capacity to add grief as well as pleasure to our lives.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Salute 4-H

National 4-H Week runs through the week of Oct. 5 to 11. I wish to commend the 3,567 members, 550 volunteer adult leaders, 47 teen leaders and professional youth workers for their accomplishments and service to Lancaster County.

Through 4-H projects and activities, youth from all social and economic backgrounds, both rural and urban, demonstrate that they can make a difference in food production, conservation of our natural resources, improve economic understanding, and in the formulation of future career decisions.

As a result of the fine exchange programs, 4-H also contributes to international understanding and increased world food production. Four-H provides an important pathway to the future for many youth.

To Manage Horizontal Silos

Most of our permanent silos are filled, but we do have some livestock and dairy producers that need to store silage in temporary structures. In many cases this is a trench or a bunder silo, mostly above ground. In these cases, it is very important to keep out excess water and air from the silage mass. This will require tightening down the plastic cover week by week as the silage settles. Also, surface water should be drained away from the silage area. There are cases where the black plastic is flapping in the wind during fall months. This will usually result in large amounts of spoiled silage.

To Beware of Grazing Hazards

Dairy farmers who are grazing their milking herds in woodlots, or in pastures with oak trees, should be on the alert for fallen acorns. Our Veterinary Science people tell us that acorns are somewhat toxic to cattle and will dry up most cows for the rest of their lactation. We are aware of many oak trees in pastures, and in most years there will be a pretty good acorn crop.

If the cows start eating acorns, then the milk flow will be reduced drastically. Either cows should be removed from the area, or someone should pick up the acorns before the cows are turned out daily.

To Store Apples Properly

This is apple picking season and whether you grow apples or just like to eat them, there's some information on how to store them.

Remember that cool apples will keep longer. Ideally, they should be stored at 33° Fahrenheit at 90 percent humidity and in dim light or darkness. Since most people can't provide these ideal conditions, the next best thing is a family-type refrigerator. Just put the apples in a plastic bag, then close the bag loosely or punch a few holes in it so the air can circulate.

Now as to picking, it's a good practice to store the fruit in shade as it's picked, then allow it to stand in the orchard overnight to cool. Then, place the apples in storage early in the morning before the temperature rises too much.

If you leave apples in a packing shed or in piles under the tree for one week, you'll shorten their storage life by about five weeks. So keep apples cool, maintain good air circulation during storage and your apples should keep a long time.

FARM FORUM
OUR READERS WRITE

To The Editor:

In recent months your paper has featured "pro-farm" candidate for Governor, Wm. Scranton, at least twice on its front page. We are offended, even though we have traditionally voted Republican and usually support the Republican ticket.

You should be aware that Mr. Scranton is "pro-choice" (read, "pro-abortion"), or anti-life. Since when can an anti-life candidate for public office be construed as pro-farm? The blood, sweat and tears of the American Farmer are dedicated to LIVING things – our crops and animals, not to mention our families, born and unborn!

You must be aware that the farm families who are your readers have to be among the sane majority of Americans who know that abortion is nothing less than murder. Mr. Scranton's opponent, Bob Casey, knows that abortion is murder and is strongly and openly opposed to it. It looks to us that Mr. Casey, as the pro-life candidate, is the truly pro-farm candidate.

THE YEAR OF JUBILEE
October 5, 1986

Background Scripture:
Leviticus 25
Devotional Reading:
Leviticus 19: 9-18

The year of jubilee is one of the most interesting and unique concepts in the Old Testament: "And you shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout the land to all its inhabitants: it shall be a jubilee for you..." (25:10a). Every fifty years was to be a year of jubilee, a year in which the people are to return to their original homes, in which families shall regather, in which servants and slaves shall be given their freedom and family properties be reclaimed.

RETURN TO THE FAMILY

One of the purposes of the year of jubilee was to undergird the family life of the nation and a unique concept of property: "...each of you shall return to his property" (25:10b). The land of Israel was given by God as an inheritance for the families of Israel, not as a possession for financial exploitation. The strength of Israel's social and economic structure was to be a strong bond between the land and the family. Actually, Leviticus encouraged people to redeem their land even before the year of Jubilee.

But the spirit behind the year of jubilee is also concerned with ending exploitation of the poor and unfortunate. Slaves and servants are to be freed in the year of jubilee — "proclaim liberty throughout the land to all its inhabitants." People, who because of financial necessity, sell their family homestead shall receive it back in the year of jubilee.

THE JUBILEE SPIRIT

Best of all, one doesn't have to wait until the 50th year to make these necessary changes. There is a deep concern for the welfare of the powerless and unfortunate. "And if your brother becomes poor beside you, you shall not make him serve as a slave..." (25:39). In other words, although the year of jubilee was a special time set aside to eliminate exploitation, the spirit of jubilee needed to be kept even in the non-jubilee years: "You shall not wrong one another, but you shall fear your God; for I am the Lord your God" (25:17).

Thus, the year of jubilee was for everyone, not just the fortunate few. And it was never to be limited to an occasion every fifty years. We observe Christmas just one day a year, but the purpose of Christmas is to motivate our days for the rest of the next twelve months. So it was with the jubilee. In the heart, every year should be the year of jubilee.

"I Had An Embarrassing Problem."

"It was something I didn't even want to talk about. But now that the problem is solved, I'll tell you. It was a terrible case of raw, cracked teats and udder. You can imagine how that made me feel, especially since I had been number one in the herd. I was miserable!

"Then the dairyman—bless his heart—treated me with Udder Butter.™ You know, the easy-spreading, long-lasting unguent from the folks at Corona. Soon my teats and udder were smooth, moist and comfortable again. That's because Udder Butter is the ointment that combines an effective antiseptic with lanolin and other fine lubricants.

"Udder Butter fights the growth of bacteria, too, and it's good for sun and windburned muzzle, cuts, wounds and abrasions for all animals. Now I get routine treatments with Udder Butter, so my teats and udder stay smooth and healthy.

"You know, I thought all teat-and-udder preparations had a harsh chemical odor, and were hard to wash off at milking time. But not Udder Butter! Thanks to its self-emulsifying formula, it washes right off with warm soapy water. And it has a refreshing vanilla aroma, so it's pleasant to use.

"Now I'm telling all my sisters to ask their dairyman to get Udder Butter. Whether it's the 7 ounce tube, the 28 ounce tub or the 7 pound pail, as long as it's Udder Butter, it's a container of contentment!"

CORONA® People who care for animals depend on it.

Md. Soil Conservation Committee Meets

ANNAPOLIS, Md. – The State Soil Conservation Committee addressed procedural modifications to the highly successful Maryland Agricultural Cost Share Program, during a recent meeting in Annapolis.

Rosemary Roswell of the Maryland Department of Ag's Soil Conservation Administration announced that the updated 208 Agricultural Water Quality Plan, revised to include nutrients and chemicals, will be published in the Oct. 10, Maryland Register. Public hearings will be held Nov. 24 and 25 in Columbia and Easton, Maryland, respectively.

Dr. Sarah Taylor, executive director of the Critical Areas Commission, updated the Committee on the progress of local plan development. She reported that all jurisdictions will develop plans, and are being advised to use the agricultural knowledge and conservation expertise of soil conservation districts in developing critical area guidelines.

SSCC chairman Richard Wright reported on his attendance at a Leadership Conference sponsored by the National Association of Conservation Districts in Rapid City, N.D. He urged Committee members and conservation district supervisors to attend these valuable workshops to gain perspective and capability in furthering soil and water conservation programs at every level.

Dr. Alan Taylor, University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, was appointed by chairman Wright to head the Groundwater, Subcommittee of the SSCC, which has been formed to address agricultural impacts on groundwater.

The next meeting of the SSCC will be held in Centreville in conjunction with a tour of the University of Maryland's Soil Conservation and Water Quality Demonstration Farm, which is owned by Howard Wood and family, and farmed by Royden Powell, III, a supervisor of Queen Anne's Soil Conservation District. For more information contact Anne C. Sieling on 841-5863.

Dairy Plants To Pay More For Milk

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio – Dairy plants will be paying more for milk purchased from dairy farmers when a Oct. 1 price hike established by Milk Marketing Inc. goes into effect, said Gordon Riehl, MMI general manager.

"The 30 cent per hundred pounds of milk increase is a relatively moderate seasonal price increase. But the important thing to remember is that this increase will help to offset the price decreases that farmers have taken in the last two years," said Riehl.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, national milk production has been less than the same month of the previous year.

The reduced production and strong consumer demand for dairy products has stimulated this price increase, according to Riehl.

Even with this increase, Riehl pointed out that milk and other dairy products are still one of the best buys on the market.

RETIREMENT ANNOUNCEMENT

We have invested nearly 50 years of service in the farm equipment industry - forty years at our present location - dealing with several generations of friendly farm folks and neighbors. Thanks to so many customers who promptly paid statements so we could pay ours. There are so many things we'd like to say if we knew how and had adequate space. We will just say again, "THANK YOU". If we have left any unfulfilled promises, or you remember a problem we have not dealt with, talk to us about it.

Farmers Dump Milk

In Wednesday's milk strike, participation occurs in Vermont, Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Wisconsin and Minnesota, said Fred Shaw, a strike organizer in New York.

He reports that since the strike began, the dairymen have received premium offers from local milk plants and co-ops.

Robert Stronach of Eastern Milk Producers explained that while Eastern is contemplating a premium, it will be a temporary premium lasting until spring. The premiums are in response to the seasonal milk shortage, not one brought on by the milk strike. He added that competition for the same supply dictates the premium. The bonus is limited to the additional amount Eastern can receive for the milk from their customers, Stronach added.

Over 650 farmers attended meetings explaining the milk withholding, Shaw said. He estimates 20 percent of the dairymen in New York are participating.

However, for the strike to have an impact on the fluid milk supply 80 to 90 percent of the dairy farmers need to participate, explained Joseph Gerace, commissioner of agriculture and marketing for the state of New York. He also described the participation as sporadic.

A large percentage of participating farmers are needed to influence the supply because the milk market administrator controls the supply regionally. When a shortage of fluid milk appears, the administrator shifts supplies from the manufacturing facilities to the bottling plants. This process insures adequate class one milk supplies.

The strike appears to be "fairly well organized. They are getting the message across without a great deal of milk loss," Gerace added.

While the farmers may not boost the milk price, they are focusing media attention on the problem. "It's an item on the 6 and 11 news," Gerace said.

In the Herkimer County area, farmers are receiving support from the ag related industries and local labor unions, Shaw reported. The labor unions have aided the effort by developing slide displays and rallying public support, he said.

The farmers are running the strike without public money and they have no title for their group, Shaw said. He added that this strike will continue until a result is achieved.

Some farmers in New York have continued to dump their milk since the first milk withholding episode. These farmers and the farmers participating in the current strike are surviving by taking the equity on their insurance policies or by living on credit, Shaw explained.

Frustration over low prices fuels the current strike. Only 10 percent of New York farmers operate solidly in the black and 25 to 40 percent operate in critical condition financially, Gerace stated. Yet in the Northeast region, 34 billion pounds of milk were consumed last year and only 28 billion pounds of milk was produced in the area, Gerace said.

"We are at a crossroads. We will be losing more of the market if we don't find a way to keep the farmers in business," he said.

The Regional Cooperative Marketing Association represents the logical alternative to the milk strike, according to every co-op spokesman and independent dealer interviewed.

Gerace is a firm believer in the possibilities of RCMA and has been working day and night and every weekend to enroll farmers. "RCMA will only be successful if 90 to 95 percent of the farmers sign up," he said.

The price support dropped by $2 per hundredweight for the Order 2 farmers. Now, 16 to 20 percent of the farmers in New York are operating below the breakeven price for a herd average of 12,500 pounds of milk, Gerace notes.

While RCMA will help the farmers in the future, dairymen need the money now and have attempted to solve the immediate problem with the milk withholding, he explained.

He urges farmers to channel their energies into getting the over-order pricing organization moving. Gerace listed three major advantages of RCMA:

First, he said, the organization is run by farmers who will set the milk price. It will enable farmers to be "truly independent for the first time." Farmers will be able to command a price as other vendors do.

RCMA will also unify the 30,000 northeast dairy farmers and permit them to have a voice in Washington. While the farmers are working hard, they have no impact on agriculture policy.

Finally, RCMA will make cooperatives and independent milk dealers market the milk more effectively.

RCMA worked in 1973 and 1974 when members received an average of $7,000 over the blend price, Gerace explained. RCMA is a unique organization since it permits farmers to set, not negotiate, set the price of milk. The marketing association was legalized under the Capper-Volstead Act.

"It is the only alternative except to attempt to ride the wave," he said. Last year, from August 1985 to August 1986, 1,700 farmers in the 11-state northeast region failed to ride the wave and silently went out of business, Gerace noted.

If this was a factory closing down, everyone would focus the spotlight on it and try to save the industry. The story is different with ag; no one hears when a farmer goes out of business, Gerace added. But for now, he said, the strike has focused attention on the plight of the farmer.

With RCMA, the farmer has an organization bargaining for a better price. With the strike, there is no clear organization and no one to bargain with, Gerace said in explaining a benefit of RCMA over the strike.

On the darker side of the milk strike, two farmers have been arrested and await trial for attacks on milk trucks, Shaw said. He added that the meetings he conducts presents facts; he does not encourage violence.

New York State Police investigated reports of 17 stolen plunger valve stems and nuts last Friday. A loaded truck near Whitney Point lost its valve and consequently dumped a load of milk valued at $10,000.

The sabotage occurred throughout the state at four locations. State police are investigating the possibility that striking farmers organized the thefts. Trooper Gene Barnes of the Marathon barracks reported that Donald Hill lost six plunger valves from his trucks between 9 p.m. and 6:30 a.m.

Donald Hill estimates the cost of the valves at $300 each. In his opinion, striking farmers performed the misdeed to prevent his truckers from picking up the milk of non-striking farmers. However, his firm was able to replace the valves and follow a normal milk hauling schedule on Saturday.

Striking farmers are also suspected of dumping antibiotics in neighbors' farm bulk tanks and milk tankers. The excessively high antibiotic level indicated tampering.

Liberty Jersey Sires Adopt Bylaws

HARRISBURG – A general membership meeting for Liberty Jersey Sires was held Sept. 24 at the Farm Show Building. LJS is an agricultural cooperative formed by Jersey breeders from Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York for the purpose of sampling more young Jersey sires.

The meeting was chaired by Cari Wolff, Southeastern Field Representative for the American Jersey Cattle Club. Wolff has been instrumental in assisting the group in its organizational structure. She was also instrumental in the organization of a similar group last year in the south called Dixieland Jersey Sires.

Glen Kenny, Enon Valley, addressed the group on how the organization has been structured. Kenny noted that the Articles of Incorporation have been filed and the bylaws have been adopted. Kenny explained that according to the bylaws, the organizational committee will serve as the first Board of Directors with the first elections scheduled for the fall of 1987. Kenny also explained that net income from bulls proven by the group will be distributed only after there is at least $2,000 in the pool. Net income will be distributed to paid members and will be divided 25 percent for semen usage and 75 percent for daughters in the first proof.

Membership chairman Ginger Myers reported that the group currently has 29 paid member herds. The group's goal is to have 60 to 65 participating herds to obtain 35 daughters in 35 herds on a bull for a 70 percent repeatability. Myers stressed that membership is vital for implementation of the program. Membership is still open and contracts can be obtained from Ginger Myers, Helene Dreisbach, Glen Kenny – all from Pennsylvania, or Jim Billman – Ohio, and David Chamberlin – New York.

Acting as a consultant for the group, Dr. Duane Norman, research geneticist with the USDA, made a presentation on selection philosophy. Paralleling the growth of young sire sampling in the Holstein and Jersey breed in 1960 with 113 and 19 young sires for each breed respectively, to his 1983 figures of 1,082 Holstein young sires and 67 Jersey young sires, Norman stresses the need to accelerate the breed's efforts to sample more young bulls. Acknowledging tremendous strides in production improvement in the Jersey breed, Norman still projects that the breed needs to be sampling about 120 young sires annually for maximum breed progress.

Norman also explained that with many breeders in the tri-state area more concerned than ever about protein pricing, the group's philosophy was to rank their prospective candidates on CY$ rather than PD$ alone.

Questions concerning sire nomination procedures and contracting with the breeders and the AI units, were answered by Bill Dietrich and John Myers. They explained that the first step in nominating a bull is for the breeder to get him registered. A pedigree on the bull with then be forwarded by the Club to all interested parties.

Myers noted that all the studs have expressed an interest in working with this group. Contracts will be handled individually per bull. The bull will not be purchased out-right by LJS. Fifteen percent of the gross income from semen sales of a proven bull will return to LJS to be distributed 30 percent to the breeder and 70 percent for the LJS income pool. The group has not signed any contracts to date.

The availability of AI interest far exceeds the present membership's capability to adequately sample more than one or two bulls per year, Myers stressed. He also noted the need to increase the group's number of member herds.

THIS WEEK

— Need first for an adequate auditorium and secondly dining facilities for large groups were listed by some 20 Lancaster County farm organizations as primary needs in the proposed Community Center.

— Lancaster County Agricultural Agent Max M. Smith reminds farmers Oct. 10 is the flyfree date for planting wheat in this section, if Dual variety is used.

Barley planting is in full swing, and many farmers are getting ready for wheat planting.

— Mount Joy's Community Exhibit, running Wednesday through Saturday of next week, will wind up the 1956 Lancaster County community fair season.

This week, fairgoers have their choice of two, the New Holland Farmers Fair and the Manheim Community Farm Show. Livestock judging at both fairs was scheduled for Thursday.

— In its final weather and crop report for the 1956 season the State Department of Agriculture today said that during the week ended Monday farmers in the northwestern portion of the state had one of the best working weeks of the entire season. The first general frost on September 21 ended the growing season for this year.

In the previously rain-soaked western counties of Pennsylvania very little rain and plenty of sunshine was reported last week and fields were dry enough to support machinery, the Federal-State survey report declared. But the rest of the State cool weather, cloudy skies and some rains caused by remnants of hurricane "Flossie" continued to restrict farm operations.

— The 1957 Pennsylvania Farm Show, to be held in Harrisburg Jan. 14-18 will have as its theme — "Pennsylvania Agriculture Builds for Tomorrow."

Under this theme the 41st all-Pennsylvania show will stress new and coming technological developments, mechanization, agricultural research, fuller preparation of present education, extension and the day rural youth for farming during the years ahead.

State College earlier this year, it was the first we lived in town since we've been married. That was not an easy decision for us to make. But given my schedule it just made sense. As you know, she travels with me a great deal. We just didn't want to spend all of our time trying to take care of the back 40.

Q. I know you have some concern that the University has become too dependent on federal funds. Would you comment on this and also give some possible solutions?

A. That certainly is of major concern. And I have set one of my major goals to change that situation. In days when those funds were plentiful, this wasn't a bad thing to be dependent upon. Even so, over the last four or five years, we have had at best level funding from the federal government while the University's costs have been increasing. What's likely to happen in the future is that the level of funding will decline. We all know the President proposed a 59 percent cut in funding for Cooperative Extension. We have turned that proposal around because people sent letters to the Office of Management and Budget at the rate of 20,000 per week saying the cut was a bad idea. OMB never had an issue that generated that kind of responcse.

Q. Where will the new funds come from?

A. There has been a change in the mantality in Washington to shift more of the responsibilities to the state and to the private sector. We are hoping the state legislature will recognize the need and allocate $5 million for ag reserch and Extension. It's a very important prospect to those who think Penn State is important to agriculture and related industries in this state.

Q. In many respects the physical facilities at Penn State have not kept pace with the up-to-date research projects that have been generated at the University. How far along are your building plans?

A. That's certainly true. We are operating in facilities that are very old fashioned. For example, our poultry research program is conducted in facilities that are of 1930 vintage. You can't do good research or good Extension programming when people see the facilities are the same as their fathers and grandfathers operated in. We must also upgrade our dairy research facility and build a new agronomy facility. We have a major building program that must be done. The good news is that we have been able to get $13 million in the Capital Facilities Bill that was approved and signed by the Governor this past spring. And we have the prospect of getting more to match a similar appropriation in the 1985 Farm Bill. This farm bill appropriated $20 million to upgrade facilities of ag universities around the country.

Q. I'm interested in a statement you made recently where you said we need more cooperation between the ag colleges. I know there has been some friction between colleges in the past. It is probably a barrier we need to break down.

A. I do think we do, Everett, because we are in an era where we have inadequate resources to do everything. So we have to look at it in an innovative and perhaps a fresh way and think how we can most effectively utilitize those resources to address the really important issues. I think opportunities exist for cooperation in research and in Extension and probably in the area of training students. There is no logic, I believe, for adjacent states like New York, Ohio, Maryland and Pennsylvania to have research and Extension programs in a large way focusing on the same issues. I think we have got to look at what we do and make sure we are doing it very well. And also accept the fact that we are not going to be able to do some things. It's inconceivable to me that adjacent states feel they must have one of each when it comes to specialists on their college faculties. For example, we have two grape programs in New York and Pennsylvania. The labs are located 25 miles from each other in the western part of the states and there is virtually no cooperative effort between these two activities. In addition, we need to look at the way we have been doing Extension. Not that we have been doing it bad. But because of tight budgets, we must be innovative and share resources.

Q. What are some of the innovations Extension can incorporate into their program?

A. I think multi-county or regional efforts in cooperative Extension is a trend we will move to. In addition, we are moving away from as much one on one as we have had in the past. The reason we are able to move away from this is because of the advance we've made in communications. With the statewide computer network, other states look at our program with envy. We are unique with our computer system between county agents office. Let's put a computer in every county office. We curerently have about 250 units across the state. And I would expect in 10 years you will be tied into that network on your own farm. It will become a major way of dispensing information about growing crops, disease problems, how to deal with weeds and marketing forcastings. Home economics, family living and 4-H progams will also be included. It's going to become a tremendously viable communication network. Also video tapes will become a major way to disseminate information. Thirty percent of the households in this country have video capabilities. And it's estimated that in two years 60 percent of the households will have them. That's something everybody will have access to. And video tapes are inexpensive. And it's a great teaching tool. That's what Extension is–teaching.

Q. One of the notable changes in the Extension programs comes in the area of urban type education. Many production farmers think in light of the funding problems for Extension these urban city-type programs should be cut so we can have Extension address more time to agriculture itself. Is this the area we cut out first if funding is not available?

A. That is a very good question and one that there is not a terrible simple answer to. If you think about Extension as an education process (which I believe it is), and if you think about the fact that we are a land grant institution in Pennsylvania, I believe we have the responsiblity to educate in whatever appropriate ways possible to all people in the commonwealth. If you are in production agriculture, that education takes the traditional form of cooperative Extension. I think in the urban and suburban settings we have probably not had as effective or as active a program as we need to have in Extension. So I think Extension has a very important prominent roll to play in the nonrural settings. I often say that Extension has the responsibility to serve all 12 million people in Pennsylvania. But it's going to be in different ways. Because obviously we have a very different population density in those urban and suburban areas.

One of the exciting activities that we have seen in Philadelphia is a very rapidly developing and effective 4-H program. This is in Philadelphia County. Normally you think of 4-H as being related to the rural sector. But we got Extension staff down there that is very active and innovative. We do have and will continue to have some very good 4-H efforts. It ties to the urban gardening question. It ties to producing food. It ties to other agricultural issues. A term that is often used, which I think I am becoming more and more comfortable with, is urban agriculture. After all if you've got ornamental plantings around your house in a suburban or urban setting, it's the same kind of problems that the fellow that is producing corn in Lancaster County has in terms of disease, insects, weeds, nutritional problems and so on. Different plants. Slightly different environment. But those are agricultural problems. And I think we have a responsibility to work with them. I know in this my opinion is not a popular one with

Q. So we could say Extension in a way helps city and urban people become more aware of agriculture? Another area is the whole idea of textbooks, either giving an antiquated idea of agriculture or they give problem examples where agriculture is not in the text at all. Is there some way that we can get ag in the classroom through our textbooks? Is there some way Extension or Penn State itself can work on that?

A. I think there are ways that this can be done. I think this is certainly not one where all the ideas have been expressed. We all have to think creatively. The ag in the classroom concept makes a lot of sense to me in terms of getting in the hands of our science teachers examples and materials that they can utilitize in their classroom setting. For example in the food science area, there is a workbook that has been put together. It's made up of experiments for junior high school and high school level students that science teachers can utilize in their science laboratory. These are experiments on food. One has to do with the jellying phenomenon that occurs when you make jello. That's something that we all take for granted. But there is some very interesting chemistry involved there. One has to do with bread baking. And that's a very interesting process as well. So if we begin early, I think we can help students make that connection between the food that they eat and the interesting science behind it. And they will, then as they are looking at career opportunities and career possibilities, make that connection. And food science is in agriculture. The same thing can be said for some of the other fields in agriculture.

Q. So they pick up some of the ideas about agriculture by osmosis?

A. Yes. It's sort of by association. I think the word agriculture, quite honestly, except for those of us who are immersed in it, sometimes hurts us more than it helps us because of the narrow definition most people assign to it. Some are suggesting we ought to change the name of our college. I'm not about to jump into that one in my first year. But it's an interesting thought, because agriculture implies farming. It ought to be food in agriculture or agricultural sciences. Again the kids that are looking out there at a career, find it a bit misleading. Also don't forget the Governor's school for agriculture which we had for the first time this summer. That was a case where we had 65 of the brightest, young high school students from around the state and 28 or 29 of them came from one per each one of the intermediate units around the state. The other 35 or so came from across the state on a competitive basis. But in that five week period those kids had an opportunity to work with our faculty in laboratory settings, in field settings, in a whole variety of experiences. The enthusiasm it generates has come not only from farm kids where you would have known it would have been generated. But also for kids who came out of urban and suburban settings. I just had a letter last week from one of the people from Allegheny County talking about how they had formed a local alumni group for the school. They want to have an alumni get-together next year when the group is back. I think again we have been able to do something innovative.

Q. Let's jump a bit to the subject of biotechnology. Again it goes back to the production end of it. What ramifications do you see biotechnology having in agriculture? Whether it be in plants or dairy. It all has its implications on agriculture to some degree.

A. I honestly believe, Everett, that biotechnology is going to allow our producers, growers and processors to be more efficient in the long run. Now we are just at the beginning of time, if you will, as far as biotechnology is concerned. I think there are an infinite number of possibilities. For example, we now have the ability to move genetic information, pieces of genes, from one cell to another. That's simple biotechnology. The neat thing about that is that if you can identify what piece of a gene in a particular plant is responsible for resistance to a particular disease then you can transfer that gene into a plant that doesn't have that resistance. What that means is that you no longer have to spray for that disease. So this not only has the saving economically, but tremendously impacts environment. They are now breeding new varieties of fruits and vegetables and field crops with disease resistance built in. We've been breeding for disease resistance for a long time. But it's the old trial and error method. This one is resisted and this one isn't. And if we cross it maybe we'll get one. It's a very random type thing. But with biotechnology we have the techniques where we can identify that segment of the gene that's got that resistance in it. Then you can move it around into anything. You can move it from bacteria into plants into animals. That's a very exciting kind of thing. What that means is lower costs. And it's environmentally attractive. You can alter nutritional quality and so on. On the animal side. The work that's going on in our dairy and animal science department includes feeding growth hormone to pigs. What we are able to show is that we can produce leaner pork by the use of this growth hormone. You have much less fat and you don't have to change the feed. It doesn't alter the eating quality. And the consumer wants less fat. Let's face it. We do need to be thinking about what is attractive to the consumer, not what we think is good for agriculture. This is what biotechnology can do. And what that means then is that we can tailor make our products. Therefore, presumably make them more marketable. So I think it has tremendous marketing potential in agriculture.

Q. How would you assess the future of agriculture?

A. We have today in spite of all you hear, some incredible opportunities in the food agriculture and forestry sectors. I think we've just got to identify and define those sectors. Address them vigorously and not ring our hands about what has been or what might have been. Let's be positive. Seek out opportunities. A friend of mine said, "There are no problems. There are just opportunities." I think that's true in agriculture. Agriculture defined in a broad sense. The importance of research and Extension to identify and explore these opportunities is an incredible opportunity. But we are not going to make advances if we don't have those good research and Extension programs.

Eastern National Holstein Show Crowns Champions

HARRISBURG — The Eastern National Holstein Show concluded its two-day run last Friday with the top honors scattered to Vermont, Wisconsin, and New York.

Grand champion female honors went to Gary Darling's 4-year-old cow, Tybach Elevation Twink. "Winning a show of this caliber is always a pleasant victory," the Vermont Holstein breeder said.

The Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation daughter claimed the grand championship at last year's Central Championship Show. The champion classified EX-93 and produced over 25,000 pounds of milk as a 3 year old. Her next two dams classified Very Good and produced records over 18,000 pounds of milk.

Darling described the champion as "getting better with age." Although he has no present plans to flush her, he did receive inquires for embryos from visitors to the show from Holland, Argentina and Germany.

Judge Richard Lewis of Orient, Ohio, described the champion as "the greatest individual I've ever had the pleasure to place." He placed her over the reserve champion based on her size, scale, angularity, style and balance.

A Dreamstreet and United Holsteins 3-year-old entry stood in the reserve spot. Dennis Zimmerman bred the reserve champion, Valiant Agro Acres Clara.

Bertram Stewart, leadsman, notes that the Valiant daughter is out of the Pansy cow family from Agro Acres in Canada. She is backed by 10 generations of Very Good or Excellent dams. This pedigree is also one of the highest test pedigrees in history with her pedigree averaging a 4.5 test, according to Stewart. As a 2 year old the reserve champion produced 20,307 pounds of milk and scored VG-88.

Dreamstreet sweetened their successful day by adding their fourth consecutive premier exhibitor award and the overall herdsman award.

"I'm very pleased for the show staff. The herdsman award means as much as anything to me; it is indicative of the quality care the animals get at the shows and at home," said Frank Wood, owner of Dreamstreet Holsteins.

Pinehurst Holsteins followed their grand champion Holstein bull and Jersey female award from the day before with the premier breeder honor of the Holstein show. They first won the banner in 1976. Since that time they have reclaimed it six times.

In the youth show, Lewis switch the placings of judge Lee Majeskie from the Pennsylvania Junior All-American Show on Sept. 22. He granted Annie Rynd's 4-year-old cow an advantage in mammary system and placed her over Thomas McCauley's 5-year-old, Queen Star Sexy.

The Crawford County youth originally didn't plan to enter the show until her success in the Junior All-American Show. "This is my dream, I'm ecstatic," she said, smiling widely. She added, "I hope I can convince my parents to let me go to Louisville."

L and J Holstein took the best three females title.

To enter the best three females class, the bovine trio must be bred by one person. However that person must only own one of the three. Two years ago, Lylehaven bought the other two cows of the winning trio. Leroy Plance explained that the ruling change permitted a breeder to merchandise cattle and see how they do for someone else.

In the case of the winning three, Lylehaven Farms in Vermont owns two of the dam and daughter pair of L and J Conductor Christine, a 2 year old, and L and J Sexation Christmas Carol, a 4 year old. Leroy and Ida Jane own the third cow, 3-year-old L and J Apollo Sherri.

Carol won the Big E held in Massachusetts the previous week, Gary Darling's entry stood next to her in that show.

Leroy and Ida Jane Plance of Wellsboro maintain a rolling herd average of 20,700 pounds of milk with a BAA of 108.4 on 39 head. The classification breakdown includes 10 Excellents and 15 Excellent mammary systems.

To win the best three females title with a small herd is a prestigious honor. Some breeders regard this title more important than the grand championship. "We're still breeding the right kinda cow," Leroy observes in explaining the honor. Presently 23 of their 39 head carry the L and J prefix.

The Dr. Joe Eves award, annually awarded to the highest production of all breeds, went to Queens-Manor Holsteins entry, Cala Hill Kelly Ned Red. The Agro Acres Marquis Ned daughter produced a 5-year-old record of 34,614 pounds of milk and 1,361 pounds of fat.

Breed herdsman awards went to: Sycamore Meade Farm, Millersburg, Ayrshire; Top Acres Farm, Ohio, Brown Swiss; Carosa Guernseys, Cochranton, Guernsey; Dreamstreet and United Holsteins, Michigan, Holstein; Spring Valley Farm, Maryland, Jersey; and Honey Creek Farms, Ohio, Milking Shorthorn.

This year's All-American Show was larger than last year's show. A total of 1,331 head were shown this year compared to 1,320 last year. Pennsylvania exhibited 487 head in 1986 while in 1985 the number stood at 416. Entries came from 23 states for the week-long event, according to figures released by Donald Ace, chairman of the rules and regulations committee for the show.

The New York state herd claimed the top prize in the state herd division with their best eight cows.

Eastern Milk Producers Relocate

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative has purchased a new headquarters facility here, and will be operating out of it by mid-October, General Manager Michael Donovan announced.

The co-op's new home, located at 2401 Burnet Ave., "is slightly bigger and is a better building" than the current complex at 6567 Kinne Road, Donovan said.

"Plus," he added, "we were able to save the co-op money by buying the new building for less than what we sold the current complex for." The current headquarters includes two adjacent structures in the middle of a major shopping district.

Donovan said the co-op had been planning to renovate and link the two structures when the other building, formerly occupied by a division of Bristol Laboratories, "came on the market at the right price."

The Burnet Avenue building needs less work to get it ready for Eastern's 45 employees in Syracuse, which means, Donovan said, "we expect to save money refurbishing the building, and at the same time avoid disrupting the work areas during renovations."

Eastern has been located at the current Kinne Road site since 1969, when the co-op constructed the larger of the two structures.

USDA Buyout Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An estimated 12,900 head of dairy cattle were slaughtered in federally inspected plants during the week ending Sept. 13, as a result of the Dairy Termination Program, the U.S Department of Agriculture announced Wednesday.

This total includes all cows, heifers and calves identified as dairy animals designated for disposition in compliance with the program requirements.

The cumulative total of cattle slaughtered under the program from April 1 through Sept. 13 is an estimated 763,400 head.

The purchases of meat in addition to normal purchases are to help offset the effects of the DTP on the domestic meat market. The cumulative purchases, reported biweekly as of Sept. 20, total 297 million pounds.

Dairy cattle reported for export under the program for the period April 1 to Sept. 27 totaled an estimated 35,111 head. An estimated 1,188 were exported during the week ending Sept. 27.

Live cattle exported under the program are expected to increase as countries develop tenders to participate in the export enhancement program.

Holstein Club Tours Bedford County

BERLIN — The Somerset County Holstein Club recently toured three farms in Bedford County. Included on the tour were Singing Brook Farm of Imler, Burkett Fall of East Freedom and Fidelity Holsteins of Martinsburg.

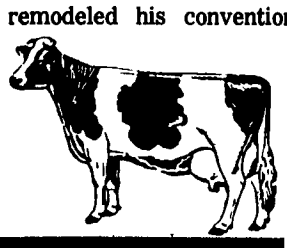
First stop for the 41 Holstein club members on the tour was Singing Brook Farm, home of the Obie Snider Family. Mike Fisher, assistant herdsman, conducted the tour. Obie farms 1,200 acres with his son Bruce. Their herd averages 18,000 pounds of milk on 150 registered Holsteins. The herd BAA stands at 105.8 with 22 Excellents which includes one classified at 94 points and a second at 95 points.

A rotary milking parlor and a ram manure system are used on the farm.

Burkett Fall Farms, home of the David Burkett Family, is home to 80 Holsteins maintaining a rolling herd average of 20,000 pounds of milk and 720 pounds of fat. The BAA stands at 105.6. Burketts also raise a herd of red and white Holsteins and polled cattle. Burkett Falls takes its name from a small water fall behind the barn.

The tour ended on a damp note at the Steve Hoover Farm, Fidelity Holsteins. Hoover recently remodeled his conventional tie-stall barn. His 44-head herd moved into the new facilities the day prior to the club's visit. This herd features many high indexing young cows and averages 21,600 pounds of milk and 782 pounds of fat. Some sires used in the herd include Arlinda Rotate, Pawnee Farm Arlinda Chief, Enhancer, Tradition and Bell.

Donald and Cheryl Glessner of Berlin chaired the tour.



Members of the Somerset Holstein Club gather in Steve Hoover's Barn. The Bedford County Farm was one of three stops included on the tour.

Horse 'Coaches' Steer To New Holland Beef Show Victory

BY JACK HUBLEY

NEW HOLLAND — Show judge Cheryl Fairbairn liked Reuben. She liked him enough to name him grand champion at Lancaster County 4-H Days this summer. And she still liked what she saw when the 1310-pound registered Angus made his way into the showring at the New Holland Fair on Thursday.

Up until sale time following the show, Reuben was owned by Kristin Chupp, a 15-year-old New Holland 4-H'er. The daughter of Barb and Larry Weaver, Kristin got her steer from Rally Farms in New York. But even though the steer's sire, Pine Drive Big Sky, is well-known for manufacturing winning show prospects, it could have been the jogging program that tipped the scale in his favor.

Reuben's "coach" was a horse named Indy that Kristin bought with the money she got from selling her reserve grand champion market lamb at Farm Show last year.

Chupp soon found that the horse could earn his room and board by keeping her three show steers in prize-winning trim. "She's learned how to herd them around the pasture," says the 4-H'er.

Just like people, though, not all steers take readily to a fitness regimen. "This one got the idea to start hiding in the barn," smiled Kristin.

After placing second to Chupp's steer at the Manheim Preview Show this summer, Nichole High's registered Angus named "Long Shot" did likewise at New Holland.

The reserve spot seems to be reserved for the daughter of Larry High and Shirley Burris of Lititz. Nichole took the same honor at the Junior Angus Preview Show in Massachusetts in August, at the Manheim Preview Show, again at the Ephrata Fair and finally at New Holland.

Nichole High's Angus steer named Long Shot wasn't such a long shot after all. He took reserve trophy.

Long Shot was a JR Bold Image son bred by Big Brook Farms of New Jersey. He was also a half-brother to the steer that topped the Pennsylvania Angus Breeders Show in 1985, so Long Shot undoubtedly wasn't all that long of a shot after all.

A big factor in placing well in a steer show is knowing how to make your animal look his best, and Nichole proved she was up to the task by following her show win with first-place honors in the show's fitting competition.

Folkers Continue Winning Ways

BY JACK HUBLEY

NEW HOLLAND — Since Lancaster County's fair season got underway in late August, it's been hard to find a hog show photo without a Folker in it.

Chad and Laura, the son and daughter of Tony and Edith Folker of New Holland, have proven to be serious threats in every show they've entered this year. The competition's only consolation has been that, with the passing of each fair, the Folker's herd of 26 Illinois-bred Hampshire-Duroc pigs has gotten smaller.

Although 12-year-old Chad has managed to exhibit most of this year's champions, this week his big sister stole the spotlight by showing her 235-pound entry to the New Holland Fair's grand championship. Laura went undefeated on Thursday, taking top honors in the market hog show, as well as in the junior division of both showing and fitting competitions.

Knowing how to present her pigs to the judge has been the 14-year-old 4-H'er's forte this year. In four out of the five showmanship competitions that she entered she came out on top.

Chad didn't have a bad day either, showing two of the grand champion's littermates to the top spot in both the lightweight and mediumweight divisions. Thus far the younger member of this team has chalked up an impressive record, beginning the year with reserve grand champion honors at Farm Show and taking the same title at the Ephrata Fair. His two grand champion wins included the Elizabethtown Fair and the Lancaster County 4-H Roundup.

Judging the show was Chester County extension agent, Cheryl Fairbairn, who singled out a Hampshire-Yorkshire crossbred pig shown by Heidi Fisher for reserve grand champion honors. The daughter of William and Dee Fisher of East Earl, Heidi is always a top New Holland contender, with two grand champion wins to her credit in the nine years she has shown there.

In this year's show she swapped titles with Laura Folker, who took reserve last year.

Heidi's 243-pound entry was bred by her father, who managed Stauffer Homestead Farm until August of this year. "Dad didn't think they were that good," said Heidi, referring to the eight show pigs that her father had bred at the East Earl-based feeder pig operation.

Heidi also placed third in showmanship and fourth in the fitting competition.

Hog show results are listed below.

Heidi Fisher followed last year's grand champion win with reserve honors this year. Judge was Cheryl Fairbairn (right).

Fair Sells 4-H Entries

NEW HOLLAND — Little more than an hour after the New Holland Fair announced its swine and beef champions, the market show entries were on the auction block at New Holland Sales Stables.

First across the block was Kristin Chupp's grand champion steer that sold for $2,630 after Stoltzfus Meats of Intercourse offered the final bid of $2 a pound.

The reserve champion, shown by Nichole High, sold to Bird-In-Hand Restaurant, who offered $1.50 a pound for a total price of $1,980.

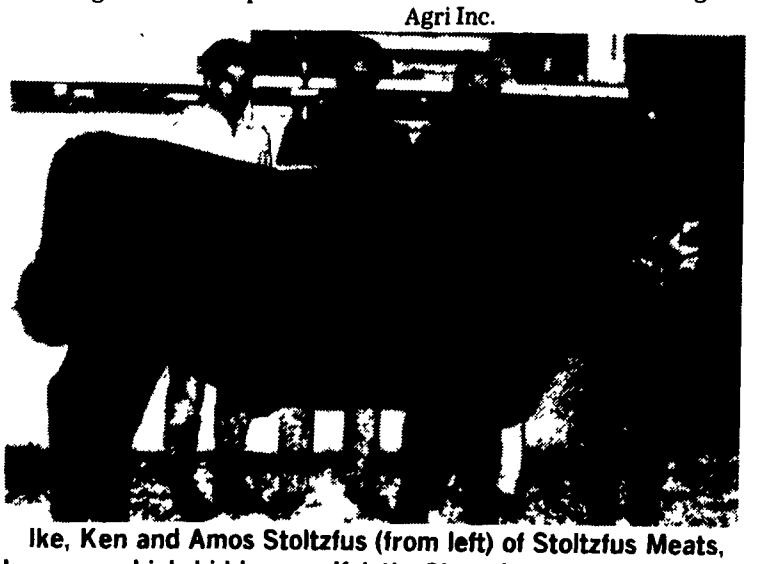
The show's 16 steers sold for an average of 84 cents a pound, not including the two champions.

The sale's most enthusiastic buyer was Willie the Butcher, who went home with five of the steers sold.

In the hog sale that followed the steers, Doug Clemens of Hatfield Packing was top bidder for Laura Folker's grand champion. Hatfield's $4 bid brought the price of the show's top hog to $940.

The show's reserve champion, exhibited by Heidi Fisher, went for $729 when Yoder's Market offered the top bid of $3 a pound. The hog sale averaged 94 cents a pound, not including the champions.

The sale's most active buyers included Hatfield Packing and Agri Inc.



Ike, Ken and Amos Stoltzfus (from left) of Stoltzfus Meats, Inc., were high bidders on Kristin Chupp's grand champion steer that went for $2 a pound.

Chad and Laura Folker have managed to walk away with champion or reserve honors in every county hog show they've entered this year.

McGinnis Named Man Of The Year

MADISON, Wis. – W. Charles McGinnis, a well-known Jersey breeder and dairy promotion leader from Mountville, S.C., has been selected as the recipient of World Dairy Expo's 1986 Man of the Year Award. The Man of the Year is cited for his contributions to the dairy industry and must be a dairy farmer whose main source of income is derived from the farm.

McGinnis is a self-made man who has come to the forefront in virtually every organization in which he has been involved. A native of Charlotte, N.C., McGinnis received a degree in dairy husbandry from North Carolina State University. He was a member of the dairy judging team and president of the Agriculture Club and Animal Industry Club. After graduation, Charlie joined the American Jersey Cattle Club and spent seven years as a staff member of that organization from 1957 to 1964, first as Northeast Area Representative, then as Program Director of National All-Jersey, Inc. and finally as Director of Field Services of the AJCC-NAJ.

In 1979, McGinnis and his wife, Frances, purchased an 1,800 acre ranch at Mountville, S.C., known as White Plains ranch. Today he farms 2,300 acres of land and owns 1,000 registered Jerseys, over 500 in milk with an average production of 11,500M, 600F. His former farm, Kinards in Newberry, S.C., purchased in 1970 from C. T. Smith, was then leased. McGinnis was manager of Sunbeam Farm, a famous 300-cow Jersey herd in Cherryville, N.C., from 1964 to 1970.

During his stay in North Carolina, he was president of that state's Purebred Dairy Cattle Association and secretary of the North Carolina Jersey Breeders Association. Cattle, representing the efforts of his breeding and management, have been sold to breeders in many states through prominent sales; including Sybil Surville Jesse, EX-96, twice National Grand Champion consigned to the first Newberry Foundation Sale.

Bulls from his herd have been sold to five AI organizations. McGinnis has actively participated in the foreign market, selling to Central and South America and also to India and Pakistan. McGinnis has also been very active in dairy cattle judging on state, regional and national levels with judging duties taking him to 21 states from coast to coast and to Central America.

A vigorous promoter of the Jersey breed for nearly three decades, McGinnis has served the Jersey breed well with six years as a member of their Board of Directors and four years as president of the American Jersey Cattle Club. He also has held numerous other positions within that organization including membership on the type advisory committee, chairman of the All-American Show and Sale, and chairman of the Newberry Foundation Sale. McGinnis also served three years as president of the South Carolina Jersey Cattle Club and represented the Jersey breed on the National PDCA Board of Directors.

McGinnis assisted in the development and served as chairman of the National Cooperative Dairy Herd Improvement Program Policy Board, which establishes policy and oversees the national testing program. He is a past president of National DHIA and was chairman of their Outlook Committee. McGinnis is well known and respected by dairy farmers, agribusiness and government leaders. He has made, and continues to have, a significant impact on all aspects of the dairy industry. McGinnis was an original appointee to the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board and was reappointed to a three-year term in 1985.

His civic activities have included Rotary and Kiwanis. He is Master Mason and a member of the Board of Deacons of his church. Honors bestowed on McGinnis include South Carolina's Dairy Leadership Award, University of Georgia School of Veterinary Medicine's Distinguished Service Award and the 1986 Distinguished Service Award from the American Jersey Cattle Club.

Dairy Winners Posted At Reading Fair

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Berks County Correspondent

READING — The dairy shows at the recent Reading Fair featured many repoeat winners along with some first time champions.

Winning the grand championship title of the Holstein show the past three years at the Reading Fair, Cristie, a 6-year-old daughter of Lawcrest Marvex, captured the top spot again. Owned by Penny Bicksler, Richland R1, the EX-91, aged cow "is always fresh at the right time for the fair," stated Penny's mother about the champion. The grand champion was also bred by Penny Bicksler.

Reserve champion of the Holstein show went to Diane Troutman, Myerstown, R1, who took the championship in the youth division while Doris Stump, Bernville, R1, received reserve champion in the youth division.

The Ayrshire breed was topped by the 3-year-old entry of Mark Price, Douglassville, R2. Conebella H.C. Petulia is a daughter of Sycamore Meade Hi Champ and has been a constant winner for Price. The reserve championship went to James Blatt, Robesonia, R1.

Tammy Balthaser and her brother, Randy, took the top spots in the Brown Swiss competition. Wind Mill Titan Miracle, a 3 year old, featured a well-blended fore udder, according to the judge, to top the other entries. Randy Balthaser's 2-year-old, Wind Mill Balison Gilda, teamed with his calf to bring Randy the reserve grand as well as the junior championship ribbons.

The Guernsey show was dominated by Clayton Snyder's senior 2-year-old, Snyder's Fayvor Pauleta. The reserve championship went to Susan Hollenbach, Bernville, R1.

Irish Creek Jerseys, Mohrsville, R1, topped the Jersey show with Irish Creek MC Madaline, a 3 year old first time champion. The reserve grand champion and youth championship went to Denise Hoch, Oley, R2.

Class winners of the dairy show and champions of the Dairy Goat show follow.

National Dairy Shrine Inducts Doty Remsberg At Expo

1955. With auction sales in his blood, he managed to juggle sales, shows and dairying for 10 years, until he sold his own herd in 1961 when he graduated from the Missouri Auction School in Kansas City. He launched the business, that his son, Denny, continues to manage today. "This would have been his 31st year" in the business, explained Helen.

Doty Remsburg was involved with the promotion and support of the dairy industry throughout his life. He inspired many young 4-Hers as acting assistant county agent in 1950, and served as a leader in his own community for over 30 years. He served as president and vice president of the Frederick County Holstein Association from 1952 to 53, and he was appointed by then Governor McKeldin to the State Fair Board in 1955, which he served for five years.

Elected as a delegate to the National Holstein Convention many times, he was also named Frederick County's Outstanding Young Farmer and one of four Marylanders to receive the 4-H Alumni Award in 1956.

Remsburg served as an officer of the Maryland Holstein Association for several terms. He was elected director in 1958-60; assistant secretary, 1960-62 and 1965-67; secretary, 1962-65; vice president, 1968-70; and president, 1970-72.

It was during his term as president of the Maryland Association that he suggested that the Holstein Association of the five states in the Southeast territory combine their breed publications into one. In October, 1972, the first issue of the Southeastern Holstein News was published. Remsburg was elected as president of the magazine and served in that capacity until his death.

Remsburg's influence in the cattle industry was far reaching. His impact was felt worldwide through his exportation of cattle by air and sea to Venezuela, Puerto Rico, Iran, Santo Domingo and Spain.

In 1980, the sale manager arranged for the Maryland State Holstein Convention Sale to be held at the Sheraton Inn, in Frederick — in the ballroom. A "standing room only" crowd assembled to witness the unusual event. The next year, Doty Remsburg managed the National Holstein Sale at the Convention Center in Baltimore, where a record dollar volume of $1,250,150 was bid on 106 head for an average of $11,748.58.

A. Doty Remsburg was honored posthumously with induction into the National Dairy Shrine this week. The above photo hangs in the Maryland Dairy Shrine and was originally taken when Remsburg was chairman of the sale committee for the 1981 National Convention.

In 1981, Doty Remsburg was inducted into the Maryland Dairy Shrine. There his portrait hangs among other notables of the dairy industry in Maryland, and a biographical record is available for visitors to enjoy. The Shrine is housed in a room of the Sire Power office in Frederick, Maryland.

Today, Remsburg Sale Service is going strong under the management of Denny; associate Norman Hill, who became involved in the organization almost 20 years ago; daughter, Lois Skeen, who "dabbles in it," and Helen. The family planned to attend the ceremony and presentation of the award certificate which preceded the two-day World Dairy Expo of the Central National Holstein Association on Oct. 3 and 4.

Helen Remsburg said that her husband would have been "rather humbled" by the recognition "but honored, I'm sure."

The Oct. 30, 1984 edition of The Frederick News Post gave an account of Remsburg's life and sudden death at 60 years. "People loved Doty Remsburg. He was cut from a solid chunk of rugged Americana. His voice was gruff and his manner down to earth; but he was genteel, a man who enjoyed doing for others...a leader of international reknown in his work with Holstein dairy animals."

Bloomsburg Fair Blossoms With Livestock Champions

BY HELEN KELCHNER
Columbia Co. Correspondent

BLOOMSBURG — The Bloomsburg Fair's grand champion steer set an all-time record at this year's sale, selling for $5.05 per pound and topping the previous record of $2.15 by nearly three dollars.

Nine-year-old Heather Hummel of Selinsgrove got a big boost to her educational fund by netting nearly $5,800 for her grand champion purebred Angus. Larry Moore from Baymor Pet Feed, Cressona, purchased the steer in the spirited bidding that edged our Hoss' Steak and Seafood House.

Heather is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Hummel and a member of the Snyder County 4-H Club. Her parents are both leaders in the group.

The buyer from Hoss' settled for reserve champion owned and bred by Eddie Chapman of Benton. Chapman's steer netted over $3,600 by bringing a bid of $2.75 per pound.

Eddie Chapman is a member of the Columbia County 4-H Club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Chapman who are active 4-H club leaders. The Chapman family raises Angus. They promote the breed through research that results in high quality beef.

Bob Houston, Columbia County Extension agent said the record high prices were almost overwhelming and demonstrated that the business community was encouraging the 4-H members to stay in the beef business.

Area hospitals will benefit from other steers purchased by local businesses.

Market Lambs

Todd Laudenslager of Dalmatia, RD1, saw his grand champion market lamb bring a record $3.45 per pound, netting $427.80. John Fritz of Sunset Ice Cream Company of Williamsport purchased the lamb from the Northumberland County 4-H'er.

Kurt Brown's reserve champion lamb brought $265.50 and was purchased by Breech's Ag Products, Danville. Brown is from Klingerstown.

Hog Show

Even though the hog barns were full to capacity at the Bloomsburg Fair, only two exhibitors entererd the competition.

Swine exhibitors can reap some benefits from sales of breeding stock during fair week, a fact that brings hogmen back year after year. But, generally speaking, the hog show has had its setbacks in recent years. A pseudorabies breakout kept swine away from the fair several years. Also, many hogmen find the cost of trucking to the fair a burden.

Dairy Show

Two Millville-area youngsters took top honors in both the open Holstein dairy show and the 4-H Holstein show at the Bloomsburg Fair.

In the largest open dairy show of the fair, Corey Wolff, 13, Millville, showed the grand champion female and his brother, Ben, 11, showed the reserve champion female.

Sons of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Wolff, the boys repeated their grand and reserve champion victories in the 4-H competition. Both are members of the Columbia County 4-H Dairy Club.

More than 50 youths from five counties participated in the 4-H show, which was judged by Neil Bowen, a cattle producer from Wellsboro.

Other dairy show winners included:

- Ayrshire: grand champion, Brad Shultz, Danville; reserve champion, Marilyn Kiess, Jersey Shore.
- Brown Swiss: grand champion, Frank T. Miller, Tamaqua; reserve champion, Kyle W. Brown, Klingerstown.
- Guernsey: grand champion, Rhonda K. Peterman, Muncy; reserve champion, Susan Moslock, Danville.
- Jersey: grand champion, Timothy Landis, Herndon; reserve champion, Wanda Derr, Muncy.

County Spun Sheep Festival Set For Oct. 11

LOGANVILLE — Country Spun Sheep Farm will host visitors for a day of live country music, good food, country crafts and a full palette of "sheepish" activities at their Loganville location Oct. 11.

World champion sheep shearer Dave Green will shear Pennsylvania's hardest working sheep. All the farm's wool is spun into Country Spun 100 percent wool yarns.

This fall the farm's first line of classic women's sweaters and vests will make their debut. Both yarn and sweaters will be sold in the farm retail shop along with sheepskins, shearling slippers, novelties for children and much more.

Spinning, weaving, felting and machine knitting will be demonstrated by local fiber artists who will offer their work for sale. A hearty lunch will be available at the farm's country cafe and patrons will be serenaded by well known country music artists Don and Pam Geiselman.

A sheepdog demonstration will be provided in the afternoon. The fesival will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Raindate is Oct. 12 from noon to 5 p.m.

Admission to the Country Sheep Festival is free, but there will be a $1 per car parking fee.

While in the area, visitors may want to stop by Brown's Farm Market, just a half mile south of Country Spun farm on the Old Trail.

To celebrate fall at their new farm market and orchard bake shop, the Brown's will offer visitors wagon rides in the orchard, a chance to bob for apples and the opportunity to take the kids' pictures with pumpkin people.

Conversations with a resident clown, samplings of fresh cider and treats from the bake shop will round out a day in the Pennsylvania countryside.

USDA Approves Disaster Loans

LANCASTER — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has approved low-interest Economic Emergency loans for farmers in southeastern Pennsylvania who suffered losses from high winds and hail on Aug. 10, according to a spokesman from Congressman Robert Walker's office.

Farmers whose cropland sustained losses of 30 percent or greater may borrow amounts up to $100,000 at 5 percent. The loan rate for amounts higher than this is 8 percent. However, only farmers who are unable to obtain credit elsewhere are eligible for the loans, said Patrick Freeman of the Farmers Home Administration, the agency handling loan applications.

Under the program, farmers in Lancaster and all contiguous counties are eligible, said Freeman.

According to a damage assessment report, Lancaster County sustained $3.8 million in damages stemming from the Aug. 10 storms. Crops destroyed included corn, tobacco, soybeans and hay. Ten farm homes and 25 buildings were also damaged.

Farmers seeking loans should apply at their county FmHA office.

Lebanon Manure Management Day Set For Oct. 16

LEBANON — Hoover Farms will be the site of the Lebanon County Extension Service's Manure Management Field Day on Oct. 16, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Participants will view a corn plot where manure nutrient management research is underway. There will be demonstrations of manure spreader and spreader truck calibration, and the county's free manure spreading service will be outlined.

Other events include a tour of the Hoover's dairy and beef manure storage system and a demonstration of the Mobile Nutrient Lab.

The field day, including lunch, is free. Registration is required by Oct. 10.

Hoover Farms is located at the intersection of Routes 322 and 934.

University of Md. Receives Kellogg Grant For Museum Exhibit

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The University of Maryland has received from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation a grant of $987,864 to design, develop, and construct a museum exhibit titled "The Search for Life: Agricultural Science in the Twentieth Century."

The exhibit will be designed to show American consumers how agricultural research benefits their pocketbooks at the grocer's checkout, their health, and their lifestyles.

It will occupy approximately 3,300 square feet and is scheduled to open in 1987, the centennial year of the Hatch Act in which Congress set up the network of federally-funded, state-run agricultural experiment stations in the United States.

Initially, the exhibit will travel to American cities. After 1987, it will be permanently housed in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C.

In addition to the University of Maryland's Agricultural Experiment Station — the university's agricultural research component — the project team for the exhibit will include scientists from other universities and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, staff of the Smithsonian Institution, and the New York design studio of Peter Wexler.

"The primary focus of this exhibit is on the biochemical revolution, the contribution that science makes to agriculture and, through agriculture, to American well-being," says Dr. Raymond J. Miller, vice president of agricultural affairs at the University of Maryland.

Adds designer Peter Wexler: "In this biochemical revolution, genetics, growth, and disease control are the principal subjects in a story of how agricultural scientists are coming to understand life in terms of evolution against stress."

The exhibit will be divided into three sections, based on a historical transition: the first section will show visitors the tools and research of scientists at the turn of this century; the second section will focus on the period 1940-1970 during which researchers Crick and Watson set the scientific world on its heels with their portrayal of the double-helix strands of DNA, the genetic message carrier of life; the third and final section deals with the period 1970 and beyond, with an emphasis on genetic engineering.

"When visitors exit the exhibit, they will see dwarf trees, computers at work, and other tools of modern agricultural research," says Dr. G. T. Sharrer, curator of the Smithsonian's division of agriculture and natural resources.

"They will see the work of Nobel laureates in agricultural science. And, if they ask what the food source of the twenty-first century will be, they will know that it will be discovered through research," Sharrer adds.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

The business of farming usually presents us with some alternatives when a decision must be made. A choice of sires and AI studs, several veterinarians on call, feed mills, dealers, and even banks, all clutter up the farm driveway competing for our attention and business. Some of us are even lucky enough to have more than one dairy co-op after our milk, usually at the price set by Federal Orders.

Well, choices are not so hard to make when the range is from excellent to pretty good. But when the choices range from risky to downright disaster, they are not so easy. The really tough choice is when it is an all-or-nothing one.

The one that is facing every dairy farmer right now is whether to go along with the Regional Cooperative Marketing movement that is gaining momentum in New England, New York, and eastern Pennsylvania.

For nearly a year now, producers from Maryland to Maine have been whipping together a plan for what is called 'over-order pricing' of milk. The movement has recently gained momentum in the northeast, with the advent of the Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Agency, comprised of Order 4 cooperatives. When the merger is complete, it will have the power and impact of the entire Federal Order system in the Northeast, from Order 1 in New England, Order 2 in New York, and Order 4 in Pennsylvania and nearby sections. Some sections of Order 2 producers have yet to make up their mind to cooperate.

This movement is not merely an attempt to out-guess or out-fox the Federal pricing system. It can be a legal and united effort to gain a more equitable price for our valuable product when the demand for the product increases, rather than accept whatever is offered by an arbitrary formula for pricing.

With an all-or-nothing approach, meaning that all the producers are represented on the negotiating board, not just some of the more aggressive leaders, negotiations are bound to bring results. I believe that it is one case where the only choice may be between hanging together, or hanging separately.

We may be seeing a perfect example of what should be cooperation between Cooperatives in the Northeast. The Grange, Pennsylvania Farmers Association, and The Pennsylvania Farmers Union have all endorsed the idea and are appointing representatives to the state steering committee.

County committees will be appointed to share representation and ideas. The very survival and continuation of a prosperous and viable industry may be at sake. The era of complete independence for an individual dairyman is nearly over. Single-minded self-reliance is a blessed attribute for the one who can afford it, but when we are all competing against our neighbor, it can bring disaster for all of us.

The basic idea of over-order pricing is to promote the orderly control of milk supplies in times of peak demand. Milk handlers are highly in favor of balancing the supply of milk between peaks and valleys of supply and demand. It's the only way they can justify the extra expense of maintaining full processing capacity. Closed plants or unused equipment and labor do not make money for either the independent processors or farmer owned cooperatives.

This may be one time that you as an independent farmer can become an important link in the solid chain of events that will weld the dairy industry together into a prosperous whole. Read the "Milk Market News" column in last weeks Lancaster Farming. Check the details with your milk handler or farm organization and then help to make it an ALL for one choice. The only alternative may be an all-for-nothing choice.

HPI Seeks Aid For Cameroon Farmers

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. - Dr. James DeVries, African Director for Heifer Project International, the U.S. based, nonprofit development organization, has announced that he is studying ways to provide assistance to displaced farmers from the Cameroon Lake Nyos tragedy in restocking badly needed livestock. HPI's base of operations in Cameroon is located at Bamenda, only 40 minutes from the disaster site.

Reports coming out of Cameroon from HPI representatives estimated that as many as 1,700 people and 10,000 cattle, goats and sheep died when poisonous gases poured from the volcanic lake and enveloped the pastoral countryside. HPI's Cameroon representative, Charles Talbott is currently working with the Cameroon Ministry of Livestock and the Provincial Governor's Office to conduct a census of animal losses by people who survived the disaster.

According to Talbott, "Right now it looks as if 2,000 to 3,000 farmers and pastoralists, people who totally live off grazing livestock, will be displaced from the Nyos area because of the danger of recurrent gas releases. For most farmers, their livestock represent their life savings and these farmers have lost all of their livestock."

With an average annual income of only $720 per family, the majority of farmers would never have the resources to replace their livestock, but without them they have no hope of being self supporting. A native cow in Cameroon costs the equivalent of about $200 U.S. while sheep and goats cost $50 each. Farmers usually tend herds which have been perpetually handed down through family lines for generations. When disaster strikes a single farmer, relatives and friends usually help by providing seed stock. In the Lake Nyos situation, this kind of help is impossible.

Heifer Project International has worked in Cameroon for 10 years setting up small animal livestock programs with poor farmers. Working with local organizations, HPI has also been instrumental in establishing an animal research station near Bamenda and distributing livestock to poor farmers in that area.

Cut Feed Costs

The time to ensile corn will soon be here, and this is a good time to focus on cutting feed costs. One way to do this is to add anhydrous ammonia to corn silage at time of ensiling.

In addition to being an excellent preservative, ammonia is also one of the most economical sources of protein for the cow. Applied at the rate of seven pounds per ton, it can elevate the protein content of 65 percent moist silage from 8 percent up to a level of about 13 percent.

Anhydrous ammonia is a non-protein nitrogen which cows can convert to protein. Corn silage and hay crop forages normally contain some NPN, and the rumen microflora need a source of readily available nitrogen such as NPN or highly soluble protein. However, excess levels can be toxic to the cow.

Thus, ammonia must be applied uniformly and at the proper rate. Moisture content of the silage should be between 60 percent and 70 percent. Cows should be acclimated to treated silage gradually over a period of two to three weeks. Rations must be balanced properly.

Fire Destroys Egg Storage Shed

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

HEIDLERSBURG — Over 25 fire companies from Adams and Cumberland Counties and Carroll County Maryland responded to an early morning fire at the Pennsylvania Quality Egg Farm, just south of Heidlersburg, Thursday, Sept. 25. The fire was discovered at about 3:15 a.m. by a truck driver who was attempting to make a pick-up at the 75,000-square-foot egg storage shed.

The storage shed was totally engulfed when the first fire company arrived at 3:30 a.m. Since the building was constructed with double tin walls, few flames were evident from the outside, but when firefighters cut through the walls, the flames shot through and containment to this one building became a priority. Their efforts were hampered by the lack of water, so they resorted to digging a trench around the burning building and keeping the side walls wet.

The storage facility contained both dry and cold storage for thousands of cartons. The cause of the fire is still not known. This is the second major fire at this farm in less than two years.

The second fire in two years gutted an egg storage shed at Pennsylvania Quality Egg Farm on Sept. 25.

Dairy Regulations Revamped

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has revamped sections of the state's milk and dairy products regulations, adopting major revisions designed to benefit consumers, producers and food processors and manufacturers.

Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb said the new rules will help Pennsylvania to maintain its position as a leading dairy state and encourage the development of new products. "It is essential that our rules and regulations establish the best climate for buyer and seller," he added.

Grubb said the amendments to the regulations dealing with Milk and Dairy Products Definitions and Standards and to the regulations on Milk Sanitation Standards will accomplish four main goals:

• Encourage the development of new dairy-related food products through the introduction of temporary marketing permits. The permits will allow manufacturers to test market new items while protecting their trade secrets and at the same time enable the Agriculture Department to determine that there is no consumer deception or unfair competition.

• Establish a definition for foods that will be classified "artificial" dairy products because they do not fit the state and federal standards for dairy products.

• Improve milk quality through a one-third reduction in the number of somatic cells permitted in milk that is marketed.

• Set classifications for more than 70 different varieties of true cheeses made from both pasteurized and raw milk. The regulation also specifies that cheese made from raw milk must be aged for 60 days before public sale to assure the culture develops sufficiently to inhibit disease-producing bacteria.

In addition, the regulations, which became effective Sept. 6, adopt a number of federal standards and classifications for dairy related foods and set guidelines for their production and resale.

Grubb said the changes reflect input from the agricultural community and the dairy industry.

The provision for temporary marketing permits, which ordinarily will be good for periods of up to one year, was prompted by the food industry's desire to test market a growing number of new products that do not fit the traditional classifications for dairy items, according to G. William Fouse, director of the state Agriculture Department's Bureau of Foods and Chemistry.

He cited the recent development of new spreads that cannot be classified as either butter ot margarine.

"The department is attempting to maintain order in the marketplace while encouraging innovation and the development of new products," he explained.

The regulation establishing a definition for artificial dairy products will also encourage new products that will benefit the agriculture community as well as the consumer, Fouse said.

At the same time, it will allow the state to protect consumers from the mislabeling of products that do not fit the standard identity of true dairy products. The department's regulation conforms with those recently adopted by other states and the federal government, according to Fouse.

Fouse said the reduction of allowable somatic cells in milk from 1.5 to 1 million per milliliter is necessary for the marketing of Pennsylvania milk in other states. He said the action should encourage better herd sanitation practices.

Deadline Extended

HARRISBURG — A new deadline of Oct. 31 has been set for local dairy promotion groups to seek matching money for January to June 1987 promotions, according to Don Duncan, Advisory Board Chairman of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

Duncan, a Robesonia dairyman, said the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program originally announced an Oct. 13 cutoff date for applications. However, new guidelines adopted by the Board in August have required a switch in plans for some local committees, he noted.

Future grants will be limited to milk producer organizations or to local, non-profit committees supervised by dairymen, Duncan said.

Also, funds will be awarded on a 50-50 matching basis. This includes capital investments. "Profits from such investments must be used for future dairy promotions," Duncan said.

According to Duncan, "the new guidelines are due to limited funds and an overwhelming demand." A full $35,000 in matching money will be available for the first six months of 1987, he said and an equal amount for the second half of the year.

Local promotions groups have been advised of the October 31 deadline and the new guidelines.

"Others should contact Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's Cindy Weimer for the complete guidelines before applying," Duncan said.

Cindy Weimer can be contacted through the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 Cameron Street, Harrisburg, Pa. 17101-9408, or by calling (717) 787-6903.

Both admission and parking are free. Visitor parking for this festival will be on Joanna Furnace grounds.

Visitors will be able to enjoy traditional apple foods prepared by HCV as well as a number of local civic and church organizations. The Hay Creek Apple Festival is a casual event and visitors are urged to dress casually in order to take part in the festivities.

A hearty "working man's" breakfast starts the day. This all-you-can-eat meal consists of apple pancakes, syrup, apple juice and coffee. It will be served from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m.

From 10 a.m. on a comprehensive menu of the following will be served: chicken pot pie, homemade bread, applesauce, mulled apple cider, apple fritters, apple dumplings, schnitz and knepp, apple pies, apple tarts, candy apples, apple brown betty, applesauce cake and apple jelly. Famous Hay Creek Apple Butter will also be available. Most of these foods will be made from "scratch" right in the Joanna Furnace kitchen.

At 10 a.m., judging will be held in the HCV Apple Dessert Contest. Categories include: apple cakes, apple pies, apple breads and muffins, and apple desserts. One grand prize of $50 will be awarded overall. First, second and third prize ribbons will be awarded in each of the four categories. This year's judges are Mary Jo Dodge and Marge Nester, home economics teachers in the Reading School District, and Mary Jacobs, a former home economics teacher. Other judges will be announced later.

In addition to the food, a flea market will be held along with numerous old-time games. The entire family will be able to join in games and events that were common during the time that Joanna Furnace was in blast. Visitors can participate in board games such as checkers, mill game, parchesee; or quoits or more active old-time games. Families can even take part in building scarecrows.

For those interested in the historic aspects of Joanna Furnace, an introductory video will be shown continuously all day long. Archaeologists will be working at the charcoal house and will be available to answer questions about the research and restoration currently underway.

At 2 p.m. two tractor events will take place. Numerous classes of "slow tractor races" and "quick start" races will be on going. Anyone interested in bringing a tractor and joining in the various events should contact John Fleming, (215) 582-4938 for more information.

The Hay Creek Valley Apple Festival will be held at Historic Joanna Furnace 3 miles north of Morgantown on PA Route 10. Raindate for severe weather conditions only will be Sunday, Oct. 12.

HCV is a non-profit organization and net proceeds are used to support objectives of the organization, a primary objective being the restoration of the Joanna Furnace Plantation.

Holstein Assoc. Breaks Ground For New Barn

the Susquehanna River's east shore, initial improvements focused on remodeling the first floor of the capacious, stone bank barn into holding pens. The first large pole barn, with an office area, was added in 1979. A second pole barn, which housed the 1980 Pittsburgh convention sale animals, was relocated to the farm.

While a high-priced U.S. dollar had reined in the cattle export business during recent years, the dollar's leveling, plus renewed governmental interest in boosting U.S. exports, are combining to make American cattle a commodity in demand. PHA's latest addition puts members in the position of owning the largest such facility in the East, and possibly in the country, to serve this specialized export trade.

"Under the new Export Enhancement Program, our government is subsidizing the cost of livestock to boost export business" explains Nichol. "If a foreign buyer can buy heifers for $800 from our competition countries, and we need $1,000, our government will subsidize the $200 difference to encourage export activity."

Nichol anticipates a continued brisk business in the cattle exporting market, since new countries are continually developing an interest in better breeding cattle, and a shortage of high quality livestock exists in international markets.

"We now have the capacity to handle a full boat load of heifers, or about 500 bred heifers at a thousand pounds," says Nichol. "That gives us the increased possibilities of loading out ships from Philadelphia or Baltimore."

A planned lengthening of the runway at Harrisburg International, which is located only two road miles from the farm's entrance, will further enhance PHA's exporting position.

"If we fly cattle by 747's they have to go out of JFK Airport in New York," Nichol adds. "The runway here just isn't long enough for safely handling a loaded plane that size."

However, the Brazilian six-plane-shipment will be loaded on the Harrisburg tarmac, since they will be sent on the smaller Boeing 707. That eliminates the long tractor-trailer haul to JFK, and cuts a few hours from a long, tiring trip for the cattle.

With a decade of experience behind them, Holstein planners of the new facility, working with the construction expertise of the Henry S. Lapp firm, White Horse, were able to add features that enhance cattle well-being and ease of handling large numbers.

The use of individual head-catch gates will eliminate some of the constant herding through chutes of animals being tested to meet the rigid health requirements imposed by many importing countries. Some countries require animals to pass the testing for such exotic diseases as anaplasmosis, blue tongue or avian tuberculosis not once, but twice.

Feed troughs which separate holding pens have been built a bit wider than usual, preventing animals on either side from being able to touch each other, another cattle health and quarantine innovation. And, a load-out alley the full length of the new facility means a pen of heifers can be moved from any of the several lots with no disturbance to the others.

The farm is an official federal quarantine facility, and used for assembly of not only PHA shipments, but those of other exporters as well. Holstein-Friesian Services, exports arm of the national Holstein Association, is a regular user of the farm for assembling shipments. And, Heifer Project International, a branch of Church World Service, often has livestock in the testing process in PHA's barns.

Howard Weiss is the manager of the farm, a Dauphin County Holstein breeder with plenty of experience in handling cattle. While he occasionally helps with selection of export animals, the bulk of Weiss' time centers on the care of the animals at the facility, from perhaps as few as a dozen or two to full shipments of several hundred, and upkeep of the growing facility.

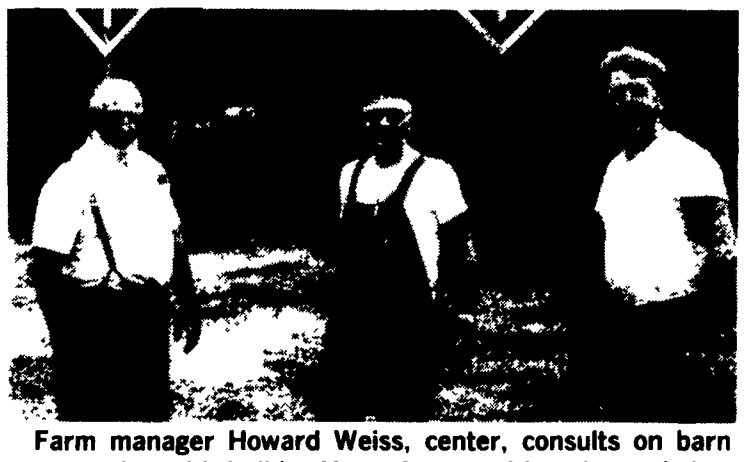
In past years, however, Weiss has accompanied cattle to Hungary and Italy, and is often one of the last persons on hand to see a shipment off at the runway. He's milked cows by hand, just before their departure for a distant country, fed baby calves, helped maneuver grown bulls into cargo pens, and even kept an eye on a buffalo during his trip with PHA cattle to Hungary.

"It had been donated to a zoo," he chuckles, remembering the bulky livestock passenger.

When Weiss arrives at the farm each morning, he can never quite know for sure what foreign visitors might stop by before the day's end. That lends an international flavor to working with the PHA farm, and has left the former dairy farmer with acquaintances from around the globe, "and always sociable ones," he affirms.

Nichol, who with his wife, Lily, frequently hosts foreign buyers in their State College home, also speaks fondly of the friendships and memorable experiences that have resulted from the PHA's international business. He especially remembers a pair of Russian buyers spending their first visit in a private home. They took a special liking to the billiards game Nichol taught them, and through their interpreter, teased about leaving a couple of purchased bulls behind to allow room on the plane for taking home Nichol's basement pool table.

But it is the grassroots member-breeders who make PHA's export business so successful, Nichol is quick to credit. He takes special pride in the Association's network of county selectors, who respond when a call goes out for an export shipment to be filled.



Farm manager Howard Weiss, center, consults on barn construction with builder Henry Lapp and Lapp's son-in-law Amos Petersheim.

"They're a big plus; we can put together a large shipment in a hurry with their help. And there is no way that our three-man staff could handle it alone," says the Holstein executive secretary. For some orders, such as the upcoming Brazilian one, the Holstein staffers travel with buyers from the importing country, who make their own on-farm selections.

Nichol believes that enhancement of the members' business is "probably the greatest service we can provide." PHA's international and domestic sales efforts have done just that, providing over half the Association's annual income. Without that, says the secretary, the staff would likely be a one-man effort, and less able to provide membership services.

Such sales, he adds, have also encouraged members to participate in breed improvement programs, plus providing a sales outlet for qualifying animals at prices often somewhat above the domestic level.

Over the next few months, a full schedule of shipments are already in various stages of planning, both for PHA and outside users of the farm. Over the next few months, cattle will leave this facility for herds in Taiwan, Morocco, and Mexico. Japan, Saudia Arabia and Canada continue to be frequent destinations for shipments which leave here. And North African and Asian countries are likely to remain in the cattle export picture for some time in the future.

The new barn may place the farm in a greater role in state Holstein activities as well. Already under consideration is use of the facility for the annual spring Pennsylvania on Parade calf and bred heifer sales.

In addition to playing a considerable role in upgrading the world's livestock bloodlines, PHA's farm and exporting activities have undoubtedly paved a way toward better understanding among those of diverse cultures doing business together.

"I've never dealt with anyone I could consider an enemy," reflects Bill Nichol. "If people like the ones who work with this program were running the world, we could cut back on a lot of defense budgets."

And, in the long run, greater worldwide personal understanding and friendship might be the greatest "harvest" PHA's exporting and sales farm could ever produce.

New Quality Standards Set For Soybeans

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Grievances leveled by importing nations against the quality of U.S. soybeans should ease as the result of new quality standards established by the Federal Grain Inspection Service.

"With the new standards, an importing nation can buy U.S. No. 2 yellow soybeans and be assured they'll be acceptable," says John Pitchford, grain marketing specialist with the FGIS international marketing staff. "We know importers are pleased with us making this change because now they have insurance that the United States will conform to their needs," he says.

With regard to the Europeans who have been the most adamant about the quality of U.S. soybeans, chairman of the soybean committee for FEDIOL, a group of European crushers, Fred Deroost says, "Through this measure one of the causes of deteriorating quality of soybeans during transport from the United States to Europe is taken away to a great extent."

Complaints by importers of U.S. soybeans have tripled in the last two years and even became dire enough at one point that poor quality forced the cancellation of U.S. imports. Farmers were blamed for the quality problems, and quality has become a thorn in the side of U.S. producers during the past two years.

"The surge in importer complaints caught FGIS off guard," says Continental Grain's Max Spencer. "What's happened these past two years with regard to quality may not happen again for five years, but with these new standards next time at least FGIS will be prepared."

"The new standards should satisfy all importers and absolutely calm them down with regard to quality," Spencer says.

Berks Co. Farm-City Tour

Each year a Conservation Tour is held by the Berks County Conservation District. Other agencies who are co-sponsors this year are the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service, and the Bureau of Forestry.

This year the Bieber Bus will leave the Agricultural Center parking lot at 9 a.m. on Thursday, October 16th.

1986 is "The Year of the Forest" in Pennsylvania so the tour will highlight activities that tie in with that theme. The first stop will be in Reading at the Georgia Pacific Paper Plant on Riverfront drive for a short tour of the facility. The second stop will be at the largest white oak tree in Pennsylvania which is on the grounds of the Wernersville State Hospital. A stop will be made at the Keeney-Ziegler Honey Storage Facility just East of Bethel and then a lunch stop at Kauffman's Bar-B-Q Chicken Ranch. After lunch a short tour of the new sawmill run by J. O. Younker Son's Incorporated and then a tour of the Harris Pine Mills furniture plant at Hamburg. It is expected to be 4 p.m. when the tour ends back at the Ag Center parking lot.

As always, conservation practices that can be observed, will be pointed out along the way by personnel who sponsor and conduct the tour.

For more information on how to obtain a ticket please call the ASCS office at 372-4655.

These Male 4-H'ers Take Pride In Sewing Prize Winning Clothing

Editor's Note: The 4-H club members featured in the following story are just two of the 4.3 million young people across the country who will celebrate National 4-H Week, Oct. 5 to 13.

In observation of National 4-H Week, Pennsylvania 4-H'ers will be promoting their program as a "people development" program for all youth aged 8 to 19.

Lancaster Farming salutes all 4-H members and volunteer leaders during this week-long celebration.

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

BLOOMSBURG — Perhaps it's a touch of male backlash in a time when the women's lib movement daily dominates headlines, but James Aten and Doug Haladay seem to take particular pride in the fact that they are expert sewers. They have accumulated blue ribbons in local, regional, and state 4-H competitions.

"Some are shocked at how good it is...They think it's good somebody like me can make something like that 'cause some people don't think guys can sew," says James Aten, with a prideful glow in his eyes.

James was commenting on the general public's reaction when they discover he has sewn an article of his clothing. The 15-year-old 4-H'er has won blue ribbons at every level, including the farm show, for his expertise.

One aspect of sewing Doug Haladay enjoys is, "Being able to wear it to school and have people be amazed to see that I sew." Fourteen-year-old Doug has garnered blue ribbons in local and regional sewing competitions.

The youngest child of Charles and Barbara Aten of Berwick, James is a tenth grader at the Columbia Montour Vo-Tech enrolled in a distributive education (business) course. For seven years he has been a member of the Centre 4-H Club, taking sewing courses from the beginning along with other projects such as vegetables and cooking.

Barbara Aten, sewing leader of the Centre 4-H Club, says she encouraged her son to sew because it was an artistic outlet and because in their school district home economic courses such as sewing are a mandatory part of education in grades five through eight.

A bean bag mouse was one of James' first projects, but he also recalls making kakhi pants with matching jacket and corduroy trousers and vest. But it was a sweatsuit that took first prize at the farm show two years ago.

James' entry at the Bloomsburg Fair this year, that he considers his overall favorite project, took three blue ribbons. The entry was comprised of a light gray wool-blend blazer, dark gray polyester slacks and a light blue button-down, long sleeved shirt.

Doug Haladay displays his polyester blend short sleeved shirt with front pockets and matching pants of navy blue polyester that took second prize at the Bloomsburg Fair.

James says he sews because, "I like to go to shows...I like to win." He adds it could come in handy if he ever needed to make a certain item.

Showing and modeling on hot days, James reports, is one phase of a sewing project he finds difficult.

Some advantages sewing entails for James are that clothes are less expensive and they fit better. And what about girls? With such a small percentage of males involved in sewing competitions, it must present a great opportunity for meeting the opposite sex?

"Yeah, I meet a lot," James confesses with a very wide, fetching grin.

Although James has talent when it comes to designing and sewing clothing, he says he's not interested in sewing for a career. He believes he won't have a lot of time for sewing while managing a career in business.

One of six children. Doug Haladay is the son of Francis and George Haladay of Catawissa. The 14-year-old is a ninth grader is enrolled in the gifted program at Southern Columbia Area High School and a member of the marching and senior bands, Junior National Honor Society, and the basketball team. Doug's career plans include working as an occupational therapist or finding related work in the medical field.

For the past seven years Doug has been a member of the Roaring Creek Valley Community 4-H Club taking such courses as cooking, flowers and vegetables, embroidery and photography. He began with sewing projects three years ago.

With a polyester blend print short sleeved shirt and a pair of navy blue pleated pants made to be work with suspenders, Doug took second prize at the Bloomsburg Fair this year. In past years, according to Doug, his sewing projects all took first prizes at the fair. Twice, he says, he was eligible to participate in regional competitions.

Despite coming in second place this year at the fair, Doug says his alltime favorite sewing project was this year's entry. The shirt and pants he completed gave him more of a challenge than prior projects, he reasoned.

Doug, who admits he likes sewing clothes better than modeling them, says he became interested in sewing because his sisters sewed. "All my sisters sewed. One sister made a wool outfit which she went to state competition with. I thought it would be fun. She encouraged me." Doug notes his interest was further piqued when he served as an escort at the regional dress revue for two years.

One edge Doug has on the competition is the fact that his sister, Cindy Knepp, a home economics teacher, is readily available to advise him on any sewing difficulty.

"Modeling in front of the judges and being criticized," Doug observes is his least favorite segment of a sewing project.

Advantages, though, according to Doug, are that he can make clothes less expensively and that he now knows how to mend his own clothes. And what about the greater opportunity to meet girls?

"It helps," he observes with a smile.

How do male peers react when they discover Doug has sewn a garment he's wearing? Any teasing?

"No. I would say I made the outfit and they wouldn't believe me and I'd say, 'Check for the tag'".

In the future, Doug says, he may consider sewing as a sideline because he has a friend who says she will design clothes if he wants to sew them. For his next sewing endeavor Doug says he's thinking of designing and sewing a tuxedo so he won't have to rent one for the prom.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Panic Button Casseroles

When you realize that it's dinnertime and you didn't get anything out of the freezer, don't hit the panic button! Get out the ingredients for one of these quick recipes, and put your microwave to work. These casseroles are very adaptable to your leftovers too, so feel free to substitute ingredients.

When defrosting frozen hamburger that will be browned and used in a casserole, you can use a short cut speed-brown technique. Don't use this defrosting method for hamburger to be made into burgers or meatloaf. The meat becomes warm and may not mix or shape properly. Also, the warm meat increases bacterial action unless it is cooked immediately.

If you brown hamburger in a plastic colander set into another container, the fat will drain as the meat browns and can be discarded easily. Use the container you will make the casserole in to catch the fat, and there will be less dishwashing.

Speed-Browning Frozen Hamburger

1. Put 1 pound unwrapped, frozen hamburger in plastic colander or casserole. Set colander on a plate or in another container to catch drippings. Microwave on high for 2 minutes. Scrape thawed meat off onto a small plate and set aside.

2. Replace frozen meat in microwave and microwave on high for 2 minutes. Again, scrape off any thawed meat and set aside. Repeat this step, if the remaining meat is still frozen too hard to break up (it will depend on the shape it started in!).

3. When most of meat is thawed, break remaining frozen part into pieces, and push to the edge of the container. Return rest of thawed meat to the center of the container. If your recipe uses onion, green pepper, celery, fresh mushrooms, etc. place the chopped (or sliced) vegetables on top of the meat.

4. Microwave on high for 4 to 5 minutes, stirring once to break up meat, until all the meat is browned. If you have added vegetables, the microwave time will be 6 to 7 minutes, or until the vegetables are tender. Now you can finish the rest of the recipe.

Tip: For ½ pound of meat, cut microwave times in half.

This speedy casserole is a favorite at our house. It can be made ahead of time and reheats well too — just leave the cheese off the top until you're ready to eat it. Serve with a green salad and garlic bread for a delicious but quick dinner.

Pizza Casserole

1 pound ground beef or bulk sausage
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms
1 16-ounce can pizza sauce
1 cup hot water
1½ cups macaroni elbows (uncooked)
1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese (4 ounces)

1. Break up meat into a 2-quart casserole. Add onion and pepper on top. Microwave on high for 5 to 6 minutes, stirring twice, until meat is brown and vegetables are tender.

2. Stir in the rest of the ingredients, except cheese. Cover tightly with a lid or plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 15 minutes, stirring every 5 minutes, or until the macaroni is tender.

3. Sprinkle cheese on top and let stand 5 minutes before serving. Serves 4.

Tips: — This is good with ½ pound hamburger or sausage and 4 ounces of finely chopped pepperoni too. Reduce microwave time in step 1 to 3 to 4 minutes, and add the pepperoni with the remaining ingredients in step 2.

— Use a different dry pasta, the cooking time may be different. Cook the casserole on high for about 5 minutes longer than the cooking time for the pasta you are using. For instance, if you use wagon wheel pasta, with a cooking time of 15 minutes, microwave the casserole for 20 minutes on high, stirring every 5 minutes.

Quick Beef Goulash

1 10-ounce package frozen mixed vegetables
1 pound ground beef
1 15-ounce jar spaghetti sauce
2 cups thin noodles (uncooked)
1 cup hot water
1 cup (4-ounces) shredded cheese, optional

1. Place box of vegetables in microwave on a small plate and microwave on high for 6 minutes, turning the box over after 3 minutes. Set aside.

2. Break meat into a 2-quart casserole. Microwave on high for 5 to 6 minutes, stirring once to break meat up, until meat is browned. Drain fat if necessary.

3. Stir in vegetables, noodles, water and spaghetti sauce. Cover tightly with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 10 to 12 minutes, stirring twice, until the noodles are tender.

4. Stir again, then sprinkle cheese on top and let stand 5 minutes before serving. Serves 4.

Tips: — The cooking time of noodles varies greatly with different brands and thicknesses. Check the cooking time for the noodles you are using and microwave on high for 5 minutes longer than the time on your package.

— Use leftover or drained canned vegetables if desired; skip step 1.

— Use finely chopped or shredded leftover beef instead of hamburger; skip step 2.

Rural Development Symposium Set For Oct. 22-24

UNIVERSITY PARK – "Rural People and Places: A Symposium on Typologies" will be held Oct. 22-24 in Grantville.

Sponsored by the Northeast Regional Center for Rural Development, based at The Pennsylvania State University, the symposium will bring together experts in rural development research, extension and policy formation.

Growth in rural communities during the past two decades has brought new challenges for local citizens, politicians, researchers and extension personnel. Decision-makers need targeted and refined approaches to problem solving to satisfy the diverse needs of rural areas.

The keynote address by Robert Bealer, professor of rural sociology at Penn State, is entitled "Metatheory: Unlocking the Mysterious Doors to Typologies." Kenneth Deavers of the Agricultural Research and Economics Development Division of the Economic Research Service, USDA, will speak on "Public Policies in Rural Development: An ERS Perspective."

Other presentations will examine current typologies used in the study of migration, industrialization, health status and local government finance.

For more information on the symposium, contact Al Luloff, NERCRD, 104 Weaver Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-4656.

"Mom, we need some guinea pigs."

No. We do not.

"Mom, wouldn't it be nice to have guinea pigs again."

No. It would not.

"Mom, don't you miss the guinea pigs."

No.....well, maybe just a little.

I do miss Ali. Ali—short for Alabama, which she was named before we inherited her—was not just a guinea pig. She was part of the family.

Ali shunned pens whenever possible to run at large around the side yard between the house and the dairy barn. While she grazed the grass of the lawn, her favorite spots were in the tangled jungle mass of the perennial border. In late summer, when the volunteer cherry tomatoes draped over the chrysanthemums, she and the offspring that eventually joined her and her mate could pick and choose the juiciest selections to nibble as they liked.

We lost Ali last summer to the rare occurrence of a visiting, marauding dog while we were away one night. She had little fear of normal enemies, since our own cats and dogs grew up with the rodent pets, and somehow knew they could never bother them. Fritz, in fact, almost seemed to keep watch over these relatives of the groundhogs he so loves to terrorize.

But, through the winter, whenver there was a handful of leftover salad, lettuce, celery tops or carrot ends, I felt a pang of pain over our losing this gentle, affectionate, curly-mop-furred personality.

"Mom, I have two guinea pigs on order."

NO! Two more little mouths to feed a couple of times a day is exactly what I do not need. No more guinea pigs. And that is that. I don't want to hear anymore about it.

"Oh, Mom, aren't they cute?"

The "He" arrived as a tiny handful of brown-tipped black hair, which protrudes in all directions, while the "She" sports a white mop of fur with bright rust-colored splotches — Guernsey-cow-colored. Thus, the kid opts to name the pair after friends who breed Guernsey cows. No one else but us, I suspect, owns an unmatched pair of rodents christened Marge and Leo.

No longer tiny handfuls of fluff, they've doubled, and doubled again, in size. (In fact, we think Marge is expecting.) Leftover salad and excess garden tomatoes quickly find a home. And every day, after calf chores, guess who relocates the G-pig pen, with its wire run, to a new "pasture" in the yard? And fetches a handful of calf food, which they love? And refills water containers? And grumbles mightily when the kid mentions "his" guinea pigs.

Which all goes to prove: bring up a child in the way he should walk....and he'll instinctively know just how far I can go in getting away with doing what he pleases anyway

But if the kid ever hauls home one of these supposedly tame, but exotic, snakes for a pet, I'd consider adopting out. Me. Not him.

Spruce Up Menus With Pork

Pork can add endless variety to menu planning. Available in a wide array of forms, including smoked, fresh, cured and canned, pork can be prepared in a host of delicious ways.

The good news is that today's pork is much leaner than what was available 25 or 30 years ago. Over the past quarter century, 60 percent of the fat has been removed from market hogs through the use of better genetics and feeding programs.

So go ahead and indulge in the flavor of pork. You may want to try the Orange Ginger Pork Chops pictured here that boast a slightly oriental flavor. Or, if you've something a bit more traditional in mind, Pork Chops Supreme may be more to your liking.

Dine at home in exotic Oriental style. Ginger, orange and sour cream provide a new way to dress up tender pork chops.

PORK CHOPS SUPREME

Ketchup
Sliced onions
Thinly sliced lemon
Brown sugar
½ cup water

Place chops in baking pan. Top with ketchup, onion, lemon slice and a tablespoon brown sugar. Pour water down side of pan. Cover with foil. Bake at 350°F. for 45 minutes covered and 15 minutes uncovered.

James "Mike" Payne of Lewisberry has been making turtle soup for 20 years. About six years ago he decided to write down the recipe. Making it is not an exact science — you need to add seasonings, water and butter to taste. The following recipe gives the proportions for about 7 snapping turtles. Look for a story on turtle soup and wild horse and burro days in this section.

Turtle Soup

7 snapping turtles
1 stalk celery, diced
2 pounds carrots, diced
1 pound soup beans, soaked overnight
1 pound rice
6 hard-cooked eggs, mashed
20 potatoes, diced
1 one-pound package noodles
6 onions, chopped
Butter
Chicken fat
Salt and pepper
Old Bay Seasoning
Parsley flakes

ANSWER - Annette Meyer, Bethel, requested a recipe for apples and onions. Thanks go to Delila Herschberger, Quarryville; and Mrs. Harold Schreiter, Bedford, for the following recipes.

Fried Onions and Apples

4 medium sized onions, sliced
3 large tart apples, sliced
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup water

Heat butter in frying pan and add sliced onions. Cook slowly until tender. Pare and slice apples. Then add to onions with water and salt. Cover and cook until apples are soft.

Remove cover and fry until water is absorbed and the apples and onions are light brown. Serves 4. Good with hamburgers.

Fried Apples 'N Onions

½ pound bacon or salt pork, sliced
6 yellow onions (2 pounds)
6 tart apples (2 pounds)
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 12-inch skillet with cover
Apple corer

Fry bacon or salt pork slices in skillet until brown and crisp. Set them aside on a warm serving platter. While the meat is frying, peel the onions, leaving the stems to hold for slicing. To prevent eyes from watering, hold a slice of bread in your teeth while you slice onions as thin as possible. Discard stems. Core the apples and cut them crosswise in circles about ¼ inch thick. Apple skins help the slices keep their shape and add color to the dish, so don't peel unless skins are tough or scarred.

Drain all but 1 tablespoon of fat from the skillet, then add the onion slices. Cook them over medium high heat for about 3 minutes. Cover with apple slices in an even layer. Sprinkle brown sugar over all, cover the skillet and cook until tender, a few more minutes. Stir only to prevent scorching. Remove to the warm plate with bacon or salt pork slices.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

"Waste not, want not." It seems as though I was raised on this axiom. My parents practiced this belief and now I suppose I'm following in their footsteps.

One thing that happens though when this is practiced is that one accumulates a lot of things that are never used. After all, I tell myself, maybe someday I'll need this piece of material or that newspaper clipping and so drawers and closets are filled. Often my mother would say, "I never saw that before" as we pulled yet another item from the back of a drawer when we helped her move from one house to another. The passing years do dim one's memory.

In keeping with the "save everything," I usually pick up the corn that is left in the fields after silo filling and after the corn picker has gone through the fields.

So, last week I took a five-gallon bucket and went into the now empty field beside the house. After I had several piles, I decided to push the wheelbarrow down through the field and pick up the piles. It looked like a shower was coming but since I didn't want the corn to get wet, I started out. After all, my husband told me that he was going to try to get another load of silage before the rain too.

Well, I misjudged and ended up getting a soaking. I hadn't had a shower with all of my clothes on for a long time. Usually I'm just in the yard or garden and can run to the house — but not this time.

And, then to top it off, Allen was in the milkhouse snug and dry watching me getting soaked as he was wise enough to not go out into the field after all.

I certainly got my exercise that day as the wheelbarrow piled with corn had to be pushed uphill to the corn barn. Now I surely hope that the squirrels don't eat all of it.

Fulton Grange 66

Fulton Grange 66 recently honored several members for years of membership. Robert Housekeeper was honored for 60 years and Joseph Eshleman for 55 years.

Fifty-year gold sheaf awards went to Ambrose Giffin, Nina R. Eshleman, Wilmer P. Bolton; Alma L. Shank and Thomas S. Bradley. Suzanne P. Lamborn received a 25-year Silver Star award.

State legislator John Barley attended the meeting. State Master Collins McSparren from Camp Hill spoke on "What is the Grange?"

In answer, he said, the Grange is a wonderful educational institution that develops individual talent; it's a social organization, a builder for the community and a legislative tool.

"I am extremely proud of what I see," he said. "Today our country needs moral leadership. Only Grange provides all of it."

Prior to the award ceremony, members enjoyed a covered dish supper and shared a social visit with friends and neighbors.

Archeologists Unearth Buried City

WASHINGTON — They were probably just waking up in the Roman city of Kourion on the southern coast of Cyprus that July morning in A.D. 365.

"For a little after daybreak, preceded by heavy and repeated thunder and lightning, the whole of the firm and solid earth was shaken and trembled," states a fourth-century account of the catastrophic earthquake in the eastern Mediterranean. "Great ships landed on the tops of buildings. Some were driven almost two miles inland."

At Kourion there was little chance to escape. "We're finding people trapped at home, frozen in time right where they lived," says classical archeologist David Soren of the University of Arizona, who headed the team that in August unearthed the skeletons of a man, a woman, and a small child, clinging together in a ruined house.

Magnitude of Vesuvius

"Finding this 'family' huddled together after 1,600 years was the most touching moment," he says. Seven human skeletons have been uncovered in the one house. If this rate continues, Soren believes, the loss of life may prove to be on a scale comparable to that at Pompeii and Herculaneum after the Vesuvius volcanic eruption in A.D. 79, when several thousand people died.

From the way the family of skeletons was positioned, it appears that the three were "hunched over each other, huddled against a wall of the bedroom in a futile attempt to save their lives," says forensic anthropologist Walter H. Birkby of the University of Arizona, a member of the international team of specialists.

"They ran to the wall for shelter, taking the baby with them," he says. "They didn't head for the door. Was it too late? Had the only doorway already collapsed?"

Both the man and the woman "appeared concerned for protecting the child," Birkby says. "The man was enfolding the woman and the child, and she had her arms around the child's head." As the family was discovered under about three feet of rubble, "We all thought, 'What a shame,'" he says.

The neck of the woman, who was about 19, was broken at a right angle by falling plaster and stones as she clutched the 18-month-old child. The skull and spinal column of the man, who was at least 25 years old, were crushed.

A bone hairpin rests on the woman's skull. Two rings lie near the man's left hand, one of plain iron and the other of copper alloy inscribed with a symbol of Christ, the Greek letters Chi Rho. So the family might have been Christian.

Telltale Toe Bones

The skeletons were found on the last day of this summer's digging season by Caterina Dias, a Portuguese archeology student, who was clearing off a dirt bank within the buried house when she noticed several toe bones sticking out. The excavation was supported in part by the National Geographic Society.

The mystery of Kourion's people began to unfold in 1984, during Soren's first season of digging in the city. He uncovered the skeleton of a young girl, whom he called Camelia, her hands clasped to her face. Her bones lay atop the skeleton of a mule, still tethered by an iron chain to an 800-pound feeding trough that had been hurled into a wall of the house.

An analysis of the girl's teeth by Birkby showed her to be about 13, but her skeletal development was that of an 11-year-old. She might have been crippled or suffering from some disease, he says.

In 1985 the skeleton of a man between 50 and 60 was found crushed in a doorway of the same house.

Two other skeletons had been discovered during excavations at Kourion in 1934. Records of that work gave Soren a clue to where to start digging 50 years later.

This summer was the team's most successful season. So far the scientists have uncovered 15 rooms in the one house. Besides the skeletons, they have found elaborate painted architectural decorations and a complete kitchen.

The kitchen was equipped with a mud-brick oven (smashed in the disaster, but full of charcoal that will be analyzed), a bronze pitcher, a serving plate, a number of amphorae, several cooking pots, a copper-alloy fishhook, and fragments of about 20 lamps, indicating that people might have worked there at night.

Woman's Lost Necklace

At the bottom of a cistern, the scientists discovered a necklace of amber, coral, and jet that a woman might have accidentally dropped.

A cache of about 400 Roman coins found in 1984 and 1985 is the key to Soren's dating of the destruction of Kourion. The latest appear to have been issued in A.D. 364 and 365 during the joint reign of Emperors Valens and Valentinian I. Some scholars think that Kourion was destroyed in earlier earthquakes.

Although the value of the finds at Kourion increases with each season, Soren says he has barely scratched the surface. He estimates that only 5 percent of the ancient city has been excavated. It is thought to extend for several miles.

"Stone by stone, room by room," he says, "we should be able to unearth the most complete picture of a late-Roman-Empire population trapped in its original context."

Searching through debris on Cyprus, classical archeologist David Soren, left, and forensic anthropologist Walter H. Birkby, both of the University of Arizona, study results of the earthquake that buried the Roman city of Kourionin A.D. 365.

Fund-raiser Finds Niche In FFA Foundation

BY SUZANNE KEENE

PAOLI — As a teenager growing up on a Florida farm, Mary Jo Cancelmo envied her male classmates who were able to join the Future Farmers of America.

"I always wanted to be in FFA, but when I was in high school, FFA was only for boys," she recalls. "The girls had the option of belonging to the Future Homemakers of America," she said, noting that it was an option she enthusiastically selected. She served as a state FHA officer and worked with the state FFA president to develop leadership training sessions.

But although she was able to rub shoulders with FFA, "I was never able to be really involved in it," she says.

Now that she is an adult and heads the fundraising division of a. cancelmo co. in Paoli, Mary Jo has finally found a way to "belong" to FFA.

Mary Jo is chairman of the sponsoring committee of the FFA Foundation, Inc., the official FFA fundraising body for Pennsylvania.

One business day of each week, Mary Jo pounds the pavement for FFA, calling on businesses to solicit funds for an organization she believes in.

"Wednesdays are my Foundation days," Mary Jo says. On Wednesdays, she visits businesses that may be interested in helping fund FFA. Last year, the committee raised about $12,000. This year, she would like to raise that figure to $25,000. And, she adds with characteristic optimisim, "I think that's on the pessimisstic side."

"It's new. It's a baby. It's just getting off the ground," Mary Jo says of the Foundation.

When the Foundation began in 1983 its organizers started from the ground floor. "We started from nothing," Mary Jo remembers.

She began by making a list of ag related businesses to visit and is now working on making personal contact within each of those companies.

After the initial meeting, Mary Jo hopes the companies will decide to renew their contributions each year. She would like to see state officers visit contributing businesses to offer a personal thank you.

Some of the contributions are in dollars and others are "in kind," Mary Jo explained. An example of an "in kind" donation is a printing company that donates printing for programs or brochures.

Monies raised through the Foundation are used to fund awards, contests, scholarships, judging teams and leadership activities. Businesses can contribute to a general fund, or can specify where they want their dollars to go.

Mary Jo Cancelmo suggests FFA'ers consider Pennsylvania maple syrup as a fundraising possibility. A number of chapters will be selling the syrup in jugs bearing the national FFA emblem and the Pennsylvania ag product insignia.

In the future, Mary Jo would like to see the Foundation pick up some of the expenses FFA'ers now bear themselves, including state officers' jackets and handbooks.

Another of the Foundation's goals, Mary Jo said, is to offer scholarship money to state officers who take a year off of college to fulfill their officer duties.

"It's the hope of the foundation that someday we'll have enough money to offer these state officers some kind of scholarship for that year they took off," she said.

As a businesswoman Mary Jo believes she is an effective agent for FFA. When people see a business person taking time out from her own busy schedule for FFA, they may take a harder look at the organization's merit, she said.

While she is visiting on behalf of FFA, Mary Jo takes the opportunity to talk about Pennsylvania products, another of her special crusades.

When she called on Tastee Baking Company for a donation, she asked how many of the ingredients used in their products are Pennsylvania grown. The company representative admitted he did not know the answer but said, "We're going to make a conscious effort to get the bulk of our products from Pennsylvania," Mary Jo related.

"It's fun to talk about it and make them aware of it," she said.

For now Mary Jo works alone, but she hopes to develop a network of volunteers across the state to join her fundraising efforts. "I would like to have a layperson in every county," she said.

While she seeks donations from businesses, she believes funds should come from grassroots contributions too. "I don't think we should rely totally on big business for our funds," Mary Jo says with conviction.

A specialist in fundraising, Mary Jo helps individual chapters find ways to make money while learning valuable marketing skills. As part of her business, she visits chapters to suggest products they could sell as fundraisers. One of her newest suggestions is Pennsylvania maple syrup bottled in plastic jugs bearing the national FFA emblem and the Pennsylvania ag product insignia.

Grassland FFA members Jim Shirk and Tammy Martin take a closer look at a jug of Pennsylvania maple syrup displayed by Mary Jo Cancelmo. As head of the fundraising division of a. cancelmo co. and chairman of the sponsoring committee of the FFA Foundation, Inc., Mary Jo encourages FFA'ers to choose Pennsylvania products for their fundraising activities.

Wild Horse And Burro Adoption Center Finds Homes For 70 Animals

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster County
Correspondent

LEWISBERRY — Over 70 burros and horses were available for adoption last week at the Northeast Wild Horse and Burro Adoption Center in Lewisberry. Many of the those who visited during a special two-day open house went home with a new horse or burro to love—and to tame.

The horses and burros, trucked here from the western part of the country, are part of a continuing resource management plan by the Department of the Interior. Adoption is a partial solution to the problem of overpopulation among the wild herds that roam public rangelands.

Curt Jones, director of the Eastern States Office of the Bureau of Land Management, explains, "Nothing can compete with them in the wild." Charlie Most, chief of public affairs, adds, "They have no natural enemies."

However, the animals must share the limited forage and water with other native wildlife and their numbers are often more than the land can support.

Because of this, the animals, who are very prolific, are gathered in an "ongoing process." Horses come primarily from Nevada, Wyoming, Oregon and California. Horses coming from Nevada are traditionally the smallest because of genetics and the pressure on the available resources. They are descendants of the Spanish bred horses. Jones notes, "Pure Mustangs are the size of Nevada horses." Those horses coming from Montana and Wyoming generally are somewhat larger in size.

The burros are corraled mostly from Arizona and California, and while the horses are available for adoption year round, burros are not, Jones says, "This will be the last of the burros for the year."

Surprisingly, it is the burros for whom demand is the largest. Jones says many burro adopters are older people who may be retired and own some land and want them for a pet. He added, "Some truck farmers want burros because they can plant the rows closer together and the burros won't step on the crops."

Burros are also useful to some sheep farmers because they are "very protective" and will keep away wild dogs and coyotes.

Jones notes that there is a waiting list for burros. Information distributed also notes that the Department of the Interior prefers to have the burros adopted in pairs. Burros can be adopted for $75 whereas the adoption fee for horses is $125. This fee covers the cost of roundup, inoculations, veterinary care and other expenses of the program.

Jones said that applicants for adoption are screened and the title is not given to them until after a successful first year. People are allowed to adopt up to four animals in one year. He said, "Most are good folks. Our adopters feel a sense of commitment. It's refreshing to have that kind of public support."

These are some of the 70 burros that were offered for adoption at the Wild Horse and Burro Adoption Center at Lewisberry last Saturday. They prefer the burros be adopted in pairs.

Most also notes that few people ever request that the government take back on animal. In fact, many people who have worked with both domestic and wild horses find the wild horses easier to work with. Jones says, "They've been raised in the wild, and if you are good with them, kind and gentle, they are like a dog. They become very loyal. Most people do a great job with them."

The program has been in effect for about 10 years, though it has only been in the last four that the adoption centers have been established. During that time about 65,000 burros and horses have been relocated, with about 40 to 45 percent of them being adopted east of the Mississippi.

In the west the animals are usually adopted right after the round-up on public lands. Jones concluded, "There is an awful lot of interest in the program." Interest in the East is different from the West because there they see the animals as a nuisance.

Jones believes this program's uniqueness builds bridges for the department and has garnered a lot of support from the states. This working together is beneficial to everyone involved.

About 30 to 50 animals are on hand at the adoption center around the year, and new shipments come in periodically. Often "satellite" programs are held and horses and burros will be taken to temporary shelters in other states to take them close to the potential adopters.

Turtle Soup Connoisseur Brews Tasty Delicacy

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LEWISBERRY — Even as a child James Payne admits that he "always liked to throw something together to eat. Even if it didn't look good, I ate it."

Last Saturday, Payne, known to his friends as "Mike," was throwing together his annual batch of turtle soup, a delicacy which has become something of a staple at the Wild Horse and Burro Open House on the Goodlander Ranch near Lewisberry.

While Payne takes the job seriously enough, he actually is quite casual in putting together the ingredients. He said that he's been making the soup himself for about 20 years, but it's only in the last six years that he wrote down the recipe.

When preparing soup, you want to have plenty of time, especially over the open fire which is Payne's preferred way of doing it. Payne says, "I think anything tastes better when it's made over the open fire. It has a better taste."

Actually, the other reason making the soup takes time is the turtle catching. Some of the eight turtles for this year's soup were caught in mid-August; they all were caught on the pond on the property. Payne makes it sound simple to catch them — you tie some bait on a line with a hook, leave it overnight and get your turtle the next morning.

George Craker, who called himself a "migrant worker" as he helped with some of the vegetable chopping this year, said jokingly, "Then you throw away the turtle and keep the bait."

Payne has a technique for preparing the turtles for cooking, and says the process takes him about ½ hour. The next step is cooking the meat in water until the meat is tender and ready to fall off the bones. Once cooked, it is removed from the broth, carefully picked off the bones and put through a grinder.

He said, "All the meat on a turtle is good. The neck meat is all white meat."

As the turtles cook, Payne slowly works at chopping the rest of the ingredients. This year he had some good help in Craker and Gene Hetrick, so the chopping got done more quickly. Hetrick says dryly, "He never had such experienced help before." He adds, "The pay's very good." Craker deadpans, "A guy could get pretty proficient at this."

They cut the carrots, celery, onions and potatoes into small pieces and add the ingredients as they are cut to the steaming broth. Hetrick takes time to stir the soup occasionally, and both men take a break to chop wood to keep the fire going.

Observers stop and ask what the men are doing. Others, those in the know, begin saying, "When will it be ready to eat?" Someone asks, "Is it going to be as good as last year?" Without hesitation and with a laugh, Payne replies, "Better." One little girl looked in and asked where the turtle was. When asked if she'd try the soup she disgustedly said 'no' and moved away. One woman stopped and told Payne how she makes her turtle soup, adding just corn.

As noon approaches Payne decides it's time to taste the product. He admits that he flavors it to his taste which may not suit others. But he figures they can always add salt and pepper. "Some people like more than I do. If they want more, they'll have to put it in. You can't suit everybody."

Just before pronouncing it ready, Payne says, "I think I got it all in. I'd better check." Then he takes out the newly written recipe and makes sure everything has been added. He realizes he almost forgot the hard cooked eggs, and quickly mashes them and puts them in the boiling soup.

The whole process takes about 5 hours, and when the soup is ready it is sold in about one hour. Payne remarked proudly, "One year it was gone in about 40 minutes."

Before giving the soup over to the food stand to sell, Payne ladles some into large containers to take

Mike Payne adds the ground turtle meat to the soup as it nears completion. The total process takes approximately 5 hours.

Gene Hetrick takes a turn stirring the turtle soup as it cooks over an open fire.

Delaware Teens To Attend National 4-H Leadership Conference

NEWARK, Del. – Three Delaware teenagers have been chosen to attend a national 4-H leadership conference October 10 to 13 at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Md.

Attending the "Profiles for Tomorrow" conference will be Mike Moser of Camden, Michele Morneau of Newark, and Luke Hankins of Lewes. They will be accompanied by Kent County 4-H volunteer advisor Judy Ramsey.

To be selected for the conference, delegates must be eligible to participate in 4-H programs for a minimum of one year following training. They are chosen on the basis of outstanding leadership, citizenship, active community service and commitment to local and state 4-H programs.

Moser, 16, has been a member of 4-H for nine years. As a counselor at the state 4-H camp, he worked with underprivileged children, and he now serves as a counselor for the Younger Member Weekend Camp. Moser has been secretary and treasurer of his 4-H club and is currently president of the Kent County 4-H Junior Council. A junior leader of his club's woodworking project, Moser expects to major in architecture in college.

Morneau, 16, has served as a counselor and instructor in fashions at the 4-H Day Camp and the Younger Member Weekend Camp. A member of 4-H for six years, Morneau is now president of the New Castle County Junior Council. Formerly a secretary and reporter for her club, she has been a teen leader in crafts and expects to pursue a career in fashion design.

Hankins, 15, is beginning his fifth year in 4-H and is currently president of his 4-H club. He is a member of the Sussex County Junior Council. Hankins expects to become a math or science teacher.

Keynote speaker for the three-day program will be UPI White House Bureau Chief Helen Thomas, who will give her insider's view of seven presidential leadership styles. Also featured on the program are Lou Hampton, director of the Washington office of The Executive Television Workshop, and a Polish folk dance troupe.

The Delaware teenagers will attend workshops and seminars on leadership styles, individual and group decision making and goal setting. They will exchange successful project and activity ideas and will develop a plan to extend leadership training to other Delaware 4-H'ers.

Approximately 200 4-H youth and adult visitors from 49 states and Puerto Rico are expected to attend the conference, which is sponsored by the Monsanto Fund.

Mary Jo Cancelmo

"It's our first real step in letting FFA'ers become involved in marketing a Pennsylvania product," she said.

For years Pennsylvania's FFA chapters have been selling thousands of boxes of Florida citrus for the holidays as a fundraiser. Mary Jo would like to see Florida FFA repay the favor by buying Pennsylvania maple syrup to sell in return.

This year, some Keystone FFA chapters will offer the specially-marked jugs of maple syrup in addition to their citrus. The effort will be a two-way winner for FFA, since the individual chapters will reap the profits from their own sales and the cancelmo company will set aside some of its profits in the sale for the FFA Foundation, Mary Jo explained.

She sees Pennsylvania maple syrup as only the beginning of a successful marriage between FFA fundraising and Pennsylvania products. "Maple syrup is our first step," she notes. She is already making plans to market Lebanon bologna and Pennsylvania apples in gift boxes.

"A great marketing strategy is to teach FFA kids to sell a Pennsylvania product," she said. "I think an effort needs to be made from kindergarten on up about the plight of the American farmer."

And Mary Jo puts her words into action every time she visits a potential contributor or an FFA chapter to encourage them to promote Pennsylvania agriculture through using and marketing Keystone state ag products.

home. He said, "The only thing I get out of it is a little soup. I give some to the guy who caught the turtle." He said he does make it at home sometimes.

Making the soup seems effortless for Payne and his friends. They enjoy the company of those who stop by their pick-up truck to watch the process.

Payne says, "I like to cook. I can. I bake." He said he has over 200 quarts of canned goods at home, but adds, "This year I didn't make chow chow." He helped to can when his wife was still living, but continues it because he enjoys it. He admits to having a "pretty big garden" from which he harvests a lot of produce. He lives on 17 acres close to the adoption center.

Payne says he has always liked to cook, and enjoys making pies, especially pumpkin and lemon. Though he is retired, he still works as a bricklayer and carpenter. "Cooking is a sideline," he says with his winning smile.

As the soup is served people drift over to tell Payne how good it is. One woman points out to the crowd that Payne is the "best turtle soup maker east of the Mississippi." Everyone laughs, but no one denies it. The host, Frank Goodlander, steps up and adds, "in the country."

Asked if you could make a meal of the turtle soup, Payne says, "If you eat enough of it."

Soon the fire dies down and the soup is gone. Payne made a lot of people happy by giving them the opportunity to eat turtle soup. His happiness came from the joy of making it.

Mike makes the final taste test before declaring the soup ready for hungry visitors.

Children Can Create Halloween Costumes

Halloween is approaching and your children are probably starting to think of that "perfect" costume for the big night of trick or treating. Save money and foster creativity by helping them design their own costumes this year.

For inspiration they might think of favorite cartoon characters or look at coloring or story books. Rummage through your attic and basement for old clothing and other articles which could be turned into imaginative costumes. Boxes with holes for arms can be painted or colored. Smaller children can decorate large paper sacks, then cut holes for head and arms.

Try looking into an old clothes bag for garments that, with a little pinning or quick sewing, will create a young witch or fairy princess. Think of unusual ways to use old clothes for costumes. Pajama bottoms with feet can be stuffed, then used for an upside-down hat. An old skirt can be worn around the neck with holes cut out for arms. A little basting can make old fabric scraps or old sheets and towels the perfect touch for a creative costume.

What types of sports equipment do you have around your house? Can you put together a football uniform, tennis outfit or a wet suit?

Instead of masks, try letting children decorate their faces. Inexpensive make-up or colored chalk can be used. You can even use watercolor paints if a good base of hand lotion is first applied to the face. To create a ghostly effect, apply flour over a hand lotion base.

Supermarket Psychology

Is supermarket "psychology of selling" causing you to drain your pocketbook? You may think you have exhausted all the ways of cutting your food budget, but becoming aware of the sales techniques used to encourage you to buy more can help cut down impulse buying.

Most supermarkets are arranged so people will have to walk around most of the store to reach needed major foods such as meat, fresh fruits, milk, frozen juice and bread. A study done by Progressive Grocer showed that in a 12-aisle supermarket, between 60 percent and 80 percent of the shoppers went into the interior aisles of the market when shopping. Walking every aisle once a week is good for business but not for your pocketbook. Most likely you will exit with more than what's on your shopping list.

Many of the "power" items such as produce, meat, dairy and bakeries are located around the edges of the store. This is because of the need for refrigeration, water and stocking from the back.

High profit items like candy, gum and toys are placed strategically at checkout counters. You know what that does to any children you have in tow.

Items of interest to adult consumers are placed at adult eye and arm level throughout the store. Impulse items are also placed there or among the staples so they won't be missed. "Stand-by" items like flour and sugar may be located near the floor or high on the shelf because shoppers are willing to stoop or reach for these necessities.

Often nonfood and food items are displayed together so that shoppers will purchase both. For example, you may see cookies, sauces, ice cream dippers, and parfait glasses near the ice cream. Children's clothing and medicinal needs are often stocked on the same shelf as the baby food.

Don't be fooled by mass displays. Instead of a bargain, they may be regularly priced articles merely displayed in a special way.

Multiple pricing has a remarkable power of suggestion. Sales soar when items are stamped two for 95 cents rather than 30 cents each. Often fruits and vegetables are priced 5 for 79 cents, for example, and many shoppers buy the entire bunch even if there is no savings.

Supermarkets are making up for their low-profit food lines by carrying an increasing array of high markup lines such as health and beauty aids, kitchenware, auto supplies and paints. Soap, paper goods, magazines, hand lotion and similar items purchased at the store add up to about twenty-three cents of every dollar spent in a food store which isn't food at all.

Delaware 4-H'ers Plan 4-H Week Activities

NEWARK, Del. – Delaware 4-H'ers plan to cut out painted litter barrels, display club posters, conduct bike-a-thons and hold pet and photography competitions to celebrate National 4-H Week Oct. 5 to 12.

The 160 4-H clubs in Delaware's three counties will join with more than 81,000 clubs nationally to present special programs and activities during the week. The Delaware clubs represent more than 16,000 youngsters and 1,100 volunteers.

Trash barrels decorated with 4-H themes by Kent County clubs will be judged during 4-H week and then placed in community parks and streets.

New Castle County clubs will have a poster contest, displaying their finished products in business windows on Oct. 6. They also plan to place radio spots about 4-H on local stations. Sussex County 4-H'ers will hold a 25-mile bike-a-thon to raise funds for their organization.

4-H activities will prevail at Boscov's Department Store in the Dover Mall Oct. 4. From 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., 4-H clubs will be holding a bicycle rodeo, dog and pet show, a petting zoo, a cheese cake baking contest, and photography and poster contests. Clubs will also have individual booths for carnival games. In addition, club members will sell food or items made during club activities.

The youth education branch of Cooperative Extension, the 4-H organization is a national non-school program administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Rural, urban and suburban youngsters between the ages of nine and 19 can learn new skills ranging from beekeeping to cooking, from gardening to computer science. Over 50 different interest areas are supported by 4-H volunteers.

For more information about joining a 4-H club or becoming a volunteer, contact a county extension office. In New Castle County, call 451-8965; in Kent County, call 736-1448; in Sussex County, call 856-7303.

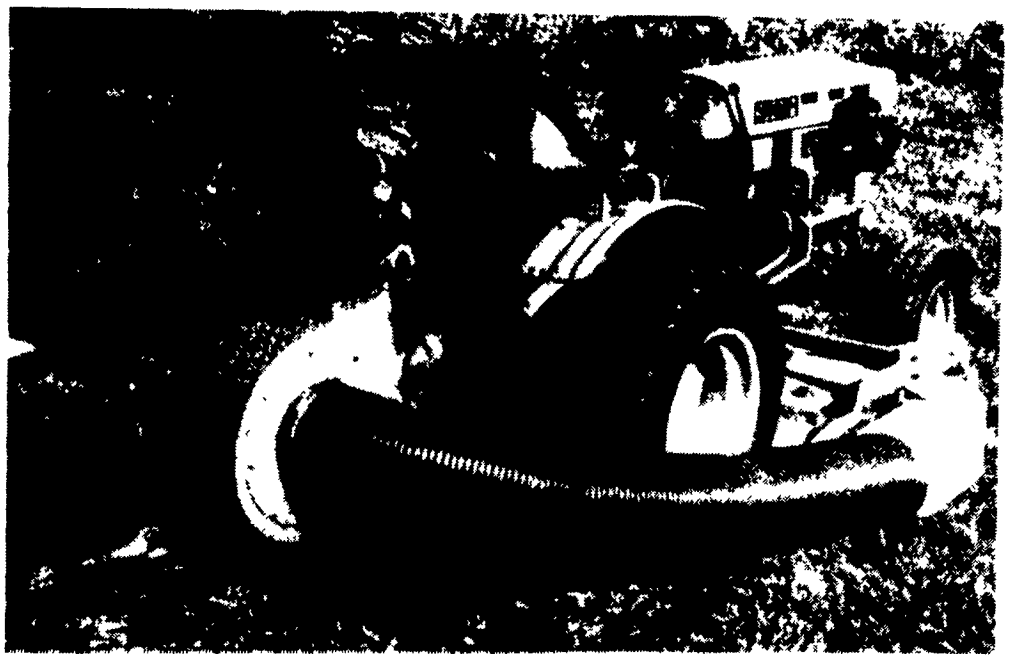
TRAC VAC
PTO VACUUMS



The Models 854 and 856 PTO Vacuums are designed for tractors using a 540 RPM and an 856 RPM power takeoff speed with front or mid drive mower. The Model 854 is for all 540 RPM tractors. The Model 856 fits the 856 RPM PTO speed.

Both PTO units mount on a category 1 3-pt hitch. Impeller speed needed to do an efficient cleanup job is obtained with a two to one Durst gear box and necessary jack shafts to obtain a speed of 3600 RPM in the air turbine.

Eight inch intake and exhaust hoses take the grass clippings and leaves away from the mower and into the storage area. The grass clippings and leaves are collected in a 50 cubic feet storage area using a 17 cu. ft. welded steel cart and a matching all-steel cart cover.

Awards were presented to 13 leaders for one year of people for serving for five years as leaders.

A special award for "doing more than was asked" went to Donna McCaslin, Chippewa Acres Community Club, and Alice Girven, Little Muncy Creek 4-H Club, for coordinating the JIFY program for inbound Japanese students.

A slide program concerning Lycoming County PIFY's recent stay in Japan was presented by delegates Jennifer Eakin, Todd Eakin, Greg Girven, Susan McCaslin, Christina Walls, and group leader, Alice Bair.

Md. 4-H Team Tops Poultry Judging Contest

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – In its second year of competition at the event, a Maryland 4-H delegation captured first-place honors among eight state 4-H teams competing Sept. 20 in the eastern regional youth poultry judging contest. The event was held in conjunction with the Atlantic Rural Exposition and State Fair of Virginia.

Last year, Maryland placed second in the regional contest, long dominated by Georgia 4-H teams. Virginia had the runnerup team this year.

Dudley (Du) Wright, 16, of Walkers Run, was high individual in the regional contest. Dean Ennis, 17, of Whiteburg placed second. The two had reversed these placings in the senior 4-H poultry judging contest held three weeks earlier during the Maryland State Fair at Timonium.

Other members of the Maryland 4-H team competing at Richmond were Trisha Marsh, 15, of Rison and Karen Wabeck, 15, of Waycroft.

The team is scheduled to represent Maryland in U.S. competition during the National 4-H Poultry and Egg Conference, set for Nov. 20 and 21 at Louisville, Ky., in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition.

Accompanying the team to Louisville will be Janine Smick, 15, of Jarrettsville, who will compete in the national 4-H egg preparation and demonstration contest. She placed first in similar competition this year at the Maryland State Fair.

Coaching the Maryland 4-H poultry and egg judging team for the seventh consecutive year is Charles J. Wabeck of Salisbury, an associate professor of poultry science and Extension food science specialist for the University of Maryland. Dr. Wabeck is stationed at the poultry research and education facility, adjacent to the University of Maryland's Eastern Shore campus at Princess Anne. He is serving his third year as chairman of the national 4-H poultry and egg judging contest.

Dobbs Named Director of PSU Ag Student Activities

UNIVERSITY PARK – Marianne L. Dobbs was recently named director of undergraduate student activities for Penn State's college of agriculture. For the past year she has been the director of agricultural activities at the Walter Biddle Saul High School of Agricultural Science in Philadelphia.

"I'm delighted to be with Penn State and the college of agriculture," says Dobbs. "Recruiting students into agriculture is exciting because there are so many career opportunities for our graduates."

In her new position, Dobbs coordinates a visitation program for prospective students and their parents, works with academic advisers in the 17 undergraduate majors offered in the college of agriculture, and plans to expand the college alumni network. "I also look forward to working with high school counselors and science teachers to increase the visibility of agriculture and the college," she says.

The appointment was announced by Dr. Gene M. Love, associate dean for resident education in the college of agriculture. He said, "We are very happy to have Ms. Dobbs with us. Her enthusiasm and understanding of students in agriculture will be a great asset to the college.

At Saul, which is one of the few agricultural high schools in the nation, Dobbs was responsible for student recruitment and public relations. She coordinated the admissions process and developed a computerized admissions system.

From 1979 to 1984 she taught a variety of agricultural courses at Saul including dairy science, equine science computers in agriculture and agricultural business management. She also served as coordinator of the school's animal science programs.

Dobbs received a bachelor's in animal husbandry from Delaware Valley College in 1979 and an M.E.D. in agricultural education from Penn State in 1983. She developed a series of horse management task sheets for 4-H and recently published an article, "Preparing Students for a Wide Open Future," printed in the May '86 issue of VOC-ED Journal.

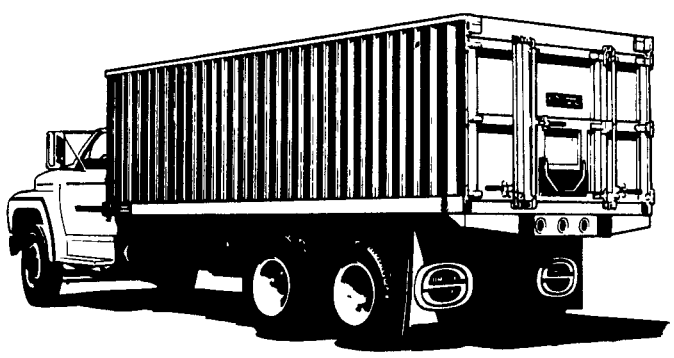
"CLEAN FLOW"
Aluminum Bodies



by OMAHA STANDARD

Backed by more than 60 years' experience in truck body manufacturing, this is the aluminum body that sets the standard for the industry. With 92¾ inches of unobstructed inside width, this rugged, lightweight body lets you haul more grain or bagged or palletized commodities and save fuel doing it.

With 60" or 72" high, vertically corrugated, splice-free sidewalls, three-piece full opening rear doors, swing-out header, trailer-type aluminum flooring and "I" beam cross members, this body's built for rugged field work and continuous road hauling.

"Clean Flow" design of the extra deep 30° sidewall corrugations allows complete emptying with no sharp corners for grain to hang up.

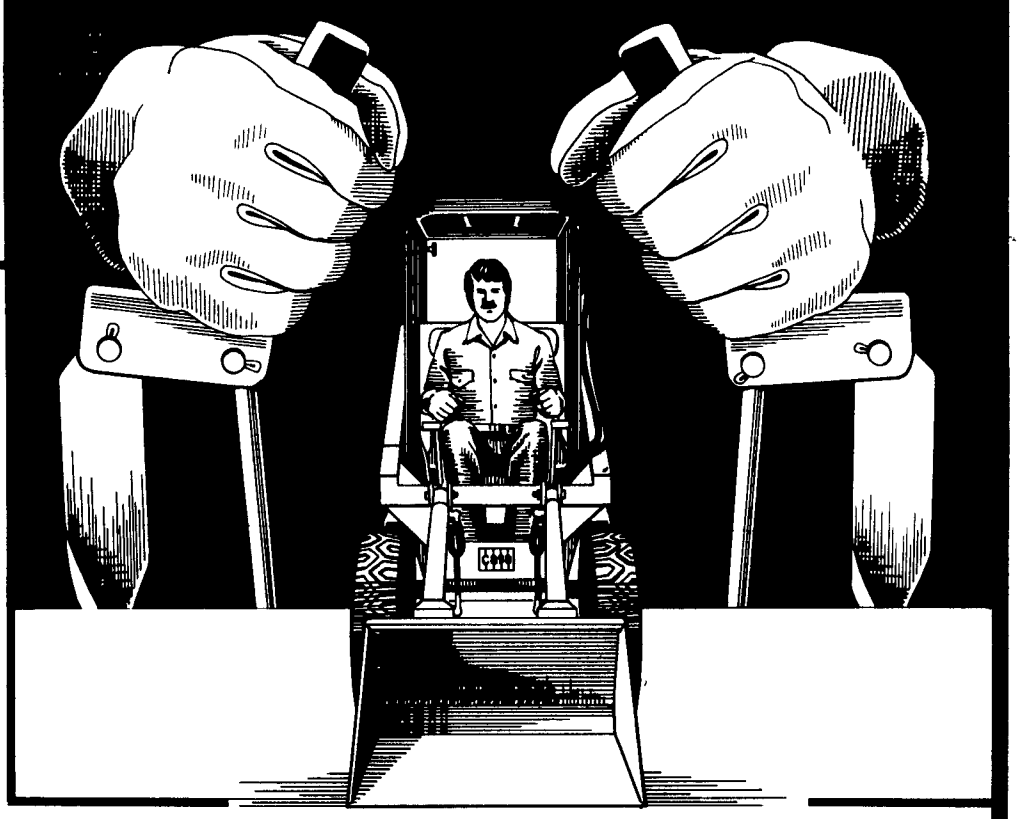
MOVE MOUNTAINS WITHOUT MOVING A FOOT.



Case Uni-Loader® skid steers not only out dig, out lift. out carry and out load most others... they also take a big load off your feet.

That's because speed, direction and all loader functions are controlled by two hand controls. With hydrostic drive and 360° turning you can maneuver fast and easy to make short work of barn and feedlot chores.

And, there are other advantages: self-leveling loaders help spot the load exactly where you want it. Simple external chain-tension adjustment saves time. Separate hydraulic and chain/sprocket oil systems keep fluid cleaner to reduce maintenance and downtime. Choose from a variety of attachments to extend your versatility.

Let your hands do the working. See us today and get some hands-on experience with our Uni-Loader skid-steer line. It's the easiest way there is to get a handle on tough chores all around the farm. We offer flexible financing programs that can put a Case Uni-Loader skid steer to work for you.

Dairylea Maps Schedule For Annual Meeting

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — This year's annual meeting of Dairylea Cooperative, its 67th, convenes at Liverpool, New York's Sheraton Inn on Oct. 14, with more than 800 persons expected to attend.

Opening day, Oct. 14, will feature reports by Shirley Rabideau of Mooers Forks, and William Terrell of Waymart, Pa. Shirley will report on ECID, the Education, Information, Communications arm of Dairylea Cooperative. Terrell will review activities of the cooperative's youth organization, the Young Cooperators.

The association's officers and 13 district directors will be introduced by John N. Widger, first Vice President. Widger is a dairy farmer from Ellicottville.

Wednesday morning's management reports will be headed by those of the President, Clyde E. Rutherford of Otego; Treasurer and second Vice President, Silas E. Eakins of Potsdam; and CEO Executive Vice President, Bob Hall of Syracuse.

Dairylea, one of the Northeast's largest farmer-owned milk marketing cooperatives, marketed 2 billion pounds of milk and had net sales of $380 million during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1986. In the 12-month period, net sales were $21 million above the preceding year's total.

Among the resolutions to be presented during the afternoon session is one supporting the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency concept, and the RCMA need will be among the topics throughout the conference, Rutherford expects. The cooperative agency's major purpose would be to improve financial returns to the participating farmers, important in an area where dairying and the milk industry are among the largest of all.

Dairylea Cooperative and other farmer-owned cooperatives have been the strongest advocates of the RCMA, with an estimated 78 per cent of all dairy producers signed up so far. But, Rutherford notes, RCMA can function only with 95 per cent of all dairy producers enrolled. And hundreds of independent dairy producers, though faced with economic hardship under a pricing and government control program that threatens their businesses, are reluctant to join RCMA.

Delegates also will consider at least 28 other resolutions on Wednesday, Oct. 15. Many of these deal with policies on economic matters and stand to guide the cooperative during the coming year. Included are component pricing, advertising and marketing, uniform standards for milk and dairy products, relationships with other cooperatives and dairy processors, fortification of lowfat milk, importation of foreign casein, and supply management.

Beekeepers Encouraged

To 'Buy Back' Loans

Beekeepers in Berks County who obtain 1986 crop honey loans stored in approved metal containers in the ASCS price support program will be able to repay their loans at a level lower than the original loan rate.

Donald E. Lutz, Chairman of the Berks County ASC Committee says the lower honey loan repayment rates will be set to induce beekeepers to buy back their loans, and that the lower repayment levels will help minimize loan forfeitures.

Based primarily on the market price of honey, the buy-back loan level will be announced weekly for each color and class of honey. When beekeepers repay their loans at the announced buy-back level, Lutz says the interest on the loan will be waived.

Beekeepers who buy back their honey under the program may not repledge the same honey as collateral for another loan.

October Is Cooperative Month

HARRISBURG – Pennsylvania cooperatives are gearing up for the annual October Cooperative Month celebration, according to Kathy Gill, executive director of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives.

One key event is the third annual October Cooperative Month Kick-off breakfast, scheduled Oct. 8 at the Harrisburg Sheraton-West. Guest speaker for the event is David Thomas, president of the American Institute of Cooperation, Washington, D.C.

Why the need to designate a time to highlight cooperatives? Gill said that most Americans associate the word "business" with giant investor-held corporations or local partnerships and individual proprietorships. "Few Americans realize there is a fourth way to organize an economic unit in this country," she said.

According to Gill, there are more than 40,000 cooperatives in the United States, serving 65 million Americans. These range in size and scope from a small telephone service cooperative in Texas to Fortune 500 member Land O' Lakes cooperative in Minnesota.

In Pennsylvania, more than one million persons are cooperative member-owners. The term "member-owner" shows that the person using the cooperative is also the owner. In short, the customer is the owner of the business.

The result, according to Gill, is that cooperatives are the most democratic of all business forms. In Pennsylvania, each member-owner has one vote. In addition, all profits are distributed based upon the member-owner's patronage of the cooperative.

Familiar cooperative brands throughout Pennsylvania include Land O' Lakes, Dairylea, Agway, Ocean Spray, Lucky Leaf, Musselman, Donald Duck, Seald-Sweet, Sunkist, Sunmaid, Sun-Diamond, Silver Floss, Hood, Eastern Milk, High's dairy stores and Tree Top.

Gill hastened to add that cooperatives are not confined to the agricultural sector. "Although cooperatives have their greatest concentration in agriculture, this business form is applicable to any endeavor where people want to form a business to serve the needs of the group. Cooperative businesses include credit unions, housing and day care services, and insurance.

"In addition, newspapers and broadcasters own a news-gathering cooperative, Associated Press. CARE is a cooperative, as is the FTD floral delivery system. Even the franchise owners of Dunkin' Donuts have formed a cooperative which provides them with supplies," she said.

"Cooperatives and their member-owners are important partners in any community. We use the month of October each year to tell how cooperatives work and that cooperatives work," she concluded.

The Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperative is a trade association representing 42 rural and agricultural cooperatives that do business in Pennsylvania. Their direct economic affect on the Pennsylvania economy exceeds $3.2 billion annually.

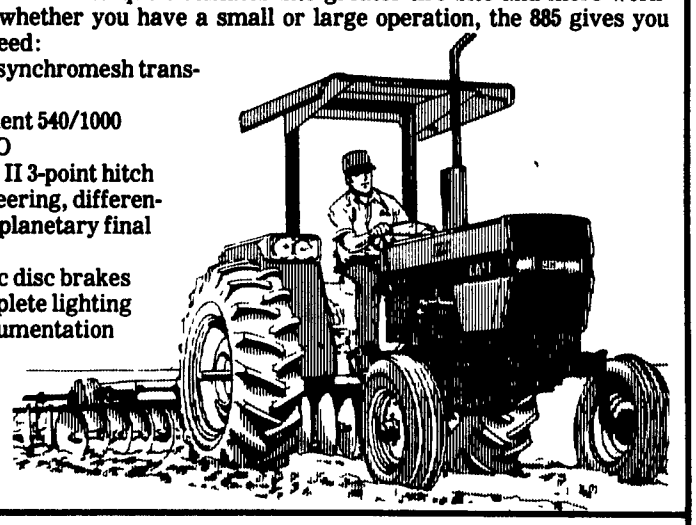
Mid-Size Power With Big-Size Performance

CASE INTERNATIONAL 885 TRACTOR

A Case International 885 tractor is a good choice for two reasons: It's the perfect No. 1 tractor on smaller operations, and ideal back-up power on larger acreages.

With 72 PTO hp*, the 885 more than pulls its weight. You'll like the exceptionally quick response and high torque rise of its clean-burning diesel engine. That extra torque translates into greater tire bite and more workpower. So whether you have a small or large operation, the 885 gives you what you need:

- 16-speed synchromesh transmission
- Independent 540/1000 RPM PTO
- Category II 3-point hitch
- Power steering, differential lock, planetary final drives
- Hydraulic disc brakes plus complete lighting and instrumentation



Now Is The Time To Shatter That Hardpan

CASE IH 14 SUBSOIL CHISEL
w/5 Shank Auto. Reset,
Flotation Tires

Works behind high horsepower tractors to open soil down to 20" for deep-down penetration of water and air. Parabolic curve shanks lift soil vertically for a wide area of soil fracture. Shank design and V-shape frame combine to deliver easier penetration, reduced draft and less fuel consumption.

The Secrets To Case International Axial-Flow Combine Success In The East...

FEWER MOVING PARTS...

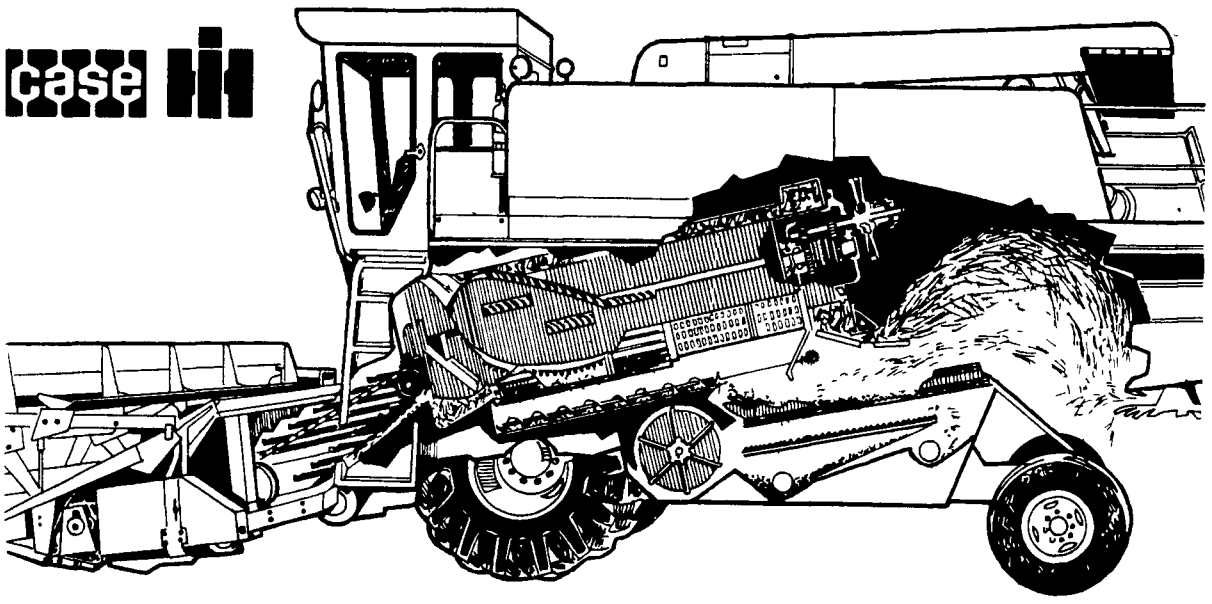
ALL CROP VERSATILITY...



The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For nine years Hoober's 3 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies. A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

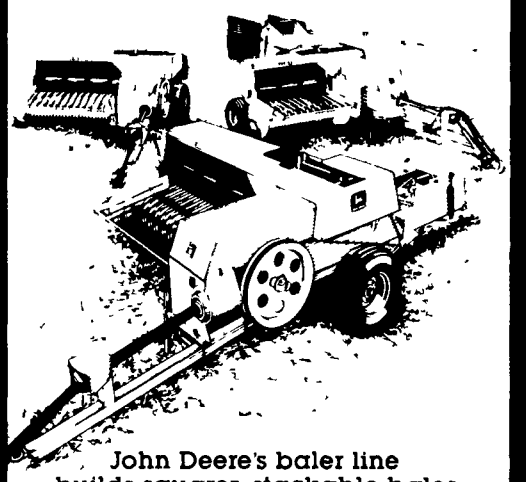
SQUARER BALES



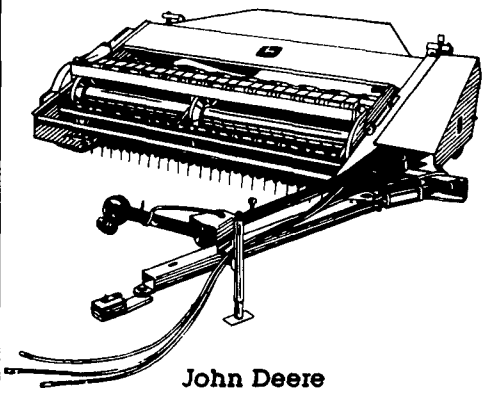
John Deere's baler line builds squarer, stackable bales

To build solid square-cornered bales consistently you need consistent control of the hay And John Deere s 327 337 and 347 Balers give that control from the moment hay touches the pickup

A wide pickup with extra teeth lets these balers take in all the hay in today s wider windrows There s even a compressor to keep the hay under control

A floating tapered auger and adjustable feeder forks take over to keep material flowing evenly The gear-driven knotter puts the finishing touch on these solid stackable bales from John Deere

EASY ADJUSTMENTS



John Deere 1219 Mo/Co features simple adjustments for easy servicing

Different hay crops have varying conditioning requirements That s why John Deere s 1219 Mower/Conditioner gives you the option of changing roll spacing and pressure in just a few minutes

When crop conditions call for it simply change the roll spacing to as wide or as narrow as you want When more or less pressure is needed just turn the adjusting bolt

Easy-to-adjust windrow forming shields let you build the type of windrow you want See the 9-foot 1219 Mo/Co that adapts to your haying conditions

'TIS THE SEASON!

YES, HARVEST SEASON IS HERE

Now - What To Do With Your Corn Crop? Store 5000 Bu. of High Moisture Shelled Corn In One Of Our "Shelled Corn Units" - Built On Your Footer - LESS THAN $16,000.

With The Abundant Corn Crop In Some Areas, Many Farmers Still Need To Get A Structure Up For Storing Shelled Or Ground Ear Corn.

WE HAVE AT LEAST 4 OPTIONS!

#1 - We Can Erect A Poured Concrete "Shelled Corn Unit" On Your Footer, That Will Store 5000 Bu. Of High Moisture Corn For Less Than $16,000

#2 - We Can Erect A Poured Concrete Bottom-Unloading Silo With A Laidig-43 Unloader For Shelled Corn Or High-Moisture Ear Corn

#3 - We Can Erect A Poured Concrete Bottom-Unloading Silo With A Laidig 98 or Laidig 198 Unloader For Shelled Corn, High Moisture Ear Corn, Corn Silage, Or Haylage.

CONSIDER THESE CONCRETE ADVANTAGES OF A POURED MONOLITHIC SOLLENBERGER SILO:

- Full 5" or 6" smooth, concrete wall with steel reinforcing in the center for greater strength and protection from acid and weather
- Horizontal and vertical steel that is 60,000 PSI This gives greater reinforcing strength than horizontal steel only
- Smooth round walls for greater strength easier flow of corn and acid resistance for many years of service
- Outside ladder is hot dipped galvanized and cast directly in the wall
- Ladder enclosed with safety cage and filling platform
- Safety railing installed on poured concrete roof
- Center fill chute
- Galvanized or vinyl fill chute
- Seal system opens and closes from the ground

Westmoreland Co. Cattlemen Are Bullish On Beef Promotion

BY MARGIE FUSCO
Cambria Co. Correspondent

Beef producers in Westmoreland County are taking the bull by the horns.

"A group of cattlemen in the association got together to think of activities," explains Terry Stockdale, president of the Westmoreland County Cattlemen's Association. Concerned over low beef prices and lack of consumer awareness about beef, the producers decided a grassroots campaign was the best way to begin.

Several months later, they have held a half-dozen store promotions and produced a professional videotape they hope will be used in other counties as well.

Their promotion began in early August with a beef roast, attended by grocery store managers and beef producers. The managers met state Cattlemen's Queen Becky Painter and Cattlemen's Princess Marcy Jones who gave cooking demonstrations using popular methods such as stir frying and microwave cooking. They also circulated brochures and recipes featuring meals under 300 calories requiring less than 30 minutes to prepare.

The beef roast also introduced the store owners to the Nutri-Facts program on beef nutrition. The program was explained by Bill Henning, Pennsylvania State University's red meat specialist. Grocery managers in attendance were invited to place Nutri-Fact stickers on their meat packages to identify low-calorie, high-nutrition cuts.

Late in August, the county Cattlemen's Association also hosted a booth at the Westmoreland County Fair. The booth marked the first showing of the association's videotape.

The videotape, which runs for 13 minutes, begins with a consumer talking to a grocery retailer about meat. The grocer takes her to see the advantages of beef first-hand, beginning with a farm visit and following the meat through the packing house and into the store. The tape concludes with the consumer fixing a nutritious beef meal at home for her family.

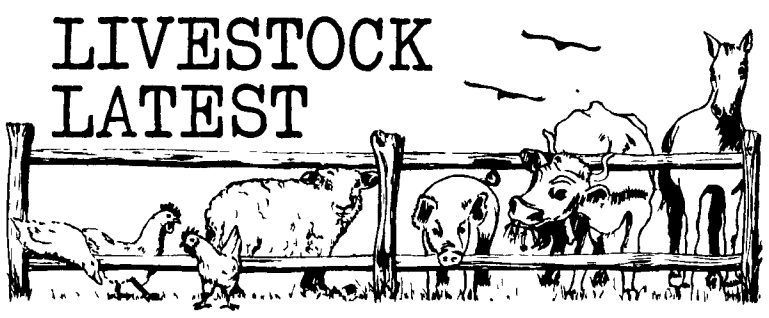
The videotape was produced by Video Specialists, a professional production company from Irwin, Pa. The tape was produced through the Cattlemen's Association, in cooperation with the Westmoreland County office of the Cooperative Agricultural Extension Service.

Since kicking off their program in August, the association has seen some results. Several of the grocery managers attending the picnic subsequently requested in-store demonstrations. "We've done a half-dozen so far and we hope to do a lot more," Stockdale reports. He is also pleased to add that several of the grocers have adopted the Nutri-Facts system for labeling their beef.

The association is also hoping to present the videotape in schools and at meetings throughout the county. In addition to the 13-minute video, they expect to produce other segments, based on 15 hours of beef information that was taped. "Our video right now is geared for the consumer," Stockdale says. "Although we can probably use it right now for high school groups, we hope to do a slightly different version for younger school children and other groups in the future."

Ironically, none of the Westmoreland County Cattlemen produce their beef for sale within the county. Sandy Truckner, who with her husband Bill is involved in the association's promotion explains, "We're not doing this for our own benefit. We're doing it because we want to see all beef producers get some benefit. If we do it in our county, maybe someone else will jump on the band wagon, and it'll benefit us in time."

Producers who would like to view the videotape or learn more about the Westmoreland County program are invited to contact Terry Stockdale at (412) 668-7088 or to write to the association's secretary, Bill Doney, R.D. Smithton, Pa.



Ideal Beef Animal Defined At Conference

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The U.S. Beef cattle industry has created a dilemma over the past 20 years, Bob Hillier, manager of Hitch Feeders at Garden City, Kansas, told some 540 people at the National Beef Profit Conference Sept. 12 in St. Joseph, Missouri.

The problem, Hillier said, is that the industry has gone from three breeds that are fairly uniform in meat characteristics that served a relatively broad beef retail market to 71 breeds with wide variation in their production traits and a market with ever narrowing product specifications.

"I must say here that many cow-calf producers have given little thought to the kind of end product they are providing, judging by the wide variations in the cattle seen at central markets or at the auction market," Hillier told the crowd at the conference sponsored by the American Angus Association.

Cattle producers who want to get top price for their feeder cattle, or a premium, are going to have to breed cattle with uniform performance characteristics that meet fairly narrow feedlot and packer specifications, Hillier said.

Sets Target Animal

The target animal for the feedlot should be one that will gain from 3 to 3.5 pounds a day from pay weight to pay weight and have a feed conversion of one pound of gain for six pounds of dry matter consumed, Hillier emphasized. Then in order to satisfy the packer the animal must grade USDA Choice when it weighs between 1,050 and 1,250 pounds and produce a 600 to 800 pound carcass with a yield grade of 1, 2 or 3. And, specifications probably will narrow in the future, Hillier said. He expects yield grade 2 to become the standard, and that the top acceptable carcass weight will be reduced below 800 pounds.

Hillier then displayed charts showing how feeders and packers can legitimately discount cattle that fail to meet these target specifications. For example, he pointed out that in a 100-head pen of feedlot cattle each 10 head that fail to make the USDA Choice grade make the pen worth $362.50 less, if Good sells for only $5 per hundredweight less than Choice. If 50 percent fail to make Choice that pen is worth $1,812 less.

Ranch Turns Profits

Keynote speaker, Henry Gardiner, who runs 200 registered and 400 commercial Angus cows at his Ashland, Kansas, ranch, said that despite the beef cattle recession, "The last three years on our ranch have been the most profitable three years in the 56-year history of our ranch." He credits this profitability to improved grass and farm management, and to the use he makes of the Angus sire evaluation data from the American Angus Association. "Without the use of the yearly sire evaluation report we also might be wondering how much longer we could stay in business. The sire evaluation report is worth many thousands of dollars a year to our operation."

Fro 1964 through 1973 the average weaning weight of all the Gardiner steer calves, at 10 months of age, was 523 pounds. From 1982 through 1986 the average steer weaning weight has been over 731 pounds; the 1986 calf crop averaged 786 pounds.

These results Gardiner attributed to "stacked sire evaluation pedigrees." In other words he has used the top sire evaluation bulls every year and saved replacement heifers from these bulls, each generation "stacking" more sire evaluation performance into the herd.

Feedlot Performance

The Gardiner cattle also perform in the feedlot and on the rail. From 1981 through 1984 Gardiner's progeny test steers have gained from 3.21 to 3.74 pounds a day at a cost of gain ranging from $43.75 to $51.12 per cwt, with a finished weight of 1108 to 1167. In 1984 some 97 percent of these steers graded USDA Choice.

"A stacked pedigree animal is a new and superior animal made possible by the Sire Evaluation Report," Gardiner said. "This fall every replacement female we breed, either registered or commercial, will be sired by a proven AI bull and bred to another proven AI bull.

If you breed superior cattle, then how do you get paid for the valuable genetic package? Three commercial cattle producers from Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, said that the key is "retained ownership" through the feedlot.

The Beef Checkoff And You

The one dollar per head checkoff assessment, as prescribed by federal law, under the 1985 Beef Promotion and Research Act begins Oct. 1. Its a law that carries hefty fines for noncompliance and a system with several potential informants. The dollar per head assessment program is designed to help the beef industry halt the steady decline of beef consumption and make beef production once again profitable for all segments of the beef industry. The program is for you, the beef producer, or anyone associated with the industry.

In simple terms, the program works as follows: When you sell your cattle, you pay a $1 per head checkoff to the buyer; when you buy cattle you get $1 extra from the guy or a form in which he certifies that he's exempt. The law says the seller must pay and the buyer must collect and remit. The assessments must be sent by the "collecting person" or cattle purchaser to the PA Beef Council.

Exemptions are granted only to graders, order buyers, and dealers who (a) have owned the cattle less than 10 days and certify that they purchased them only to "expedite" marketing or (b) purchased them from a third party at a predetermined fee.

Auction barns and livestock dealers will be equipped with collection kits. These kits include the necessary forms and instructions to carryout the program. If you're selling at an auction, the auction will deduct $1 per head from your check and send it to the State Beef Council. The State Council will keep up to half and send the rest to the Cattleman's Beef Promotion and Research Board.

If you sell to an order buyer or dealer, he will operate the same way, providing you with an invoice showing the money was deducted. If, you sell private treaty, to a neighbor, for instance, make sure you get a receipt indicating you have paid him (or he has deducted) the $1 per head.

Collecting persons who do not collect assessments that are due and/or producers who do not pay will be in violation of the Beef Promotion and Research Order and may be subject to a $5,000 civil penalty in addition to a late payment charge.

Producers requesting a refund should write for a refund application from their State Beef Council. The refund application and necessary documentation must be mailed within 60 days from the date the assessment was due.

After the program operates for 22 months, cattle producers across the nation will have the opportunity to vote through a national referendum on whether to continue the established program. The PA Beef Council has pledged their efforts to the success of this beef promotion program. It is hoped that this Beef Checkoff program can generate $60 million dollars per year to be used in the promotion of beef nationwide through the most competitive media segments. If it takes the likes of Bill Walton and Refrigerator Perry to sell beef, then we should all chip in to make the program successful.

Violators of the Beef Promotion and Research Order may be subject to a $5,000 civil penalty plus a late payment charge.

'Best Ever' 4-H Lamb Sale Reported At Reading Fair

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Berks Co. Correspondent

READING — The annual Berks County 4-H Sheep Sale held at the Reading Fair climaxed with the sale of the grand champion market lamb selected by Judge Mike Fournier, Bucks County extension agent, at the Reading Fair's sheep show on September 22. The sale, held on Saturday, Sept. 27, under the show tent at the Reading Fair, featured a wide range of bidders who brought the top sale price up to $5 per pound for the 106-pound grand champion.

"Buster," the grand champion and first place heavy middleweight, owned by Joyce Heffner, Fleetwood, featured a "big leg," and "long loin" according to the judge. The Hampshire lamb was purchased by Peters Brothers Meat Market for $5 per pound, tying with last year's grand champion for high price.

"You just look for what you want when they grow up," Joyce Heffner revealed about her selection of "Buster" as a project this year. She also stated that her late brother, James Heffner, helped her pick out this lamb and taught her to select lambs that were small and narrow in the front with not too much waste. Sad to see "Buster" sold, this veteran sheep showperson concluded, "he's the tamest one I had."

Commanding the second high bid of the sale was the reserve grand champion owned by Cory McLaughlin, R1, Bernville. Also first place heavy lightweight, McLaughlin's lamb sold for $4 per pound to Boscov's Department Store, Reading.

The grand champion fair brought the third high price of $1.52 per pound from Lebanon Valley National Bank, Agriculture Department. The pair was exhibited by Glenn and Joyce Heffner, R2, Fleetwood, brother and sister.

Almost three-fourths of the sale animals brought bids in excess of $1 per pound and the sale was stated to be one of the best in the history of the Berks County 4-H Sheep Club. The 42 sheep sold averaged $1.31 per pound with the champion's price inluded, and $1.14 per pound not including the top price.

Bidders were invited to barbeques before the sale and 4-H Sheep Club members thanked them for their participation. Buyers included the following: Peters Bros. Meat Market, Boscov's Department stores, Lebanon Valley Bank, Yellow House Hotel, Reading Bone Fertilizer, Leesport Auction, Walter M. Dunlap, Inc., Shillington IGA, Kuzan's True Value Hardware Store, On Line Computer Services, Hamilton Bank, Meridian Bank, Mast Mowers & Service, Farm Bureau, Harvey George General Contractor, First Federal Savings and Loan of Pottstown, Bernville Bank, Disel Service, Inc., Bernville Quality Fuels.

Reading Fair Names Market Swine Champions

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS

READING — Greg Stricker, R1, Bernville, honored as the Reading Fair's Outstanding 4-H Boy for 1986, showed his skill in the market swine show at the Reading Fair by capturing the grand champion market swine ribbons with his extra entry. The "long bodied, lean-made pig" exhibited an adequate amount of muscle according to the judge of the show. Stricker, a veteran showman with his swine, was pleased with his success this past week. Stricker also exhibited the grand champion pair of market swine.

'Breeder Destiny' Roundtable Set for NAILE

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The first Saddle and Sirloin Roundtable discussion titled "Breeder Destiny" will be held on Sunday, Nov. 16, in conjunction with the 1986 North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

The event, scheduled from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, is being held in honor of Dr. Frank Baker of Winrock International Institute for Agricultural Development, Morrilton, Ark.

This half-day Roundtable centers on the opportunities and challenges facing the stock breeder in the 20th Century and on into the 21st. A clear concept of direction and the means by which the stock breeder can make directional genetic change are significant in the design and conduct of creative breeding programs.

Dr. Larry Cundiff, U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, Clay Center, Neb., will discuss probable beef demands and producer responses.

Ideas concerning the use by breeders of across breed predictions of genetic value will be presented by Dr. Larry Benyshek, University of Georgia, Athens, and predictor of genetic values for the American Angus, American Hereford, North American Limousin and International Brangus Breeders Associations.

Ideas concerning the use of the potential use of genetic manipulations will be presented by Dr. Roy Ax, University of Wisconsin, Platteville, and active participant in the new genetics research.

Dr. Bob Long, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, and long time friend of stock breeders, will discuss who is most likely to own the bull.

The high point of the Roundtable will be the banquet Sunday evening from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the hall of the Saddle and Sirloin Club on the fairgrounds.

The portrait of Dr Frank Baker will be hung at this time and he will be honored and recognized for his vital leadership role in livestock agriculture over the past 30 years.

The registration fee for this Roundtable discussion is $50 which includes the proceedings and a banquet ticket. Additional banquet tickets are available for $25.

For more information and to register, write Dr. R. L. Willham, Animal Science Department, Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa 50011. Make your check out to Frank Baker Fund (ISU Achievement Foundation).

Those wishing to contribute to the cost of the portrait for Dr. Frank Baker may do so by increasing the dollar amount of your check.

Worcester County Holds 4-H/FFA Fair

SNOW HILL, Md. – The second annual livestock auction was held recently in conjunction with the Worcester County 4-H/FFA Fair, Snow Hill, Maryland.

The grand champion market hog was a DeKalb raised by Billy Figgs, Snow Hill. It was purchased as a feeder pig from William Sirman, Sr., Newark, Md. and weighed 233 pounds. S & J Vallari Livestock bought the champion hog for $3 a pound. They have buying stations at both Snow Hill, Md. and Gumboro, Del. and have been supporters of 4-H livestock sales for many years throughout the Delmarva Peninsula.

Hatfield Packing Co., also a long-time 4-H supporter, purchased the reserve champion market hog for $2.50 a pound. It was a home-raised crossbred shown by Vicki Reed, the 1986 Maryland Pork Queen.

The grand champion steer was a 1,195 pound Chi Angus shown by Billy Hall, also of Snow Hill. It was purchased last fall at the Piedmont Invitational Club calf sale and sold to Ned Dykes, Twin Post Farm, Princess Anne, Md.

The grand champion market lamb was purchased from Jim Satterfield of Felton, Del., and raised by Vicki Reed. Worcester Co. Extension agents Barbara Nelson-Parkinson and Sandy Facinoli teamed up to buy the 119-pound lamb for $1.01 a pound.

Other buyers at the sale included Ralph Nichols Livestock, Fruitland, Md. and Goff's Market, Snow Hill, Md.

Dr. Robert Herr, Nix-Besser Farm, Narvon, Pa. judged the sheep and swine. John Stump, Street, Md. judged the beef show. Pete Richardson was auctioneer.

Carbon Co. Champion

Show judge Cheryl Fairbairn just couldn't take her eyes off Kirk Cressley's 230-pound Spot-Duroc hog after naming him champion of the Carbon County Fair's 4-H Swine Show. The hog was purchased by Hatfield's Packing for $3.05 a pound. The show's reserve champion was shown by Deanna Miller. Both exhibitors are from Lehighton.

New Products Check Reproductive Status In Cows

MADISON, Wisc. — American Diagnostic Sales, Inc., of Westport, CT, today announced the introduction of three new products to its line of reproductive management tools.

"We expect these three products, Heifercheck, Calfcheck Confirm, and Equicheck, to change the way the farmer handles his herd's reproductive management," said Dr. Donald J. Silvert, vice president of ADSI. "In May of this year we launched our first product, Calfcheck, which is a milk progesterone test. Calfcheck is used for heat detection and pregnancy diagnosis at 21 days. There's been a tremendous interest in this product, which has encouraged us to introduce these new products."

The three products introduced today by ADSI are based on the same technology as the Calfcheck kit. Heifercheck is a blood-based progesterone test for non-lactating cows. Calfcheck Confirm is a milk-based late pregnancy test which confirms the presence of a live fetus after four months gestation. Equicheck is a blood based progesterone test for mares.

In simple terms, the tests analyze one drop of milk, blood, or serum for the presence of a hormone. The presence or absence of the hormone indicates the reproductive status of the animal.

The kits include everything a farmer needs to test his cows right in the dairy barn or stable. No special training or equipment is needed, and results are obtained in less than 10 minutes with the progesterone tests; under one hour for Calfcheck Confirm.

For more information about American Diagnostic Sales, Inc. and its line of reproductive management tools, contact American Diagnostic Sales, P.O. Box 5117, Westport CT 06881.

Kit Permits Upgrading Of Grinder/Mixer

FORT ATKINSON, Wisc. — With the introduction of an Indicator Upgrade Kit, Butler Scale Systems makes it possible for customers with old or inoperative scale systems on grinder-mixers, platform scales or feed mixers to install a new Butler indicator without replacing existing functioning load cells. In addition to being economical and easy to install, a Butler OMP indicator assures precision weighing.

The Butler Indicator Upgrade Kit features an adapter which can be plugged into an existing junction-box or weighbar and then into a Butler indicator. A choice of kits is available: one for adapting a Butler OMP-10 or OMP-20 to systems with Eaton LVDT compression load cells; and one for adapting a Butler OMP-5, OMP-10, OMP-15 or OMP-20 to a Weigh-Tronix ¼ bridge weighbar.

For more information about a Butler Indicator Upgrade Kit, contact your local Butler dealer or write to Butler Scale Systems, 801 Janesville Avenue, Fort Atkinson, WI 53538. Telephone: (414) 563-5521.

Firestone Offers New Farm Tire

AKRON, Ohio. — The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company is introducing the Champion Guide Grip Four-Rib farm tire, designed to reduce tread squirm and provide longer tread life.

Larry Jensen, Firestone's marketing manager for farm tires, said the new tires offer performance and durability advantages over the three-rib construction.

He said the farm tire is specificially built for the front position of row crop tractors and will replace the company's Champion Guide Grip Heavy Duty and Guide Grip III lines in comparable sizes.

The new Four-Rib tire features a larger groove radius, standard rib heights and a flatter tread contour for improved flotation

Tenneco To Acquire Steiger Tractor

HOUSTON, TX. Tenneco Inc. and Steiger Tractor, Inc. recently, reached agreement whereby Tenneco will acquire all of Steiger's approximately 4.4 million shares.

Tenneco and Steiger said Tenneco is offering $3.50 for each share of stock, or about $15.4 million, and will honor all outstanding obligations of Steiger and its wholly owned subsidiaries.

Tenneco Chairman and Chief Executive Officer James L. Ketelsen and Irvin E. Aal, Steiger president, said the offer has been endorsed by both companies' boards of directors and Steiger's major shareholders.

Steiger, which filed for protection June 17 under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, manufactures large four-wheel-drive agricultural tractors and tillage equipment. It is headquartered in Fargo, N.D.

Tenneco said it plans to consolidate Steiger's agricultural equipment operations with J I Case Co., Tenneco's wholly owned subsidiary headquartered in Racine, Wisconsin, which manufactures and sells agricultural and construction equipment.

"Steiger's reputation for building durable, high quality products makes them outstanding additions to the Case IH agricultural tractor line," Ketelsen said. "At the same time, the acquisition adds to the Case IH customer and dealer base while assuring continued production, sales, and parts availability and support for current Steiger owners."

The Tenneco offer resulted from a worldwide search for a purchaser conducted by Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., Steiger's investment banker, explained Steiger's Aal.

"We concluded that this business combination with Case IH best serves the long-term interests of Steiger, its shareholders, employees, dealers, customers and the communities where Steiger and its outlets operate," Aal said.

Case IH plans to maintain Steiger's manufacturing and engineering operations at Fargo, though certain administrative functions there will be eliminated or transferred.

Consolidation of operations, Ketelsen said, will result in significant cost reductions that could not be realized by the two separate companies.

"Not only is it important that as many Steiger employees as possible remain employed, but it is essential that the many owners of Steiger equipment continue to have parts and service support," Andrews said. "The farmer today has enough to worry about without having his equipment rendered useless because he's unable to get parts."

Steiger had a 1985 net loss of $8.1 million on sales of $80.3 million. For the first nine months ended June 16, 1986, Steiger incurred a net loss of $13.5 million compared with a net loss of $5.1 million for the same period a year ago. Sales for the current nine months were $54.6 million versus $66.3 million in 1985.

Wenger's Video Tape Service Aids Customers

MYERSTOWN — Wengers Inc., of Myerstown is offering a unique video tape service which permits customers to see farm and construction machinery being offered for sale in operation, in full color and sound, on their home TV screens.

Customers interested in a particular machine or machines can request a video tape of their choices in operation and then view the tape through a VHS Video Cassette Recorder (VCR) connected to their home TV.

Wengers is charging $25 per machine to cover the cost of the tape cassette, filming and mailing to a customer. The $25 will be deducted from the cost of the machine if purchased. Ten dollars of the $25 will be refunded if the tape is returned and the machine is not purchased.

"We have decided to offer this service for two reasons," explains Lloyd Wenger, president and sales manager of Wengers, Inc.

"First, many of our customers must drive hundreds of miles to come to Myerstown from throughout our multi-state service area up and down the east coast. This video tape service will save them both time and money and still be able to see the machine in operation just as if they drove the many miles to our dealership.

"Also, VCR's have now become so common place in homes that it is practical to offer the service. VCR's are not only in use in city areas but particularly popular in rural areas where terrain or distance makes TV reception difficult."

The Wenger customer video tapes will be compatible with any VHS video cassette recorder - the most widespread now in use.

The video tape service can apply to any farm tractor or implement or construction machine being offered for sale by Wengers.

For example, a customer can request a tape of a particular farm tractor or piece of construction equipment. The following characteristics of the machine can be viewed by customers on their home TV set:

- General appearance: paint and other exterior characteristics, cab interior, tire tread, and undercarriage.
- Engine operation: sound, exhaust emission.
- Operational features: 3 pt., PTO, bucket lift and dump.
- A narrated description of the machine will accompany the visual portrayal.

Customers interested in obtaining a video tape should contact the Sales Department, Wengers Inc., 251 S. Race St., Myerstown, Pa. 17067. Tel.: (717)-866-2135.

Lloyd Wenger films video tape of tractor. The tape can then be viewed by potential customers on home television.

Upon completion of a request for a tape, the machine can be filmed and the tape mailed to a customer within a few hours, Lloyd Wenger explains.

"It is another example of our use of the latest technology to better serve customers throughout an area that is growing steadily," he adds.

Lehigh Valley Farmers Launch Membership Campaign

LANSDALE — A novel approach to advertising is used by Lehigh Valley Farmers in this issue of Lancaster Farming to step up their efforts to recruit new members for the dairy cooperative.

Instead of one full page, Lehigh has purchased 10 ads on succeeding pages in one issue to stress the involvement of its board of directors in membership activities.

The ads have identical headlines and messages, but each features a different director throughout Lehigh's milkshed. Pictured on his own farm, each director looks to the reader, as he says, "I'd like to talk to you about joining Lehigh Valley Farmers." Each ad includes the phone number of the director.

After this multiple exposure, the campaign will continue for a year, with a single ad every month, each one with a different director.

President Alpheus L. Ruth, who is featured in the first ad, says, "Of course, any director would be delighted to talk to any producer about joining us, but the idea of localizing the ad may have some merit. It's always more comfortable to talk to a neighbor."

In addition to President Ruth, the directors featured in the ads are Vice President Roy Hetrick, of Bernville; Secretary Norman W. Sollenberger, Fayetteville; Treasurer Robert R. Gehman, Coopersburg; Clyde W. Martin, East Earl; Robert Nearhoof, Sr., Tyrone; Lawrence Spadine, Nicholson; H. Carlyle Russell, Rome; Jason Hertzler, Milton; C. Rodman Meyers, Thurmont, Md.

Deutz-Allis Introduces Middleweight Tractor Series

MILWAUKEE, Wisc. – The new 7100 Series tractors from Deutz-Allis are middleweight, fuel-efficient workhorses that will give years of trouble-free performance.

The 7145 tops the series at 145 PTO hp, followed by the 7120 at 122 PTO hp, the 7110 at 110 PTO hp and the 7085 at 85 PTO hp. The attractive appearance of the 7100 Series is the result of straightforward design principles which combine proven technology with an impressive list of new features.

The Agrotronic on-board computer system allows the operator to accurately track operating functions that were only guessed at before. The basic system provides a constant display of engine rpms and calls up PTO and ground speed with the touch of a finger. This permits complete control of implements and fine-tuning of planter rates, fertilizer and chemical application.

A more sophisticated monitoring system, the Agrotronic II monitor, is also available. The Agrotronic II monitor combines an on-board computer with Doppler radar to give data on true ground speed, wheel slip, acres per hour and total acreage.

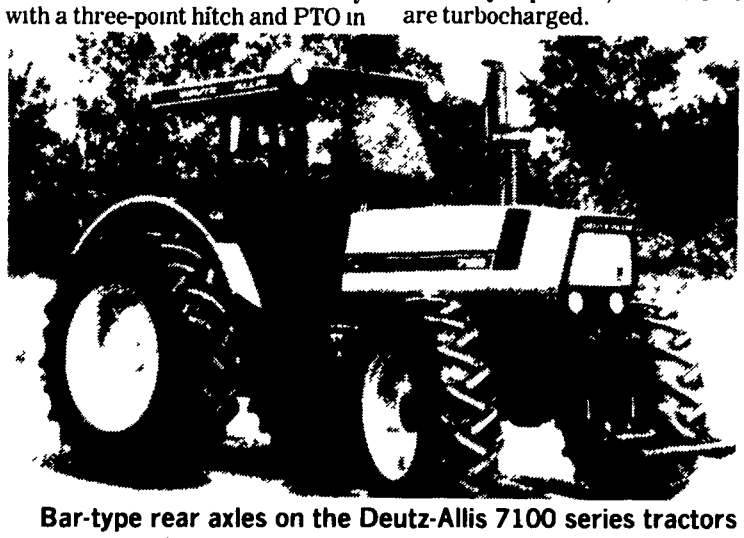
New bar-type rear axles on the 7110 and 7120 tractors provide wheel tread settings from 61.5 inches to 99 inches on 18.4 tires. An optional long axle is available to obtain even wider treads.

Optional all-wheel-drive is available on all four models. The Optitrac front axle differential lock eliminates front wheel spin for maximum traction.

Powermatic high-low power shifting is standard on the 7120 and 7145 models. The Powermatic lets the operator decrease ground speed by 20 percent under load, increasing pulling power by 26 percent.

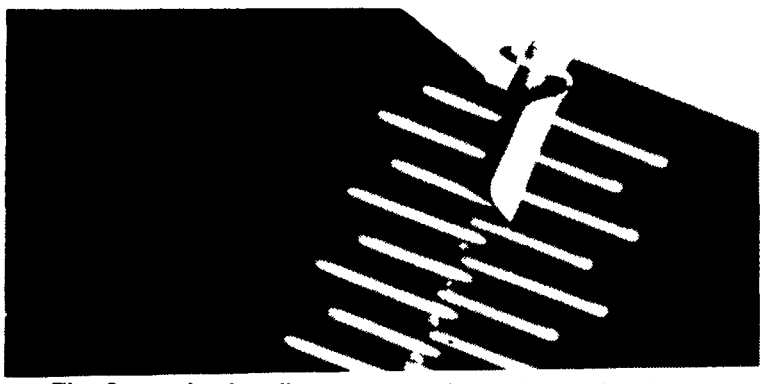
All models have dual-speed 540 and 1,000 rpm PTOs and all offer the Twin-Power option. Twin-Power doubles work efficiency with a three-point hitch and PTO in front as well as in back.

The 7100 Series tractors are equipped with Deutz air-cooled diesel engines. The 7085 is driven by a four-cylinder engine, while the others are equipped with six-cylinder versions. The 7110 is naturally aspirated, but the others are turbocharged.



Bar-type rear axles on the Deutz-Allis 7100 series tractors provide a wide range of wheel tread settings.

'Smart Lock' For Baler Belts



The Smart Lock splice protector is engineered to increase baler belt splice life by as much as 50 percent, by reducing the need for maintenance.

Manufactured by Clipper Belt Lacer Company, Smart Lock creates a reinforced splice that resists belt guide tears, as well as saves wear on end hooks, pins and belts.

The Smart Lock installs over the three end hooks of a belt splice. A nylon-coated cable connecting pin is inserted through the splice. Smart Lock is then crimped over the pin to prevent walkout.

6 States Represented At Seedway Dealer Meeting

HARRISBURG – Two hundred fifty dealers and guests attended the Seedway, Inc. third annual dealer meeting of the York, PA, division, held Aug. 22, 1986 at the Harrisburg Sheraton, West Shore. Dealers attended from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia. Gene Hohl, York Division marketing manager, was master of ceremonies for the program which introduced new seed varieties and provided information on a wide selection of seed corn, small grain, grass seed and allied products sold by Seedway dealers.

Seedway is a diversified regional marketer of Asgros/O's Gold and Eastland/Todd brand seed.

Former Eastland seed dealers joined the York division dealer group for the first time. On July 1, 1986, the company moved sales offices for former Eastland dealers from Emmaus to York. This enabled former Eastland dealers to sell the complete Seedway product line in their sales territories.

The Company's Emmaus operations will continue to operate as a seed production and conditioning facility for the company as a whole. Sales and marketing activities for all the company's dealers south of Pennsylvania Interstate 80 will be co-ordinated from the York offices.

Highlighting activities at the meeting was the presentation of awards for outstanding sales achievement during the past year.

Silage, Grain and Hay Prices

I am frequently asked, "What is silage, haylage and high moisture corn worth?" I shudder sometimes at these questions because I don't want to become a price setter in the marketplace. However, I am interested in helping farmers become informed buyers and sellers.

Most people want a simple, single answer, but there is no single right price for feeds; just look at the market reports! And, prices vary for a good reason. Many factors affect the price of feeds, and I'll try to discuss a few of these factors, using corn silage as an example. The following guideline may be helpful. This guideline was developed and designed for corn silage, but portions of it can be applied to the purchase of other feeds as well.

The value of corn silage depends in part upon the cost of other feeds that it can replace in the ration. Corn silage is valuable primarily for its energy and fiber content. On a dry matter basis, one ton of corn silage will provide about the same amount of energy, fiber and protein as 1,000 pounds of DM from average quality grass hay plus 1,000 pounds of DM from ear corn.

If hay was worth $70 per ton, $35 per half ton, and ear corn was worth $50 per ton, $25 per half ton, on the farm where it was produced, corn silage would be worth a maximum of $60 per ton at 90 percent DM, on that same farm. These calculations are performed in steps 2 and 3 above.

Keep in mind, the above value is for 90 percent DM. If the sialge we are buying has 35 percent DM, 65 percent moisture, it is worth much less because of its lower DM content. We buy feed for the DM and nutrients it contains, not for the water it contains. A word of caution. If ensiled feeds are too dry, quality may be inferior; this is one case where drier feeds would actually be worth less, not more.

Adjusting prices for moisture and for other factors is covered in steps 4 and 5 above. Are getting the quality of silage you need? Check the fineness of chop, check for the presence of molds, and check the odor. You want a product that cows will eat and one that will not upset them.

What facilities do you have for handling silage or for feeding hay? If you are not set up to feed hay, then you can probably justify paying a little extra for silage because of convenience or automation. On the other hand, if the silage forces you into daily hauling and a lot of hand work, it is worth less to you. Make these adjustments in item 5.

The risk factor is one that is frequently overlooked. If you buy silage and transfer it to another storage structure you have some losses as a result of secondary fermentation. These losses are variable and may be in the form of the loss of DM and energy as a result of the heat of fermentation, and a loss of quality due to poor preservation Perhaps the calculated value in step 4.b. needs to be reduced 10 to 20 percent in step 5.d.

What's Silage Worth in The Field?

If we have already determined the value of harvested silage at the farm where it was grown (steps 4.b. and 5.), then we need to consider the cost of harvesting plus the cost of any risks associated with harvesting.

When you purchase harvested silage, many risks have already been absorbed by the grower. He got the crop harvested on time for optimum quality — before the blight struck, before the arrival of winds and rains, and before the harvestor broke down. He also was successful in preserving it well. When you buy a crop in the field, you assume these risks.

Are you purchasing the crop on a per acre basis or on a per ton basis? Either way, youu'll need an estimate of tonnage. A word of caution: most people tend to over estimate yields. Yields can be estimated in several ways.

1. Loads per acre x average weight per load = tons harvested. The challenge here is to keep load size uniform.

2. Tons put into the silo — acres per silo = tonnage per acre. Tonnage in the silo can be estimated by using silo charts.

Be sure to adjust for moisture content of the silage, feeding out and refilling, old silage on the bottom, etc. Some silo capacity charts are based on 70 percent moist silage, but few farmers put up 70 percent moist silage. The factors, discussed earlier in step 9, can help you estimate tonnage more accurately.

If you are buying silage in the field, you'll also need to be concerned about harvesting costs. They can be estimated as follows:

1. Charge per hour — acres per hour = cost per acre.

2. Cost of filling the silo — tons in silo = cost per ton.

3. Cost per ton (from 2, above) x tons per acre = cost per acre.

Negotiable Range

So far, we've been discussing the maximum price a farmer can justify paying for silage. There is another side to the bargaining table, the minimum price the grower must have. The difference between these two values is the negotiable range between buyer and seller.

The grower has the alternative of selling the corn crop as grain, and should expect no less income than this. That income would be yield x net price per bushel. If he has a 125 bushel corn crop and if the net price of corn at the farm is $1.50 per bushel, then he should expect no less than $188 per acre. But if he harvests the crop as silage he'll have additional harvesting costs, of, let's say $15 per acre, plus the value of the fodder removed, which might be worth $60 per acre (1.5 ton of fodder at $40 per ton). That brings his total to $263 per acre. If he gets 18 ton of silage per acre he'll need a minimum of $15 per ton of silage harvested, at his farm ($263 — 18T = $14.61).

Another negotiable figure is the tonnage of silage per foot in the bottom of a silo versus that in a foot at the top of the silo. It's quite different! How different? I'm not sure, but the compaction factors I used in step 10 earlier may be of some help.

Let's say that you have a 20x80 silo, which you had completely filled. You fed out all but 20 feet. How much tonnage remains to sell to someone else. You can't simply go to the 20x80 silo chart and use the 20 foot high rate. If it were only filled to the 20 foot height, the chart would be okay. But you filled it to the 80 feet height, and that really changed the compaction in that bottom section! The factors in step 10 can help compensate for some of these differences.

While these examples were for corn silage, many of these concepts can also be applied to other feed purchases.

Corn Silage-Pricing Guideline

1. Alternative feeds. On a dry matter basis, one ton of corn silage is equivalent to about 0.5 ton of average quality grass hay plus 0.5 ton of ear corn.

2. Price of alternative feeds at the farm where grown:	1 Ton	0.5 Ton
a. Grass hay (90% DM)- average quality	—	—
b. Ear corn (90% DM)	—	+—
3. Value of 1 ton of 90% DM from corn silage (item 2.a. + 2.b.)
4. Maximum value at actual moisture:		—
a. DM of purchased silage = 100 - % moisture——=—
b. DM of silage in item 4.a. x Value of silage in item 3 / DM of silage in item 3 (90)	(_____)=	—
5. Other price adjustments:
a. Quality (moisture, molds, odor, fineness, additives)		—
b. Transportation (if delivered)		—
c. Convenience (availability and handling)		—
d. Risk (market trends, secondary fermentation if transferred)		—
e. Harvesting (field price. Harvest costs, weather, delays)		—
6. Net maximum value of 1 ton of corn silage to the buyer. Add or subtract the adjustments in item 5 from item 4.b.		—
7. Minimum price for the grower.
a. Grain yield per acre_____X net price/bu._____=		—
b. Silage harvesting cost per acre_____-combining cost_____ =		+—
c. Value of fodder, stalks and cobs		+—
d. Minimum income needed per acre (item 7.a. + 7.b. + 7.c.)		—
e. Minimum price per ton = item 7.d._____ — tons silage per acre=		—
8. Negotiable range = item 6_____ - item 7.e._____ =		—

9. Silo capacity charts can be useful in estimating tonnage. Tonnage in a silo will depend upon the moisture content of the silage, height of fill and fineness of chop. Some silo capacity charts are based upon 70% moist silage. The following factors, multiplied by the tonnage of 70% moist silage, will approximate the tonnage of silage at the various levels of moisture shown below:

75%-1.2	65%-0.86	55%-0.67	45%-0.55
70%-1.0	60%-0.75	50%-0.60	40%-0.50

10. What's left in the silo? The density of silage (lbs. of silage per foot of height) at the top of a silo is less than the density at the bottom. The density in the bottom (compaction) will be determined in part by now full the silo was originally filled. Thus, when purchasing, or selling silage from the bottom of the silo, it is helpful to know how full the silo was filled originally.

In the absence of a silage compaction chart, the following untested factors are offered as a helpful guideline: they may be more helpful than no guideline at all.

	Example	Yours
11. Height of fill	70
12. Tons of 70% moist silage (from silo chart)	570
13. Tons of 65% moist silage (see item 9)	490
14. Feet per 1/5 section = height of fill — 5 =	14
15. Average tons per foot (item 13 — item 11)=	7

16. Example:

Section	Silo Footage	Compaction Factor (estimated)		Avg. Tons per Foot (item 15)		Estimated Tons per: Foot	Section
Top fifth	57-70	0.85	x	7.00	=	5.95	83
2nd fifth	43-56	0.92	x	7.00	=	6.44	90
Mid fifth	29-42	1.00	x	7.00	=	7.00	98
4th fifth	15-28	1.18	x	7.00	=	7.56	106

Medication Replaces Nutrients Lost In Freshening

MANCHESTER, Pa. — Animal Medic, Inc. recently extended their line of drug-free medications with the introduction of Fresh Charger, nutritional boluses for dairy cows at calving.

This medication is to be administered within four hours of freshening. According to Larry Gladfelter, president of Animal Medic, the levels of vitamins and minerals in Fresh Charger will replace those lost naturally in the process of calving. Post-calving problems, including retained placenta, metritis and milk fever, should be greatly reduced.

Fresh Charger Boluses contain calcium, magnesium, phosphorus, sodium, potassium, vitamin D_3 vitamin E, cobalt, selenium and iodine.

Since Fresh Charger Boluses contain no drugs or antiobiotics, they leave no residue and cause no withhold for slaughter or milk. However they are not intended to replace any drug indicated by a veterinarian's diagnosis or a careful evaluation of the animal's condition.

For more information, write to Animal Medic, Inc., P.O. Box 575, Manchester, PA 17345-0575. Telephone 1-800-233-1956 (Pennsylvania: 1-800-632-1831).

OUR NEWEST 9 & 10½-FOOT ROTARY CUTTERS

BUSH HOG® ROTARY CUTTERS

SERIES 3108 AND 3126

FOR GRASS CUTTING ON LARGER ACREAGES, PASTURE MAINTENANCE, RIGHT-OF-WAYS, ORCHARDS AND STALK CUTTING.

In Bush Hog's new 3108 and 3126 series rotary cutters you're assured of getting the right model for your particular cutting application... because you get a lot of choices. Choose 9 or 10½-foot cutting widths. Choose center hitch or offset. Choose manual or hydraulic lift. Choose laminated tires, 15-inch pneumatic wheels or airplane tires.

With a center hitch unit, you can select a self-leveling, pull-type model. You can select a lift model—3 point Category II & III standard and quick hitch. Or you can select the economical Cat. II & III semi-mount model.

This semi-mount hitch permits the use of smaller horsepower tractors and allows you to operate on rough terrain—lifting over field obstacles. Offset units are ideal orchard cutters and are offered in pull-type and semi-mount hitch models.

Construction is Bush Hog tough. Frames are box steel with extra clean deck design to inhibit trash and water build-up problems. Rubber-cushioned axles provide excellent shock load protection when operating on rough terrain. Drivelines are fully shielded for operator protection. You can rely on these new models for dependability, durability and outstanding field performance.

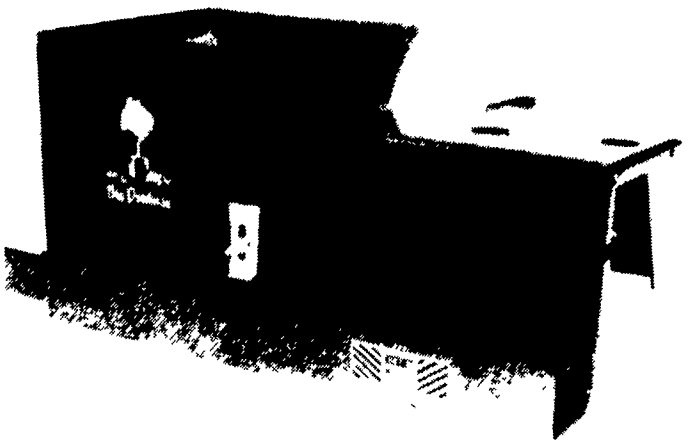
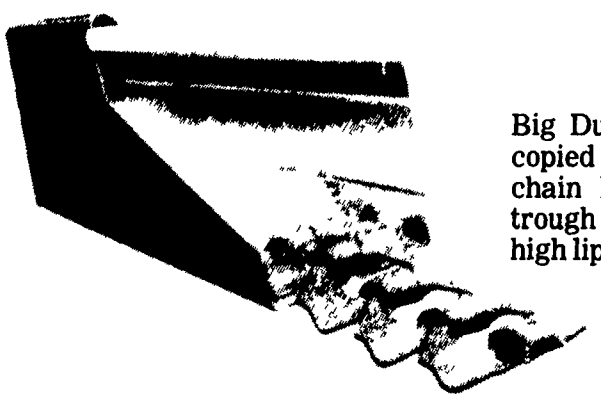
BIG DUTCHMAN FEEDING SYSTEMS FOR LAYER AND PULLET CAGES

Built on Thoroughly Proven Designs. No Other Feeder Beats it for Reliability and Performance

The straight hopper drive unit is easy to work with and simplifies maintenance. The standard hopper is powered by a helical gear-motor drive.





Big Dutchman feeder chain is the original, which is now copied by nearly all poultry equipment companies. The chain literally carries feed in the trough. The Big Lip trough effectively reduces spillage because of the extra high lip and curl.

Corner wheel assembly guides the chain and feed around the turns to make the endless flat chain conveyor possible. The fluted idler wheel and corner rail keep the chain running true.

Tightening The Belt

One good rule of thumb for using credit is "do not borrow more than you have to." But if you do borrow money, borrow all you will need. Expenses can be reduced. Capital items are not always necessary. Bigger is not always better. New seedings are not always superior economically to established stands. Top production is not always the most economical. On the other hand, a job worth doing is worth doing well.

Use soil tests to reduce fertilizer costs. Soil tests tell you the amount of lime that is necessary to bring your soil up to the proper pH (a measure of acidity and alkalinity). Most agronomic crops do best at or near a neutral pH level (7.0). Fertilizer is also utilized (some acid metals such as aluminum tie up nutrients such as phosphorus in the soil) more completely at that pH level. Thus the proper pH can save fertilizer dollars in relation to yield. Lime can also help some weed control chemicals work better. This saves on chemical costs and reduces competitive weed populations from useful crop stands. Regular soil tests can help you make decisions as to where to put scarce dollars for the best returns.

Forage tests can help reduce purchased feed costs by showing you the minimum protein and minerals you need for a balanced ration. Regular forage testing can be an incentive for most dairymen to produce top quality hay forage. The tests can help a farmer decide what silage moisture level works best for his particular operation. Top quality hay forage and a balanced feed ration can save a lot of money in the reduction of purchased feed. Even high moisture grain should be tested to determine the moisture level. Despite the claims of some people, there are no nutrients in the water in high moisture grain.

Sometimes by using a soil test and good fertilization practices, an established hay stand can produce a ton of quality forage cheaper than a new seeding. This is an especially good thing to consider if fertilizer dollars are tight. Many established stands do not produce well because of lack of nutrients or poor insect control rather than loss of vigor from age. Some of the shallower or less than well drained fields would do better if they were seeded in alfalfa and grass rather than straight alfalfa. In the northern part of the state birdsfoot trefoil was a [illegible] crop on some of the medium or poor fields. It had a shallower root system than alfalfa and was not competitive in the best deep soils. However, stage of cutting was less critical because it was constantly in various stages of maturity in each plant. Many of the farmers in the north country used a mixture of alfalfa, trefoil, and timothy. It often out produced straight alfalfa and was very palatable. But the most important feature of the mix was its longevity which reduced the annual cost of seeding.

Manure does have a value if used properly. It may not have a value high enough to offset the cost of building a manure pit, but it comes close. To be of most value, manure must be worked into the ground soon after being spread. Thus an application on frozen ground may result in the loss of a main part of its ingredients. Since most livestock farms have to dispose of the manure as a waste material anyway, why not maximize its value by using it in place of part of the purchased fertilizer?

Caring for and repairing equipment may be more economical than replacing it. Regular and careful maintenance programs for farm equipment could probably save a lot of dollars every year on most farms. Just look at your repair bill from last year and ask yourself the question, "Could I have saved 10 or 15 percent of that by being a little more diligent in my maintenance program?"

Set culling standards to save feed dollars, breeding costs, medical bills, and aggravation. Too often a farmer will keep a potential cull animal "because it is bred." That is a poor reason. First, if the animal is a cull why would you want to keep the offspring? Sometimes an animal out of seemingly good parentage can be a disappointment and should enter the cull list. Twenty years ago we purchased a calf from a good herd and out of a good cow. Unfortunately, it was one of those animals that never amounted to much. We felt that the genetic background should come through if we bred her to good bulls. We used all of the top sires of that time. We eventually got 3 heifers out of her out of good-plus production bulls. We bred them to proven bulls as well and got heifers from them. None of them ever amounted to much in the production line. After three generations of frustration, I sold all of the animals from that family for slaughter. If I had culled the original animal at the start, we would have saved several years and a lot of dollars raising animals that did not pay for themselves.

Livestock operations, other than dairy, should also have good culling standards. If the animal does not perform up to those standards, sell it for whatever it will bring. That will reduce the overall cost of production. Poor performing animals will never be profitable no matter how long they are kept. I could tell you a story about a pig that we kept for an extra three months trying to get it up to market weight. It did not work and we lost money trying.

Know your debt repayment ability — it should be part of your farm analysis. If not, ask your accountant to help you figure it from your analysis. Once you know how much you can repay, you can deal with your lender in setting up a credit program that meets this standard. Do not borrow on equity alone. Many farms still have an asset value in excess of their income generating ability. Most farmers who kept their debt in line with their debt repayment ability are still viable farm operators despite the cost-price squeeze we are in at the present time. One of the benefits of knowing your debt repayment ability is you then have an incentive to increase it. With a good farm analysis you have the information you need to make the adjustments necessary to improve your debt repayment ability.

Often a farm manager can curb the wild desire to buy a new tractor or piece of equipment by sitting down and listing the advantages and disadvantages of the new item. Once this is done, he should list the ways income will be generated to pay for the item. Finally, a manager should ask someone else to critique the whole idea (not the salesman). Every manager needs someone to act as a "devil's advocate" to debunk or try to debunk management ideas and purchase goals. That person can make the manager's decisions more well thought through and usually more sound. Sometimes the manager may actually find a better alternative to his original idea.

Repairing that old unloader may not be your wisest choice...

Repair costs can clip you for a lot more dollars than you might think. In fact a new unloader may not cost much more during "Hanson's Limited Time Unloader Special". So before you repair that old unloader, check with Hanson. Performance, dependability and value. That's the Hanson difference.

Beaver Fair Sells Livestock Champions

BY CRAIG BINGMAN
Snyder Co. Correspondent

BEAVER SPRINGS — The youth livestock sale at the 58th annual Beaver Fair in Beaver Springs brought out over 20 bidders looking to purchase quality FFA and 4-H animals. Twenty-three youths participated in the annual auction that sold 41 market animals.

Setting a Beaver Fair record for market lamb price was Jenny Zerby's grand champion lamb. Her 100-pound Suffolk-Dorset cross lamb, sired by the Zerby's purebred Suffolk ram, brought an impressive $4.10 per pound by NCB Bank. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Zerby of RD1 Beaver Springs, 10-year-old Jenny is a fifth-grade student and very active in 4-H.

Jimmie Kodlick's 115-pound reserve grand champion purebred Dorset lamb was purchased by Sunset Ice Cream for $3 per pound. Jimmie, also owner of the open market black lamb champion, is a 16-year-old senior at West Snyder High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kodlick, RD1, Beaver Springs. Jimmie's 4-H lamb was later resold by Sunset Ice Cream with the proceeds going to the 4-H and FFA livestock sale fund.

The grand champion hog owned by FFA member Kelly Klingler brought a respectable $2.15 per pound. Her 220-pound Yorkshire-Landrace hog was purchased by Keister's Middleburg Auction Sales Inc. Kelly is a 1986 graduate of Selinsgrove High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Klingler of RD1, Selinsgrove.

A 190-pound Hampshire-Yorkshire cross owned by Matt Shoemaker was sold to Harold Meiser. The reserve grand champion hog brought $1.70 per pound. Shoemaker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Shoemaker of RD1, Selinsgrove and is a sophomore FFA member at Selinsgrove High School.

Chad Hummel's grand champion steer was purchased by N. S. Troutman and Sons for 95 cents per pound. The purebred Angus, sired by a Pine Drive bull, weighed 1,060 pounds. Eleven-year-old Chad is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hummel, Jr. of RD5, Selinsgrove. The dam was bred by Russcott Farms.

Reserve grand champion steer was owned by 4-H'er Heather Hummel. The 975-pound Chi-Charolais was purchased by Metzger Meats for 78 cents per pound. Heather is the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hummel, Jr. of RD1, Selinsgrove. Russcott Farms also was the breeder.

Average prices per species were $1.19 for lambs, $1.05 for hogs, and 75 cents for steers. Average poundages were 98, 205 and 970, respectively. Total volume sales for the evening were $8,349.15 with Keister's Middleburg Auction being the biggest buyer. Ray Long, Port Royal, was the auctioneer.

Chad Hummel sold his Beaver Fair grand champion steer to N. S. Troutman and Sons.

Keister's Middleburg Auction was high bidder for Kelly Klingler's grand champion hog.

Farmers And Ranchers Congress Held

BY MATTHEW SHULMAN
Special To Lancaster Farming

ST. LOUIS — A New York delegation joined 1,600 farmers and ranchers from 40 states recently to end the national farm crisis and to restore economic health to rural America.

Unity across agricultural sectors was the theme at the FARM AID-sponsored United Farmers and Ranchers' Congress. Dairymen, beef, swine, and sheep producers joined cotton, grain, field crop, fruit and specialty crop farmers in resolutions calling on Congress to establish fair prices to farmers and to implement supply management to reduce taxpayer-financed surpluses.

Sandy Sickles, of Gainesville, N.Y., said the Congress, "disproves the myth that farmers can't speak with one voice. We can support each others' commodities," she stated, "by supporting the Harkin-Gephardt Save The Family Farm Act which will be introduced this week in Congress."

The Save The Family Farm legislation would provide an immediate moratorium on farm foreclosures to permit debt restructuring. However, it's long-term goal would be to strengthen the farm economy through increased parity levels linked to supply management.

Of special interest to northeast dairymen was a New York/New England resolution, supported by the entire dairy caucus, calling for a delay in the authorization of synthetic bovine growth hormone for commercial use. The resolution noted specific reservations about human and herd health. It further posed questions about the economic and social impacts of the new technology not only on the dairy industry but also on the economic structure of rural communities across the country.

New York's Department of Ag and Markets was represented by agriculture policy analyst James Ball. He carried Commissioner Joseph Gerace's invitation to meet the New York delegation for consultations in Albany and Syracuse.

Dairylea Selects Delegates For Annual Meeting

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Local dairy farmers belonging to Dairylea Cooperative, Inc. have elected delegates to represent them at the cooperative's annual meeting in Syracuse, Oct. 14 to 15, according to Clyde Rutherford, president of the 3,500 member co-op.

Dairylea, one of the largest milk-marketing cooperatives of its type in the northeast, had net sales of $380 million during its past fiscal year ending March 31, 1986. In the 12-month period, the farmer-owned cooperative handled two billion pounds of farm milk, Rutherford said.

Area Dairylea delegates will join with others from 13 cooperative districts in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and western New England to set policy for the coming year and to hear reports from their cooperative officers.

Kopfers Begin Reign As Berks County's Farm Family

Robert and Caroll Kopfer pose with their son, David, in front of the steer barn. They feed over 100 steers annually.

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Berks County Correspondent

FLEETWOOD – Dedication and a strong commitment to a full family life on the farm signaled the awarding of the Reading Fair's 1986 Berks County Outstanding Farm Family honors to the Robert and Caroll Kopfer Family, Fleetwood R2.

The family of four, Robert, Caroll, daughter, Ann, age 18, and son, David, age 12, were presented the award at the recent Reading Fair awards banquet. They were also the honored guests at the Reading Fair as leaders in the opening parade and ribbon cutting ceremonies, and also present at many of the fair's family related activities.

A visit to the Kopfer home at 4 K's Farm showcases the family's commitment to the country life and its related chores and organizations. Awards and crafts grace the walls of their home. Family talents and handiworks are evident in the stenciling done by Caroll and displayed on the walls and with the basketry, wreaths, and sewing done by Caroll and Ann.

The farm, located several miles off of Route 222 on Pleasantville Road, features two farms on 450 acres with steer housing facilities, grain drying and storage, a spacious dairy barn, and lovely stone homes.

"I got it in my blood," states Robert Kopfer reminiscing about his start in farming. Replying that he always wanted to farm, Kopfer began his dream when he was still in high school, gaining valuable experience while working on neighbors' farms. In 1962, he was able to rent a farm on his own, and by 1970, Kopfer gained enough equity to purchase his present farm. In 1974, he purchased another farm close by. This farm became his present dairy, where he started milking his own cows one year later.

Beginning small with 21 cows before expanding to his present 65 head, Kopfer is proud of his time spent on the farm. The Kopfer herd of 65 registered and grade Holsteins are currently averaging over 19,400 pounds of milk with a 3.5 percent test and 671 pounds of fat. They are milked in the stanchion barn with a pipeline milking system. "I'm going to try to push for a little more butterfat and a little less milk," Kopfer says of the future efforts with his herd.

Kopfer grows his own feeds and the herd is fed shelled corn, haylage, and a roasted soybean mix balanced to meet nutritional needs. Feeding is spread to four times a day to keep freshness and increase intake. Cows are bred AI and a bull is run with the heifers.

Approximately 100 steers are finished out at the home farm with some contracted and others from his bull calves. All calves are raised individually in hutches and calf kennels.

The Kopfer acres are divided into 220 acres of corn, 80 acres of alfalfa, 45 acres of soybeans, and the double cropping of oats, barley, and wheat. Five years ago Kopfer went to minimum tillage.

"The clay gets too hard," he says about conventional plowing. "The disc and chisel keeps the mulch on top, and the moisture stays on top," he explains. "I don't even own a moldboard plow anymore," he said. Corn fields are also chemically treated to make water absorb better into the ground. The special chemical keeps the ground from sealing and lets the water absorb instead of running off. Kopfer added that these practices prevent much erosion in his fields.

This past year Kopfer also added an Aero Dry system to his grain operation. A drying unit as well as a storage unit, Kopfer estimates he will be able to dry his own grains and then store them until prices are better. "It gives a real good product," he states. "I'm real pleased with it."

The Kopfers employ a husband-wife team to help with the dairy and another employee to help in the fields. Son, David, helps in the fields and with calves when he is able. Until Ann left for her freshman year in college, she helped milk on weekends and did much of the cooking for the family.

A full-time beautician with her shop at home, Caroll Kopfer is the secretary for the farm, runs for parts, keeps abreast of market changes, participates in many farm organizations and coordinates family life.

"We work together on our records," Caroll states. She adds, "We share responsibilities. We coordinate and cover for each other," concerning the many farm chores and meetings.

"It's an attitude," Caroll states about their successful farming operation and family life. "We always worked together for a common cause," she explained.

Caroll summed up the philosophy of Berks County's newest member of the group of outstanding farm families, "We always worked toward one point, making a goal of a good family life from the farm. It's what we all believe in and how we worked together to get it all done."
